Winsor McCay.
The Dollfuss Death.
If War Must Come.
To Him That Hath.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

MILLIONS WILL learn, with sorrow, of the sudden death of Winsor McCay, one of the greatest of American cartoonists.

It is not necessary to tell readers of this newspaper, particularly those that read the Sunday edition, about Mr. McCay's work and character. His full page Sunday cartoons, for years, have fought for justice in public affairs.

Mr. McCay's pictures combine power with simplicity. He was an earnest, sincere man, honored by his work while he lived, deeply regretted now.

POPE PIUS denounces the murder of Dollfuss, a faithful son and ally of the Catholic church. He referred to "the spirit of hate which deliberately encouraged and led to this damnable and bloody act." And wired condolences and his apostolic blessing to Mrs. Dollfuss.

IN THE DEATH of Dollfuss the Catholic church loses one of Europe's few remaining, and truly devoted, Catholic rulers.

Dollfuss, it will be recalled, was about to issue a silver coin bearing the Austrian arms on one side, a representation of the Madonna and Child on the other side.

Each King of Spain was formerly referred to as "his Catholic Majesty;" but there are no more Kings of Spain. A hostile Spanish government rules.

In other countries of Europe and America there is hostility to religion. However, the Catholic church which looks far back into history, also looks and plans far ahead and is patient.

POWERS OF Western Europe, France, Britain, Italy, most deeply interested in the Dollfuss assassination and the future of Austria, decided yesterday to take no action for the present. The plan was to have the three nations, acting together, take charge of Austrian territory, or in plain English, keep Mr. Hitler out.

It is believed now that Austria can get back on her feet without intervention.

THE MURDER of Dollfuss leaves Chancellor Hitler more power than ever among Germanic races, whatever his feelings may be concerning the murder.

Hitler and Dollfuss were both born in Austria, Dollfuss the younger by three years. Both rose from the lower classes. Hitler, becoming dictator of Germany, planned for his life work a union of Germany and Austria, "the Germanic races against the rest of the world." Dollfuss' determination as dictator was to resist any "anschluss," or union of the two countries. At the moment Dollfuss is dead and Hitler lives.

CATHOLICS ALL over the world join with the Pope in denouncing the cruelty that refused Dolfuss the consolation of religion in his last moments.

He died without the attendance of a physician, deprived of the Last Sacrament. Some that might almost forgive the murder, born of political hate, would never forgive that.

INCLUDING SOME timid ones, that knocked down prices in Wall street right after the Dolfuss murder, many see in that crime signs of another European war. That war, probably will come eventually, with so many "dictators" and so little common sense. But, if the three big Western European powers agreed to protect Austria from invasion, it does not seem likely that Hitler would insist on forcing his way in and making himself an unpleasant neighbor of Italy.

The question is whether England would formally agree to anything after recent experiences.

If war started it would be desperate, within the first few hours France would, undoubtedly, seek to destroy Berlin before Germany could destroy Paris. Last time women and children were half starved while men were killed in the trenches. This time, probably, deaths of civilians, women and children included, would be the most numerous of any.

ONLY PROVIDENCE can protect the women.

The governments, without delay, should make impossible destruction from the air of the world's greatest works of art.

Germans should bury many feet under ground Raphael's beautiful "Madonna and Child" with the little winged angels

HOEY LINKED TO SOHO VICE

Boyd, 'Bozo' Lavery Turn Guns on Police Prober

Frank R. Boyd, the retired inspector of city detectives, and Joe (Bozo) Lavery, the former policeman, who is now one of Mayor McNair's followers, combined their heavy artillery today and shot their strongest barrages at James N. (The Ump) Hoey, the militant member of the Police Research Commission.

Lavery, an impromptu speaker at the Henry George Club luncheon, made charges which seemed little short of an expose of graft and vice under the Republican administrations.

In picturesque, unadorned language, Bozo charged that Hoey, while a police inspector in Oakland, took particular pains to see that Billie Scheible, the blonde landlady, was not molested.

'FIXES' CHARGED

He accused Hoey of being interested in the welfare of houses of ill repute operating in Soho's Fifth avenue.

He told of the distribution of racket privileges.

And he explained that he was a member of the Police Department during the era when politicians "fixed things."

All this was regarded as Boyd's retort to Hoey's recent charges that Boyd was the "collector" for the recently resigned Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall.

McNAIR ALL SMILES

Mayor McNair, all smiles, was among the interested spectators at the luncheon.

He heard Boyd strike out at not only Hoey, but also ex-Public Safety Director Ralph E. Smith, who some time ago described Boyd as unfit.

As he concluded his speech Boyd indicated Lavery and said:

"Joe Lavery's here today and Joe can tell you about lots of things. Joe, I think you ought to tell about some of the vices that run under Hoey."

CALLS HIM STOOLPIGEON

Bozo was on his feet like a soldier:

"I've got no use for a stoolpigeon, a guy that spills his guts."

Then Bozo told of an occasion when he and other officers went out to a certain apartment in

FARMER SHOT HUNTING GHOST

BETHEL, O., July 27.—(AP.)—One man is under a doctor's care with a gunshot wound in his leg, while two others are in jail pending further investigation of a "ghost hunt" on the farm of Clifton Cook.

Sheriff G. G. Auxier was told that Cook had been annoyed for 10 nights by a "ghost" who flashed lights, tossed stones at his home, and occasionally broke a window.

Finally the farmer hired Henry Dodson, 26, and Gilbert Arns, 21, at $3 a night to patrol his property. The light-flashing continued, so Cook called in Verner Coombs, 50, head of the Farmers' Protective Association, and six of his men to join the hunt.

In the darkness, Coombs decided to move from a cornfield to a spot nearer the house. He met Dodson and Arns. They thought he was the "ghost"—he thought they were marauders.

All three fired. Coombs fell with a leg wound. The "ghost," if ghost there be, is still at large.

Pinchot Won't Limit Session To Relief Only

HARRISBURG, July 27.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot said today that if he is forced to call a special session of the Legislature to deal with the state's relief crisis he will make the call "wide open" to permit consideration of diversified legislation.

He said:

"If an extra session is forced upon us, I want the people of Pennsylvania to get the largest possible return in legislation for what the session will cost them.

"If the people have to pay for an extra session for unemployment relief, it will cost no more to give them their money's worth in other forms of relief also. If they have to pay, they will get their money's worth if I have my way.

WON'T LIMIT PROGRAM

"Accordingly, if I am forced to call an extra session in order to keep a million Pennsylvanians from starving, I expect to include in the call a number of things our people really need and for which I have fought.

"There is an election coming on and the Legislature may be more willing than usual to pass laws in the public interest for that reason.

"It would help the people for the Legislature to lighten the

State Liquor Cargo Hijacked by Bandits

CHESTER, Pa., July 27.—(INS.)—A truck, loaded with several thousand dollars' worth of liquor bound for the state stores at West Chester and Coatesville, was hijacked by four bandits near here today. The bold raid occurred on the West Chester pike, near Llanerch.

Three of the four bandits, armed and masked, leaped aboard the truck after it had been forced to the side of the road by the robbers' automobile.

SKELETON DUG FROM ROAD

Oooooooooooooooo!

Workmen were excavating for the new Haysville road today near the former estate of the late Judge Over.

The steamshovel jerked up and down, loaded with dirt.

Something slid off the top of the loaded shovel. A negro workman picked it up. His eyes popped.

He had in his hand the head of a skeleton.

The steamshovel dug up the rest of the skeleton. The bones were taken to the morgue, along with a torn, buttoned fragment of clothes.

Morgue attaches said the skeleton was that of a young person and had been buried for some time. In fact, some oldtimers said there was a cemetery near the road at one time.

RAIN FORECAST TO BREAK HEAT

Pittsburgh's torrid spell brought another known heat prostration today with possible showers the only hope of heat-stricken thousands.

Andrew Baxter, 39, of 1139 Goettman street, was overcome while awaiting a relief order in the Allegheny County Emergency Unit Headquarters at 521 Sandusky street.

Lightning flashed over parts of the city and suburbs last night, but there was no rain.

Humidity was higher, Observer W. S. Brotzman reported, making the heat more oppressive. While the mercury was not expected to reach yesterday's high point of 96, equalling the record for that date, a mark of 90 was probable.

Some relief was felt in the Northwest and Middle West yesterday, the Associated Press reported.

Prince Ruling Austria Scouts Peace With Nazis

VIENNA, July 27.—In the first interview given to a newspaper correspondent since he assumed charge of the Austrian government yesterday, Prince Ernest Rudiger von Starhemberg today brusquely rejected the idea that Chancellor Hitler's peace gesture in appointing Vice Chancellor von Papen special minister to Austria could result in a coalition government of Austrian Heimwehren and Nazis.

Lanky, bald, soft-spoken, aristocratic Acting Chancellor of Austria at 35, von Starhemberg holds the key position to present European politics, inasmuch as a word from him today can start or halt mischief which would have undreamed of terrors for Europe and the world.

The interview took the form of answers to questions submitted by International News Service.

The first question was:

"Has Hitler's move (in naming von Papen to the Vienna post) made a Heimwehr-Nazi coalition for governing Austria possible?"

Starhemberg replied:

"No. The utmost precaution must be exercised in the face of German political methods. Our policy must be to wait and see (President Wilson's 'watchful waiting')."

The next question put to Prince von Starhemberg was this:

"Is any change in government policy to be expected under your administration?"

Starhemberg replied:

"We will absolutely adhere to the policies laid down by Chancellor Dollfuss and no change is to be expected."

Asked if a successor to Chancellor Dollfuss had already been picked, the acting chancellor replied:

"This is a problem that cannot be discussed until after Chancellor Dollfuss' funeral tomorrow—he will be buried as chancellor."

TROOPS MASS TO HOLD CAPITAL WHILE NAZIS BATTLE IN PROVINCES

(Austrian news and pictures on Pages 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7.)

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

VIENNA, July 27. — The Austrian government this afternoon began feverish preparations for the defense of the capital city.

Whole sections of the country were reported in a state approximating anarchy.

In Vienna itself heavy cordons of Fascist Heimwehr troops were drawn around the districts in which are the most important government buildings prepared to resist any Nazi attacks.

Machine gun companies mounted their weapons on the roof of the "Hochhaus," Vienna's skyscraper, giving the guns a position of command over the federal chancellery on the Ballhausplatz.

The Ballhausplatz itself was jammed with Heimwehr troops.

CANDLES SUPPLIED

All government building were hurriedly supplied with candles as an evidence of fear that the electric supply may be cut off.

At Heimwehr headquarters in the closely-guarded Rennegasse, petitions for reinforcements were constantly arriving from Carinthia.

The last SOS message made an urgent demand that all men available be sent immediately to Carinthia, where the Nazis apparently were making big gains.

Officers in the Heimwehr headquarters estimated that 180 Heimwehr men had been killed in Austria by last midnight.

This estimate did not include the casualties in the regular army, in the police, in the gendarmerie and among the Nazis.

NAZI LOSSES 2,500

This same source estimated that the Nazis had lost 2,500 dead and wounded.

All death estimates at present are unreliable, but the best sources indicated that the aggregate death total of all forces, including the Nazis, already has greatly exceeded 500.

The commanders of the Heimwehr were considerably embarrassed by the fact that 6,000 of their armed men were concentrated today in Vienna and were urgently needed here. Therefore it was impossible for them to send reinforcements to Carinthia.

Unverified reports said Nazis were congregating in the railway station outside the inner city intending a surprise attack.

GUERILLA WARFARE

The country whose little Chancellor, Engelbert Dollfuss, was assassinated by Nazis Wednesday, is wracked by guerilla warfare, pitched battles for the possession of towns and railway lines, bor-

HITLER BALKS NAZI INVASION

MUNICH, Germany, July 27.—(AP.)—A meeting which amounted to an extraordinary session of the German cabinet at which Chancellor Hitler made significant concessions to foreign powers on the Austrian question, was believed to have been held at Bayreuth yesterday.

It was reported that at this important session Hitler reached his decision to halt a projected invasion of Austria by the Austrian Nazi legion from here.

DECISIVE ACTION

The dismissal of Theodore Habicht, Austrian Nazi leader in Germany, followed quickly, as did the appointment of Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen as minister to Austria. Both these actions, it was believed, would be regarded favorably by foreign powers watching closely the development of Germany's Austrian policy.

It was said here that not only Gen. Werner von Blomberg, Reich minister of defense, and Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Prussian Chancellor, but Von Papen himself attended the meeting at Bayreuth.

The presence of Von Papen, some thought, indicated that Nazi confidence in him has been re-

All Europe Sees War Threat In Austrian Crisis

Widespread uprisings of Nazis in the Austrian provinces upon hearing the news of Chancellor Dollfuss' assassination today further endangered the peace of Europe, already jeopardized in a tense situation. The former allies, at first relieved by the failure of the putsch in Vienna, were watching the situation with the gravest concern. Latest developments included.

Italian troop movements to the Austrian border continued today as all the capitals in Europe watched Rome to see what Mussolini will do in event of failure on the part of the Austrian government to suppress the Nazis.

The death toll of fighting in the Austrian provinces could only be estimated after a night in which artillery was used against some towns which would not surrender. Estimates varied from 100 to 500.

Adolf Hitler wrote Franz von Papen, non-Nazi vice chancellor of Germany, now resting in Switzerland, asking him to take the ministry at Vienna in a letter referring to "the murder of Dr. Dollfuss, which we all abhor."

The murdered Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss will be buried tomorrow in a state funeral which Mussolini may attend.

Conspicuous by its absence among the condolences on the death of Chancellor Dollfuss sent to Vienna was that of Chancellor Hitler's. However, his foreign minister, Konstantine von Neurath, sent formal condolences and President Hindenburg wrote a personal letter to President Miklas, of Austria.

It was disclosed by the government in Vienna that the actual slayer of Chancellor Dollfuss was Otto Panetta, 36 years old.

In some sections of the Austrian province of Styria it was reported that the Socialists were joining the Nazis in resisting the government forces, now headed by their arch enemy, Prince Starhemberg.

It was reported from Paris that England, France and Italy had reached an agreement to convoke an extraordinary session of the League of Nations to review the Austro-German situation.

M'Nair Has Mustache— Until Wife Returns

Mayor McNair today was sporting a mustache, a temporary proposition due to be eradicated as soon as the wife returns from her vacation.

The mustache made its formal debut today at a luncheon of the Henry George Club. It is a short-sloping affair following in its shape a bunker at Oakmont.

His Honor said the mustache was necessary because of a sore lip. And how did he get the sore lip:

"From laughing at Council."

His Honor described the adornment as the Hitler type mustache.

And he was certain that the mustache would go as soon as Mrs. McNair set foot in town. Why?

"Nothing's permanent in this administration."

KNICKERBOCKER SEES DOLLFUSS AS 'MARTYR' FOR PEACE

HITLER FORCED INTO DEEPER ISOLATION

Deserted by Mussolini, Last Friend He Had On Continent

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER,
International News Service.

VIENNA, July 27.—Hitler has given up Austria. He may claim it again tomorrow but today he has given it up. This is the primary international consequence of the death of Chancellor Dolfuss and it means a better chance for the peace of Europe.

For Hitler has washed his hands of the Austrian Nazis. He washed his hands of them because they were stained with the blood of Dollfuss.

Twenty-four hours after Dollfuss had bled to death in the hands of his Nazi captors, Theodore Habicht, Hitler's Austrian lieutenant with the title of inspector general of the Austrian Nazis, was deposed at Hitler's orders.

DODGE RESPONSIBILITY

All this coupled with fervent disclaimers from Berlin of any responsibility for the callous killing of Dollfuss plus the German dismissal of their Vienna minister, von Reith, plus their ostentatious show of mourning flags for Dollfuss means that Germany is most anxious to dodge the responsibility which the whole world has lain at her door.

And this sudden turnabout face of Germany means that for the time being, Austria is safe from the German threat. Despite sporadic flareups of Nazi resistance in Styria and a few other Austrian provinces the country as a whole is safely under the control of the Vienna government.

But the loss of Austria, if only for the time being, is not the greatest loss Germany has suffered from the murder of Dollfuss.

MUSSOLINI HOSTILE

Hitler has lost Mussolini. That is the most serious blow to German foreign policy. Because Hitler and Germany know that if war comes she was to have at least one ally. She counted on Italy not too much, but Italy was the only friend Hitler and Germany could hope to have.

Now Mussolini has sent a telegram of condolence for the death of Dollfuss which leaves nothing unsaid. He declared "the independence of Austria, for which Dollfuss fought, was an ideal which has always been defended by Italy and which shall be defended by her in the future still more energetically."

This means that Mussolini is more than ever resolved to use the Italian army if necessary to keep the Nazis from power in Austria. Further, Mussolini declared "his memory shall be kept not only in Austria, but in the whole civilized world which has already condemned the persons who were responsible either directly or indirectly for his death."

POINTS TO HITLER

But this Mussolini obviously points the finger of indictment at Hitler, who, as the father of National Socialism, must have been considered to be one of the persons at least indirectly responsible for the crime of the Austrian Nazis.

And with this Mussolini has broken with Hitler.

All this in the last analysis means that Germany, already badly isolated before Hitler's bloody suppression of Roehm's revolt on June 30 and after that revolt more isolated than ever, is today frozen out of the European family.

More than that it means that National Socialism itself has lost so tremendously in its moral appeal to the Germans of Europe, both in and outside of Germany, that it is no longer the menace it was a few months ago. The blood of Dollfuss has watered the seeds of peace.

VIENNA FEARS NEW 'PUTSCH'

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service.

VIENNA, July 27.—Panic swept the Austrian government offices today as reports reached the chancellery that a new Nazi "putsch" was under way. This time, it was reported, the Nazis were disguised as members of the Heimwehr.

Your correspondent was in the chancellery offices as the alarm came. We were preparing to enter Dollfuss' former workroom, where the Chancellor met his death.

A high officer of the army ran past Austrian officials with whom we were speaking, went into another room, conferred with another official and came out trembling like a leaf. With blanched face he whispered:

"My God, the Nazis are coming again. This time they are dressed in Heimwehr uniforms."

The great doors of the chancellery were slammed shut. Guards, police and military took poses at every window and all entrances to the building were closed.

From a barracks a truckload of troops dashed through the streets of Vienna while the populace rushed about in alarm.

It is not yet known whether the reported new putsch is general or a mere scare.

It would help the people to reduce the school and road taxes and provide for the school children by a graduated income.

FAVORS LAW REFORM

"The Legislature ought to prevent a candidate who has broken the election laws from taking office. It ought to provide for revising the State Constitution and bringing it up to date. It ought to prevent the public utilities from increasing their charges at their own sweet will.

"These are among the things for which I have fought during my present term and which I was unable to get for the people from the Legislature. These matters and others, such as abolishing company-owned and operated deputy sheriffs, are under consideration in the event an extra session is forced upon us."

FOG BALKS FLIGHT

The Governor said he had planned to leave by plane early today for a meeting of Governors at Mackinac Island, Mich., but that foggy weather over the Alleghenies prevented. He said he had prepared a resolution which he intended to introduce, asking the conference to urge the federal government to continue carrying the relief load.

The Governor said:

"Nobody wants an extra session—least of all myself. I have trouble enough already.

"Ever since last March everything possible has been done to avoid it."

"I have gone many times to Washington. I have personally presented Pennsylvania's claim to the responsible federal officials over and over again both by word of mouth and writing. I have insisted that the federal government ought to carry our relief problem until February 1. After that the regular session ought to deal with it.

"I shall not let up unless and until all hope of preventing an extra session is gone."

The federal government has advanced sufficient funds to carry the state's relief load through August, but has served notice no unless Pennsylvania bears a "reasonable" share of the load.

'HELL'S JUDGES' BOMB SUBWAY

PARIS, July 27.—(AP.)—The "three judges of hell"—mad bombers who have terrorized the French capital—were believed by police to be responsible for a bombing in Montparnasse subway station which killed the stationmaster and injured two passengers.

A conductor in a "first-class" coach found an innocent-looking package lying on a seat. At the Montparnasse station, where two subway lines intercept, he turned it over to the stationmaster to be sent to the lost package office.

The train pulled out and, just as the stationmaster was examining the package the bomb inside exploded.

POWERS AGREED TO MASSING OF DUCE'S ARMY

England, France 'Fully Informed' as to Italian Moves

LONDON, July 27.—(AP.)—A well-informed foreign diplomat revealed today that the massing of Italian troops on the Austrian frontier was fully approved in advance by both Great Britain and France.

British authoritative quarters admitted that Great Britain and France were "fully informed" concerning the Italian maneuvers, and that they came "as no surprise."

It was explained that the big powers regarded the Italian move as the most practical means of preventing other countries, including Germany and the nations of the Little Entente, from "starting to march."

WAIT OTHERS' MOVE

Great Britain and France, it was stated, were assured that the Italian army would not move past its frontier posts unless armed forces of other nations entered Austria. The speed with which Germany disowned any connection with the Austrian revolt and the promptness with which it called home its minister to Vienna was attributed directly to the Italian military demonstration.

Although failing to give complete confirmation to the report the three powers had agreed in advance to this maneuver the British informant explained that Britain and France are agreed "that any appearance of concerted action would be most undesirable." For this reason, he added, no joint protest to Germany had been proposed or was even considered.

BRITAIN SHUNS PARLEY

Reports from Vienna that the British charge d'affaires has participated, or will take part in a conference with the big powers and representatives of the Little Entente were denied flatly. It was said by the foreign diplomat:

"But for any army to cross the Austrian frontier would be a signal for at least two or three others to start."

He claimed to have positive information of an advance agreement among big powers, adding:

"Great Britain, France and Italy realized this, and agreed that an Italian demonstration would prevent the armies of smaller nations from attempting an invasion. Germany took the cue, as is shown by the haste with which she is acting now to show respect for Austrian independence."

HOEY LINKED TO SOHO VICE

Fifth avenue seeking one "Redheaded Billie." He related:

"Hoey come up and said, 'Get the hell out of here.'"

Bozo explained that he belonged to the force when politicians took control of the rackets. He described certain concessions which he indicated were operated in Hoey's territory.

He said the numbers concession was given to Gus Greenlee, another concession was handed to one Brogue, the slot machines were handed the late Paddy McKnight. He declared:

"One time a fella lost his pay in the slot machines and I tried to get it back for him. I was transferred.

"Another time I got a letter from Walsh telling me to arrest a certain guy. I arrested him and Walsh gave me hell. (He referred to former Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh.)

"I told Walsh, 'if you intend to be Superintendent of Police you better close up those apartments (in Fifth avenue).'"

"And Walsh said, 'You're too smart.'

"Once I was standing in front of Billie Scheible's place on a case and Hoey came up and said, 'What are you doing out here?'

(Bozo tried to imitate the Ump's voice.)

"I said, 'None of your business, I ain't working for you.' Hoey said, 'You can't bother them people upstairs, they ain't none of your business.' Then I was transferred."

HOEY INTERESTED

Bozo told of arresting a man in Oakland for auto thefts. But after he had made the arrests Bozo said he was taken off the case. Why?

"Hoey was interested."

Bozo paused for breath, then carried on, his red mop of hair standing out as a danger signal:

"I could talk this stuff for a month."

Boyd interrupted:

"Aw, that's enough."

Later, during the question-and-answer period, Bozo popped up again to question his friend, Boyd. He asked:

"What become of the Pick Leroy alky investigation where there was $25,000 graft, and why was I transferred off that Second avenue beat?"

Boyd said apparently the investigation had been toned down, then added:

"Well, you were always a bad boy, Joe; you couldn't work for anybody but me."

Boyd, irritated by the pokes Hoey has taken at him through the Police Research Commission, asserted:

"That's a one-man commission—Hoey, and he has a one-track mind. He always barks. It's not Hoey, it's hooey.

"This foolish commission is wasting a lot of money. Why don't they go to Andy Park, the district attorney, if they have any evidence I'm the official collector. I defy them to prove it.

"Hoey claims I got $48,000 out of the Brotherhood bank case. Why, that money was turned over to (Capt.) Edeburn. How could I steal $48,000 under the nose of the captain? I defy him to prove that.

U. S. Must Prepare Defenses To Keep Out of European Conflict, R. W. Child Warns

The following article on the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss, of Austria, has been written for the Hearst newspapers by Richard Washburn Child, former ambassador to Italy, who returned recently from a European tour which he made as an observer for the United States government. On this tour, Mr. Child discussed world affairs with Chancellor Dollfuss at Vienna.

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

NAZI GUNMEN killed Dollfuss.

Not revolution—filthy murder.

The little man they blasted down in a cowardly surprise and shot in the back apparently was allowed to bleed to death without any assistance, without a priest.

Mr. Child.

To one who knew him a few weeks ago—boyish, sparkling eyes, alert movements, intense patriotism, good natured banter romping over the surface of his skill in serious statesmanship—there comes a chill of the blood.

For now the picture of this little former secretary of agricultural organizations writhing on the floor of the very conference hall where we had our conversations, and now telling his own lieutenants to await for vengeance lest more bloodshed be brought to his beloved Austria and his beloved mankind.

THIS is being cool, this is being kind, this is dying as real men may like to die.

The humble apartment where he and his gentle modest wife lived in his days of power may become a place for pilgrims to go with the profoundest respect.

What of his enemies?

They deserve the sneers and they will invite the fury of all who value kindness, justice, sportsmanship and everything which makes individual and community life worth living.

Will Europe—which has become the scene of a toboggan slide back to the middle ages, to the torture chamber and the poison cup, the knife in the back and kisses of Judas—rise in abhorrence against subsidized bombing, the paid murderer, the international procurer of international male prostitutes, midnight assassination and sneak warfare by hired murderers and by corrupting secret agents?

Never has the occasion arisen since the war when more lips have been asking:

"Does this truly mean more war?"

NEVER since the war has there been more reason to say to ourselves as these columns have so often said:

PREPARE DEFENSES TO GUARANTEE PEACE.

PREPARE TO KEEP OUT OF CONFLICT NOT OUR OWN.

The murder of Dollfuss is another signal to us that the the world is going through a cancerous period—a period for the cheap sneak, the avoidance of obligations, the self-indulgenence of degenerates, the bloody work of brutish perserverance.

Washington today, and perhaps the President in the Pacific, may realize that to preserve our resistance to these things and to keep our safety from attack or curruption—we must STAY HOME.

As for Europe, what she should do is clear.

Tomorrow Britain, France, Italy should take leadership in guaranteeing the independence of Austria and a stable government of Austria's own choosing.

'Lost' Husband Found for Countess

MR. AND MRS. PETER UPTON MUIR .... SO HE'S IN PARIS!

Ex-Pittsburgh Man, Gone Six Months, Located in Paris

NEW YORK, July 27.—(AP.)—Mrs. Victoria Muir, the former Countess Victoria de Montclat, was informed today by the State Department that Peter Upton Muir, her husband, had been found in Paris.

Muir, a former Pittsburgh newspaper reporter, has been missing for six months. At one time Mrs. Muir thought he might have gone with his cousin, Admiral Byrd, to the Antarctic.

The Muirs were reconciled in Pittsburgh in 1929 after the former countess traced her mate from Italy. He was employed as a reporter on the Post at the time. Mrs. Muir accused her husband's mother for causing their separation at that time.

ITALIAN TROOPS WAIT ORDERS FROM DUCE

48,000 Massed Along Austrian Border Set To Meet Crisis

ROME, July 27.—(AP.)—Premier Mussolini held 48,000 troops on the Austrian frontier and as many more within quick marching distance of the border today as he watched for any sign that foreign intervention in Austria was needed.

A strong air force, reinforced by several squadrons, moved up from a more southerly point in the last 24 hours, was ready to accompany the army should marching orders be given.

Forty-eight planes, fully equipped for emergency duty, passed over Venice yesterday en route north.

A government official said emphatically intervention would be held back as a last resort and expressed hope it would not be necessary. It was evident, however, if such a move is called for Italy will play a major role.

POWERS IN ACCORD

France and England are said to be already in accord with Italy for intervention if the Nazi threat reaches sufficiently grave proportions.

Reports received here during the night were that Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, heading the Austrian government, has the situation under control, at least for the time being.

Fighting, nevertheless, was still going on in some parts of the country and it was felt the government's position is by no means free of peril.

Mussolini continued today to devote his whole time to the Austrian question. Military chiefs were in direct contact with him at the Venezia palace.

WAIT DUCE'S ORDERS

Four divisions of 12,000 men each are in positions on the Brenner Pass and the Carinthian Pass on the border. Soldiers were under strict orders not to cross over except on orders fom Il Duce himself.

A foreign office spokesman explained the movements by saying Austrian independence was so vital to Italy that she could not tolerate any movement, directed or influenced from without, which threatens that independence.

An unofficial Vienna report that Premier Mussolini would attend the funeral of Chancellor Dollfuss Saturday in Vienna was denied by an official spokesman. He said that Il Duce instead would attend the requiem services that will be held in Rome for the late Austrian dictator.

He further said the Italian government looks with pleasure and relief upon the appointment of Franz von Papen, German vice chancellor, as minister to Austria, believing that this indicates that Chancellor Hitler, of Germany, wishes to smooth over the situation. Since von Papen is one of the more moderate members of the Hitler cabinet and is a Roman Catholic, his appointment to Vienna is regarded favorably as a means of helping restore tranquil relations between Austria and Germany.

GERMANY ASSAILED

ROME, July 27.—(INS.)—The Italian press lashed out savagely at Germany today as the movement of troops that brought nearly 100,000 men within easy striking distance not only of Austria but also of Germany was concluded.

The influential Popolo di Roma, leading the editorial denunciation which many believe to be officially inspired, declared that if Hitler provokes war in the midst of the Austrian crisis "all Europe will jump on Germany." Popolo di Roma said:

"Nazism has succeeded in creating unanimity of hostility toward Germany throughout the world.

"It is now realized that Nazism considers murder not only a natural asset for domestic but also a tool for international action.

"Chancellor Dullfuss was killed for resisting Germanism.

"Europe is tired of living in a state of unrest created by a handful of maniacs. If tomorrow war breaks out, all Europe would jump on Germany and several invading armies would pour in upon her from all frontiers."

Repairs on the Sixty-second street Bridge will begin within a few weeks, Thomas O. Hasley, county director of highways, bridges and tunnels, said yesterday.

Now restricted to light traffic because of structural weakness, the present load limit of 10,000 pounds may continue in force until fall, though bids for the repair contract will be opened soon.

Swimming in River, Killed by Barge

WHEELING, W. Va., July 27.—(AP.)—Swimming in the Ohio River, seeking relief from the sultry heat, Charles Kasnic, 57, last night was killed by a string of sand and gravel barges.

Kasnic, a mill worker, the father of eight children, apparently did not see the approaching tug and was struck on the head by the first barge.

BEAUTY ATTEMPTS SUICIDE OVER WRECKED ROMANCE

BLONDE GULPS POISON AS EASY 'WAY OUT'

Blames Show Musician For Blighted Love In Farewell Note

A broken romance with a tent show musician was the cause, according to police, for pretty blonde Audrey Null, 21, of Huntington, W. Va., suffering from self-administered poison today in the McKeesport Hospital.

Miss Null

She was found prostrate late last night in the fourth floor hallway of the Clinton Hotel, McKeesport, where she had registered from Columbus, O. Another guest, Mrs. May Gray, found the girl. Police rushed her to the hospital, where the girl's condition is reported as fair.

Two notes were found by police in her room. The first one read:

"Goodbye, mother; I'll see you someday. Love, Audrey."

The second note revealed the broken romance. It read:

"Bob Heidelberg is the cause of this. This is the easy way out."

Police learned that the Bob Heidelberg was a musician with the Billroy's Show, a burlesque troupe playing under tent and which showed last night in McKeesport at the Moran baseball field. The girl had gone to the field earlier in the evening, police reported learning from the show manager.

Miss Null had sought out Heidelberg, according to the police, and an argument followed their meeting. During the dispute, which drew other members of the company to the scene, police said they learned each had charged the other with gun threat. The manager later found a revolver outside the tent.

FLEEING POLICE, YOUTHS CRASH

A stolen car chase from McKees Rocks into the city, during which three shots were fired, ended in the arrest early today of two Ambridge youths as their machine crashed into a stone wall.

The youths were Joseph Pager, 21, of 625 Glenwood avenue, and Theodore Gaus, 21, 652 Melrose street. They were lodged in the South Side Police Station after police stopped their flight in East Carson street, at First street.

According to the police, they admitted stealing the automobile of Merle Craven from in front of his home, 18 Beaver road, Fair Oaks.

Weather Conditions

Pressure is low over the states east of the Mississippi, with centers over the lower Ohio Valley, the Middle Atlantic Coast and north of Lake Superior, while high pressure covers the West with the center over Western Montana. The high is causing northerly winds over the plains states and a change to cooler weather. The low pressure is attended by considerable cloudiness, and light thundershowers were general yesterday and last night over the Ohio Valley states, the lake region, and westward over the plains states. There were showers also along the Gulf, and over the southeastern states. There was a marked drop in the maximum temperatures yesterday throughout the protracted heat area. Temperatures of 100 degrees or higher occurred only in Ohio, West Virginia and in Southeastern Kansas, and Oklahoma.

DILLINGER MOLL SURRENDER REPORTED

Plastic Surgeon Also Held by U. S. Men, Chicago Hears

CHICAGO, July 27.—(AP.)—John Dillinger's last sweetheart and the plastic surgeon who sought to conceal the gang chieftain's identity in a face lifting operation were reported to be held by federal agents today.

Samuel P. Cowley, acting head of the Department of Justice's investigating branch here, did not deny that both had joined Mrs. Anna Sage, the "woman in red" who accompanied Dillinger and his girl friend the night he was slain, in custody. He merely refused to comment on the development.

SURRENDERS TO U. S.

The sweetheart, Polly Hamilton Keele, was reported to have surrendered but the manner of the doctor's purported apprehension was not made public.

The home of James Probasco, government operatives declared, was used as a hospital by the surgeon when he revamped the physiognomies of Dillinger, his lieutenant, Homer Van Meter, and possibly other hunted criminals. Probasco was brought to the Federal Bureau yestrday for questioning about the operations, but leaped to his death from a window on the nineteenth floor of the building in which the government bureau has its offices before they had finished with quizzing him.

OFFICIALS MUM

Officials declined to discuss the possibility that the Keele girl was a woman who led the agents to Probasco's home Wednesday, when Probasco was seized and surgical instruments were found.

Mrs. Sage, at whose home Dillinger often visited, has been held since Tuesday night. Coroner Frank J. Walsh said keys found in the outlaw's effects fitted several doors in her apartment.

The whereabouts of the Keele girl had not been known since she disappeared after the shooting Sunday night.

Meanwhile, the hunt for Dillinger's hidden loot continued on a large scale and the search for his henchmen went forward apace.

Note on Dillinger Grave Threatens 'Finger Woman'

INDIANAPOLIS, July 27.—(AP.)—A note saying "I am going to get her, John," and signed "J. H." was found yesterday on the grave of John Dillinger, erstwhile No. 1 public enemy.

The homicide squad of the Indianapolis Police Department puzzled last night over whether the note might be a threat against the woman reported to have "put the finger" on Dillinger before he walked into the death trap laid for him by federal agents in Chicago last Sunday night.

The initials are the same as those of John Hamilton, a "trigger man" of the Dillinger gang of bank robbers, who is hunted for the killing of a Chicago detective.

Police who have guarded the grave since Dillinger was buried said they believed the note was left by two women dressed in black, and one man who drove to the cemetery in a large black sedan bearing Ohio license plates.

MAIL SWINDLE JURY DISAGREES

NEW YORK, July 27.—(AP.)—A deadlocked jury in the mail fraud trial of James C. McKay and William J. Graham was discharged without agreement last night after 31½ hours of deliberation.

The jurors said they stood 8 to 4 for conviction on all three counts of the indictment with only one of the minority willing to change his vote. The other three declared they felt there was not sufficient evidence to convict.

Earlier a partial verdict was returned finding John Egleston, a third defendant, guilty of one of the counts.

Judge Carroll C. Hincks ordered counsel to appear before him for motions at the opening of court today. Louis Mead Treadwell, acting United States attorney, announced the government would be ready to re-try the case at once.

POET SHOT DEAD IN 'TRIANGLE'

WOODLAND, Cal., July 27.—(AP.)—Shot, police said, by the jealous husband of another poet, Lamar Hollingshead, 23, student poet, is dead.

Justin C. Doke, 33, city food inspector of San Leandro, was quoted by police as admitting the slaying. He was quoted as saying:

"I didn't mean to do it. I lost my head. He and my wife were often together. He wrote love letters to her."

In a dying statement to District Attorney C. C. McDonald, Hollingshead said he was shot yesterday after he refused to sign a statement admitting his attentions to Mrs. Dokes.

EIGHT PLAYING ON RAILS DIE

SHELTON, Conn., July 27.—(AP.)—Grief-stricken parents of eight children who were killed by a meat train contemplated a mass funeral today.

Seven boys and a girl were playing cards on the New York, New Haven and Hartford tracks yesterday when they were mowed down by a southbound freight train.

John Roy, fireman of a northbound train, passing at the time, vainly shouted and squirted water at the children to warn them. A moment later the card players were crumpled forms.

The victims included two brothers and a brother and sister. They were: Ruth Bierwith, 12; John Gentile, 17; Joseph Gentile, 14; George Rumble, 16; Charles Bierwith, 12; Carl Hoffman, 13; Steven Rotkowich, 17, and Joseph Dzwonchyk, 14.

Seven died almost instantly. Joseph Gentile died in the Griffin Hospital a few hours later.

John J. Kane, of Hartford, engineer of the train which struck the children, was unable to see them because of the northbound freight train and a curve in the tracks.

Dillinger Senior Marks Birthday

MOORESVILLE, Ind., July 27.—(INS.)—Following on the heels of the most trying ordeal of his life, John W. Dillinger, Sr., father of the slain desperado, today quietly observed his seventieth birthday amid a shower of letters of condolences at his farm home here.

Among the missives of sympathy received was one from the Rev. Lightfoot Michaux, pastor of the Radio Church of God, Washington, who announced he would preach the outlaw's funeral over the radio tomorrow night.

BELLEVUE'S FIERY CROSS

DROWNS TRYING TO SAVE FRIEND

Homer Seifert, 46, of Perrysville avenue, North Side, drowned last night at Ocean City, N. J., while attempting to save a Pittsburgh companion and within 300 yards of several hundred crack life guards, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Seifert and Paul A. Schmitt, 45, of 115 Marshall avenue, North Side, were swimming while life guards were competing in a national tournament at another point on the beach.

Schmitt called for aid and Seifert swam toward him. Suddenly Seifert sank from view. Spectators called life guards who revived Schmitt.

Seifert was employed in the circulation department of the Pittsburgh Press.

BEER PARLORS IN 'WAR'

A beer war during a heat wave! This pleasant conditions was fomenting in East Liberty today.

And an appreciative populace was flocking to the cut-rate spots.

One beer restaurant near Penn avenue and St. Clair street, hoisted the size of its glasses to 16 ounces for a dime. Another, a block distant, put in 20-ounce glasses. Now they're both dispensing 20 ounces of beer for 10 cents. A third retailer dropped the price of bottled beer to eight cents.

Today this generosity spread to Wilkinsburg, where one spot advertised the same 20-ounce drink for a dime.

No complaints have been received.

Shipment of Arms To Bolivia Approved

WASHINGTON, July 27.—(AP.)—The State Department announced today that about $3,000,000 worth of war munitions purchased by Bolivia prior to May 28 had been excepted from the terms of the presidential proclamation of that date which banned shipment of arms and munitions to Paraguay and Bolivia.

ROMANCE ENDS WITH SOLVING OF HEX CASE

Impoverished Suitor Of Bellevue Widow Goes to Jail

Bellevue's hex mystery was solved today. And with the solution a romance was shattered.

Norman Parker, 38, of Lacrippe avenue, confessed before Squire Elmer Greiner that he assisted Mrs. Elizabeth Donovan, the Shadestreet widow, in trying by fantastic means to cast a spell on the neighbors.

Prisoner Parker

Parker, glum and resigned, admitted it was he who planted a cross in a Shade street lot adjoining the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Spang, then at the stroke of midnight, lighted the kerosene-soaked cross to alarm the neighbors. He admitted, too, obtaining chicken hearts for Mrs. Donovan to bury near the neighbors' homes.

SAW SALT SPILLED

Spang himself told how salt had been spread on his front porch, of a needle hidden under the door, of a mysterious puncture to one of his tires, of the theft of two lily buds, and:

"My wife saw Mrs. Donovan spill the salt herself."

The root of the hex Spang felt, was property trouble between another Spang—Harry—and Mrs. Donovan.

Mrs. Donovan, nervous and excited, clamored for a chance to deny her guilt, but Squire Greiner apparently felt she wouldn't do her own cause any good.

OFF TO JAIL

It was Mrs. Dorothy Reider, of Carver street, who told of the admiration which kindled in Parker's eyes for the Widow Donovan. Said Mrs. Reider:

"Mr. Parker said he liked her and I said if he did, she was a widow with five children."

Mrs. Reider said she was friendly with both, but emphasized she had nothing to do with the hexing.

Squire Greiner was unsympathetic to the wooing of the widow by the willing Parker. He fined Mrs. Donovan $5, and he soaked the impoverished Parker $30 or 25 days. So Parker went off to jail.

And the nerves of Shade street neighbors today were less jumpy.

JURY DISMISSED IN MORALS CASE

LOS ANGELES, July 27.—(AP.)—A jury disagreement sent the Hollywood morals trial right back where it started two and a half weeks ago.

Dave Allen, Central Casting Bureau manager, and Gloria Marsh, film extra girl, were under order today to come back to court August 20 for a retrial of the case.

Superior Judge B. Rey Schauer dismissed the jury of eight men and four women last night after they had taken 14 ballots and had been out for more than 50 hours. On each ballot the count was the same, eight for conviction and four for acquittal.

Red-headed Miss Marsh said:

"I cannot understand how 12 such intelligent people could fail to agree on the fact I was the victim of a frame-up."

Allen expressed disappointment at failure to win an acquittal and said he would not return to his position until he had been vindicated.

The pair was indicted last May 15, accused of participating with June De Long, another film extra girl, in an immoral party at the De Long apartment on April 26.

AUSTRIANS CRY FOR PEACE AS WAR HOVERS

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

VIENNA, July 27.—Peace and war wrestled spectacularly in Austria today with the fate of Europe at stake.

"Peace! Peace!" screamed the bannerlines of extra editions of newspapers carrying Hitler's letter to von Papen.

"War! War!" roared the artillery bombarding Nazi positions in the provinces.

"Cease fighting—von Popen is coming," pleaded the telephone wires reaching into distant villages and rocky fastnesses.

"Revenge! Death! Revenge!" rattled machine guns echoing down the narrow streets of picturesque Carinthian towns within a taxi ride of the troop-crowded Italian and Jugo-Slav borders.

"Hitler makes peace with Austria!" fluttered down upon Nazi fighters and government troops as government planes scattered leaflets with the hope of spreading the Hitler-von Papen news before it was too late.

BULLETINS TELL TOLL

Laconic communiques informed Vienna:

"Motorized troops are rushing to Carinthia."
"Twenty dead."
"Nine dead."
"Thirty-six dead."
"One hundred dead."

Repeating again and again Hitler's letter to von Papen, the Austrian radio groaned:

"My Dear Herr von Papen: In consequence of the events in Vienna . . . If possible to relieve the general tension . . . To re-establish normal relations between Austria and Germany . . . My unlimited confidence . . . Go to Vienna . . ."

MOTHER SOBS

The mother of a young Austrian auxiliary officer, as she called the Associated Press office early today, sobbed:

"My son has been ordered to Carinthia."

Told of Hitler's letter she exclaimed:

"Pray God it means peace. Enough of blood!"

A high ranking Austrian Nazi commented:

"We are hoping it is peace. But time presses. Will the news get around in time?"

TARGETS SORRY FOR DOLLFUSS

By TOM WILHELM
International News Service.

VIENNA, July 27.—You would think that the apartment house dwellers in the workingmen's districts that were shelled by Chancellor Dollfuss' troops last February would be glad to hear of his assassination but—that is wrong.

A cruise through the Socialist quarter where government guns belched their whining, screeching, death-laden salvoes in February showed considerable sympathy for Dollfuss today.

People who fought the little Chancellor with machine-guns and rifles and stones seem to have forgotten the February days.

Floridsdorf, where the Dollfuss government turned the guns from an armored train upon the workingmen's homes, was quiet and brooding today.

Karl Marxhof, where huge holes were torn in the walls by Dollfuss' shells, was also quiet, but Goethehof disclosed the paradoxical picture of an 80-year-old woman, whose apartment was wrecked by shells last February, lamenting the terrible death that had befallen the man who ordered the firing.

Asked what she thought about the murder of Dollfuss she paused, cast a furtive look about the room and then answered:

"Last February we planned a terrible revenge against Dollfuss. But now—that was tough that der kleine arme kerl (poor little fellow) must go that way."

Troops Examine U. S. Tourists In Italy

ROME, July 27.—(AP.)—American tourists arriving today from Austria reported their passports were examined by military officers at the Italian frontier.

Trains arrived in Rome on the average of four hours late. Tourists said the delay was in Austria.

At the frontier they noticed a big display of military force, but reported their trains were not held up.

Dollfuss Killers Reported Hanged Without Trial

VIENNA, July 27.—(AP.)—Unverified reports circulated today saying that eight of the Nazis who participated in the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss Wednesday have been killed without trial and that 30 more will be hanged this afternoon.

The reports brought this announcement from the official Austrian news agency:

"We have no information of any execution of the Nazi putschists."

Catholic storm troopers have begun an anti-Nazi campaign among the shopkeepers of Vienna. The windows of shops whose owners were known as Nazis were plastered with stickers reading:

"A member of the party of chancellor murderers."

Several shopkeepers who removed the stickers were compelled to replace them.

UDINE, Italy, July 27.—All roads in the Italian Alps today were crowded with Alpine troops, mobilized by the Italian government as a precaution against possible developments in Austria.

War songs rang out as 50,000 men took up positions which they will maintain until normal conditions are restored in Austria.

The Italian army moved quickly along the mountain roads, the soldiers equipped with alpenstocks, wearing hobnailed boots and carrying their climbing kits. They were a picturesque sight in their distinctive uniforms and their famous Alpine feathered helmets.

The first mechanized division, including 2,000 men with tanks, armored cars, light and heavy artillery of types and shapes hitherto unseen in combat, was making its way to various positions along the Austrian frontier.

War Buddie Declared Dollfuss Assassin

International News Service.

VIENNA, July 27.—The government charged today the brutal assassination of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss to a man who had been his wartime companion in arms in the "Kaiserjaeger," crack regiment of his imperial majesty, Franz Joseph.

The man's name as revealed by the government is Otto Panetta, 36. Sixteen years after the World War he was still a soldier until he was discharged several months ago for Nazi propagandizing within the army.

Panetta was one of the first among the 144 Nazis in the uniform of the Austrian army who entered and took possession of the chancellery on the Ballhausplatz on Wednesday.

The government will charge, in a court-martial starting Monday, that it was he who shot Dollfuss and then stood guard with others for several hours refusing to allow a doctor to attend the doughty little chancellor while he slowly bled to death.

The government also revealed today that instead of gendarmes dressed in the uniforms of the fourth regiment of the regular army who invaded the chancellery, 100 of the 144 were regular army soldiers. On Wednesday the government had announced that the men had disguised themselves with stolen uniforms.

MARKET SLUMP PROBE DENIED

International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 27.—The New York Stock Exchange is planning no investigation into the "war rumors" which accompanied yesterday's panicky break in the stock and bond markets, despite the request of Ferdinand Pecora, member of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

This was the information given out in official quarters today.

Meanwhile the market nervousness of yesterday disappeared and prices recovered part of their losses. Many issues gained $1 to $3 a share.

Pecora in Washington, where the members of the commission watched with concern the melting away of security values, expressed "confidence" that the exchange would launch an investigation. At the same time, he assailed the rumor-spreading and its effect on prices.

Since the new law does not go formally into effect until October 1, Pecora said the commission found itself powerless to probe the situation at this time.

Japan Bans Politics From Naval Parleys

TOKIO, July 27.—(AP.)—Japan has no desire to participate in the 1935 naval conference unless political issues are excluded, a foreign office spokesman asserted today.

The official reiterated the Japanese statement of Wednesday, announcing that the United States and Great Britain had agreed to exclude political issues from the conference. Washington dispatches saying American officials were ignorant of any such agreement emitted his declaration.

NAZIS RETREAT AFTER 12-HOUR BATTLE

LEOBEN, STYRIA, Austria, July 27.—(AP.)—The story of a 12-hour battle in which "men were mowed down like pigeons" as Nazis and government troops fought for possession of Leoben was told today.

The fighting occurred yesterday, but the threat of renewed attacks brought heavy Heimwehr (home guard) reinforcements here this morning. Officials said many Nazis, all armed, had escaped into the mountains when the Heimwehr finally won the fight for the city, and that they probably will attempt to return in force.

Complete figures on the dead and wounded in the savage fighting are unavailable.

One child and one woman were among the dead townspeople. An army officer said eight soldiers were slain and a Heimwehr chief gave the same number lost among his men. The Nazi dead is unestimated. An officer said:

"Soldiers were mowed down like pigeons."

SOLDIERS AMBUSHED

One group fell into an ambush at 11 a. m. yesterday when crossing a bridge into the city's border. The Nazis, however, shot at legs, not to kill.

All hospitals here and in neighboring villages are jammed. Many bullet marks can be seen on buildings. Terror was written on the faces of townspeople.

Nazis was in control of Leoben Thursday morning. When the army and Heimwehr advanced, some of the Nazis remained and others took positions on four wooded hills which dominate the city.

Artillery fire was directed against one of these hills behind a stone quarry.

The length of the battle, as active as the sieges of Vienna during the February civil war, was due to the fact government forces, while in the majority, had to fight Nazis within the city and attack the four hills as well.

One group of Nazis fired from a church tower which was riddled by government bullets.

FIRE FROM HOUSES

Other Nazis fired from houses in which they took cover.

A heavy loss of life occurred when Heimwehr were repulsed in an attempt to storm a hill overlooking the Goesser brewery, the largest in Austria.

Two other hills on which there was fighting overlook Donnawitz, where iron ore from the nearby mountains is refined. (Access to these iron mountains furnish one of the chief reasons for Germany's desire for an Austrian union.)

The general staff of the Nazis made headquarters in an outlying building at Leoben. The building was damaged heavily by the firing.

Nerves of the inhabitants were so shattered by the 12-hour battle that few slept last last. One citizen said:

"We live, that's all."

FLEEING REBELS DROP GUNS

GRAZ, Austria, July 27.—(AP.)—The first outsider entering Ratgersburg, on the Jugo-Slavian border, where a 24-hour siege ended yesterday, today described it as a tragic-comedy.

An Austrian who gave the Associated Press an eye-witness account entered the town before the government army marched in. He said:

"Fifteen heimwehr men (home guards) had already entered independently but neither they nor Nazis holding the city used arms. Streets were barricaded with wagons and miscellaneous junk.

"The Nazis had given a defiant answer to one ultimatum but late in the afternoon suddenly lost their nerve.

"As they ran over the broad stone bridge leading into Jugo-Slavia many dropped rifles and machine guns into the river. Some of them tore off their Nazi storm troop uniforms.

"The Ratgersburg affair is particularly tragic to any Austrian, as Jugo-Slavs across the river could watch us fighting among ourselves. After the World War they captured Ratgersburg and civilians helped the Austrian army drive them out.

"Then yesterday Jugo-Slavs saw an Austrian army take the town from its inhabitants."

Austrians Wounded Fleeing to Germany

PASSAU, Germany, July 27.—(INS.)—Austrian fugitives, trying to reach the German border near Kollerschlag, were fired upon today by Heimwehr troops.

Eight of the fugitives, some of whom were wounded, succeeded in crossing the border, carrying with them three Austrian customs officials they kidnaped when the customs men tried to intercept them.

League Sees Danger In Italy's Maneuver

GENEVA, July 27.—(INS.)—Officials of the League of Nations secretariat today expressed themselves as "very much disturbed" over the massing of Italian troops on the Austrian fontier.

They took the view that such a concentration might easily lead to dangerous incidents.

AUSTRIA SWEPT BY ANARCHY, MANY DIE

der skirmishes, hunger riots and —finally—peace moves.

The government, headed by the Fascist, Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, claimed it was rapidly gaining the upper hand in the chief trouble zone, and especially in Styria where an official communique declared the Nazi rebellion was completely crushed. But even official accounts said bitter fighting was continuing in Carinthia, along the Italian border.

INVASION ATTEMPTED

It was officially confirmed that Austrian legionaries from Bavaria attempted to invade Austria.

An official death list placed the number killed since the beginning of the fighting Thursday at upward of 400, with thousands wounded.

These wounded include many federal soldiers whom the Nazis deliberately shot in the legs. The Nazis still hoped that the army would go over to them.

An ominous feature of the situation is the fact that the highest Nazi leaders themselves no longer seem to be in control of their troops in the provinces.

An Associated Press correspondent talked to two of the highest ranking Nazis on Austrian soil this morning and found that they were considerably in the dark as to the military actions of their supporters in Carinthia, Styria and Salzburg provinces.

HOPES FOR PEACE

One leader said:

"We hope that Chancellor Hitler's appointment of von Papen as minister to Vienna will contribute to the cessation of hostilities.

"Hitler undoubtedly is sincerely desirous to co-operate in restoring peace here. The difficulty naturally is to reach the ears of the fighters in time.

"The Nazis in the provinces are supremely skeptical of all radio announcements or newspaper communiques from the Vienna government. If enough of them hear the von Papen news over the German radio, there is a chance of suspending military action in time. But time presses."

RADIO PLEA IGNORED

The news from Styria confirmed this leader's remarks in connection with the skepticism of the provincial Nazis. An Associated Press correspondent who questioned the inhabitants in Leoben, where the recent fighting was most fierce, found great skepticism. Leoben and other Styrian towns heard the news of von Papen's appointment only through the Vienna government radio.

A Leoben merchant observed caustically:

"Von Papen cannot stop the taxes which, after the fighting, will ruin everybody."

BATTLE RAGING

A battle was under way for possession of Hsiakyted village, a town barely half an hour's journey from the border along which Italy has concentrated 48,000 troops and many airplanes.

A Nazi victory was reported early today in the occupation of Goisern, a town in upper Austria not far from Salzburg.

This, and other reports, indicate that the revolt is spreading.

REVOLT SPREADING

The government is moving energetically to put down the Nazi uprising. Troops are reported en route to the Murgtal Valley. The Fascist regime headed by Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, successor to the slain Dollfuss, appears, however, to be having its hands full as the revolt spreads. Until late yesterday the uprising had been confined principally to the Province of Styria.

Communication with many of the provinces has been cut off, making it impossible to compile any accurate figures on the number of casualties in the fighting between government forces and the Nazis. Estimates believed conservative are that at least 300 persons have been killed.

Many farmers are enlisting under the banner of revolt, some reports say.

There has been fighting near Styvit. The government expected to retake the town today. Troops also have been massed for an assault on Feldkirch.

VICTORIES CLAIMED

The government claims important victories elsewhere on the Carinthian front. Nazis in the upper Drau Valley, according to government statements, have been routed.

Nazis, using a secret radio station, broadcast an appeal to all their supporters to join in overthrowing the government.

Artillery has been used by the government units in some sections. Mostly the troops are employing machine guns and hand grenades. The latter were used effectively.

A Heimwehr road patrol man laughed scornfully and incredulously when informed about von Papen. A favorable reaction was encountered, however, at Bruckonmur and also in Kallwang. In the latter town, a government employe said:

"Von Papen means better relations with Germany, which means increased exports, which means our boys will work and cease their foolishness."

Austrian government officials were cautiously hopeful that von Papen may bring peace with him to Vienna. However, the chancellery, up until noon, had not been informed officially of either von Papen's appointment or when he could be expected in Vienna.

OFFICIALS IN DARK

An official said:

"All we know is what we read in the papers."

The peace possibilities in the widest possible distribution of the letter to von Papen was, however, immediately seized upon by the von Starhemberg government which dispatched a squadron of propaganda airplanes to the trouble zone with instructions to scatter copies of the letter wherever military action is seen.

Privately, some government officials expressed fear that Hitler would not be able to influence the rebellious Nazis. Otherwise, they added, how could Austrian Legionaries, even in small detachments, be permitted to invade Austria from Bavaria. An official communique on the subject had come into Austria at Kollerschaid "but were driven back into Germany, by the gendarmerie."

Also contributing to the confusion were bridge dynamiting, interrupting traffic and Socialist and Communist leaflets inciting left radicals to wait an opportune moment to "crush all Fascism."

REBELLION URGED

A handbill circulated by the central committee of Revolutionary Socialists Says:

"What happened in Austria July 25 essentially resembled the June 30 event in Germany. In both cases, Fascists murdered Fascists. Here, as well as there, it means the beginning of the end of the Fascist domination.

"Our hour approaches! Be ready for action!"

A secretly circulated communique from Socialist headquarters says:

"Every unbiased observer in Austria must admit the death of Dollfuss was received by the masses with undisguised joy as the death of a pirate and murderer of liberty who scarcely a day previous had caused a young workingman to be hanged."

From the provinces came accounts of the fighting there. A dispatch from Leoben said a Nazi clergyman was killed in last night's battle for the possession of that city. He was occupying a rifle post on the steeple of his own church when he was struck by a government bullet.

A greusome tragedy was enacted at Kollerschlag when, at 3 a. m., the leader of a group of Austrian Nazi legionaries arrived from Bavaria and tried to throw his arms around the inspector of gendarmerie, crying:

"Why, we are friends."

INSPECTOR SHOT

The inspector attempted to push the legionaire away, but the latter drew his knife and stabbed the police officer in the abdomen. The inspector retaliated with six shots, but was killed by a bullet through the heart.

In the firing which ensued, the son of a Kollerschlag restaurant keeper, who recently joined the legionaires, was killed in the act of hurling a hand grenade against his own father's house.

The legionaires withdrew across the German frontier, taking with them eight Austrian prisoners.

Four legionaires and the gendarmerie inspector were killed and two legionaires were captured during the skirmish at Kollerschlag.

From Salzburg came word that a new battle between the Nazis and government forces had broken out this morning for the possession of the Leug Pass, which controls the traffic between Salzburg and upper Austria.

Large forces were said to be engaged.

Russian Writers See More Grief For Austria

MOSCOW, July 27.—(INS.)—That Austria's troubles are not yet over and the nation faces catastrophe was the keynote today of comment in the Soviet press regarding this week's events in Vienna.

The events were characterized as a further demonstration before the world of the aims and methods of the Nazis. This, the Soviet press declared, is their chief importance. A special writer in Izvestia declared:

"Austria for months has been the arena for a constant armed struggle. Such events can culminate only in catastrophe."

HITLER BALKS NAZI RAID ON AUSTRIA; VON PAPEN ENVOY

stored. In other quarters it was believed that Von Papen was ordered bluntly to take the post of envoy to Austria.

FORCE HINTED

Particular significance was attached to participation of Von Blomberg in the Bayreuth conference. It was reported persistently that had Hitler, on his fleeting visit here, been unable to prevent the march of the Austrian Legion toward Vienna, the Reichswehr would have been called out to stop it.

Hitler was reported to be back at Bayreuth. An official communique issued there said he had been absent only a few hours.

Hitler Names Von Papen Minister to Austria

BERLIN, July 27.—(AP.)—Chancellor Hitler named the Conservative vice chancellor, Franz Von Papen, to become Minister to Austria today in what was regarded as an astute move to assure the world Germany's attitude towards Austria is everything that can be desired.

The propaganda ministry announced that Von Papen, now in Switzerland, had accepted the appointment. He has long been a storm center of the Nazi government because of his sharp criticism.

In keeping with custom the appointment was formally framed as a request to President Von Hindenburg, who has yet to reply with his necessary consent. Approval of the President was taken for granted, however, government circles assuming his opinion had been asked beforehand.

VICTORY FOR HITLER

Should Von Papen go to Vienna, Hitler would achieve the long-sought wish to have Von Papen out of the cabinet. The Austrian post became vacant with the summary withdrawal from Vienna of Kurth Reith, following the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss.

Von Papen, who has dared to criticize the Nazi regime, is at present Saar commissioner.

His appointment, it was believed, would be highly agreeable to other foreign powers.

Hitler's recognition of this was seen in his expressed wish in the letter to Hindenburg to "relax the general situation" in Europe, especially as regards Germany and Austria.

The move likely will result in the appointment of Herman Wilhelm Goering, Hitler's right hand man in the June 30 revolt and Premier of Prussia, to the vice chancellory. Many believed Von Papen's appointment would not be temporary, as Hitler says.

Reports that Hitler had definitely intervened and disrupted plans of Austrian Nazi sympathizers in Munich was interpreted as further evidence of how aware the Chancellor is of the European political situation, which would make intervention in Austria by Germany a most serious matter.

This awareness also can be detected among the German citizenry. There is a definite belief here that Mussolini, for example, will permit no tampering with Austria.

Hitler's letter to von Papen, which he made public, said:

"My Esteemed Herr von Papen:

"Following events in Vienna I have been forced to suggest to the Reich President the removal of German Ambassador to Vienna Rieth, who on demand of the Austrian minister or upon the suggestion of Austrian insurgents, readily gave his consent to an arrangement of those two parties respecting the safeguard and retreat of the insurgents from Germany without having asked or received the consent of the German government.

BLAME DENIED

"The assassination of the Austrian Chancellor, which is highly condemned and regretted by the government, has still more aggravated the already unstable political situation in Europe, although it is not our fault.

"Therefore, it is my wish if possible to do my part to relieve the general situation and particularly to see our relations with the German Austrian state, which have been tense for a long time, conducted again into normal and friendly channels.

"For these reasons I ask you, my esteemed Herr von Papen, to undertake this difficult task, particularly as you possessed and do possess my unlimited confidence since our co-operation in the cabinet.

"I have therefore suggested to the Reich president that you be appointed German ambassador to Vienna in a special temporary mission and that you be relieved of your part in the cabinet and disengaged from your post as Saar commissioner. In your new position you will be directly subordinate to me.

"Thanking you once again for all you did to bring together the government of national insurrection and all you have done since that time together with us for Germany, I am, yours truly,

"ADOLF HITLER."

GERMANY 'ACQUITTED'

An official communique said today that strict investigations "established the fact that in no case has any German official been guilty of having, directly or indirectly, anything to do with the happenings in Austria."

It further emphasized Germany's determination to show the outside world an attitude of complete detachment toward Austria. All roads leading to Austria were immediately barred when news of the putsch was received, the communique added, and Austrians encamped in Germany were strictly forbidden to leave their quarters.

The only exception, the communique continued, was that Theodore Habicht, responsible for Austrian news over the Munich radio station, "through a lack of proper control permitted Austrian reports to go out that might have produced a different impression. Therefore, Habicht has been removed from his post of 'inspector.'"

BORDER CONTROLLED

The opening of the Austro-German frontier after a 24-hour closure was represented in official circles as showing that the border control is "sufficient to prevent any illegal movement or untoward happenings."

Foreign comment on the situation as it affects Germany is being closely watched.

Fascist and Italian newspapers, which sounded an alarm about "the German menace" to the independence of Austria, were sharply taken to task by the Deutsche Algiemeine Zeitung, which said:

"These allegations are an insult to Germany, besides causing dangerous disquiet to the Italian people."

Rome Reserves Verdict On Von Papen Move

ROME, July 27.—(AP.)—The news that Chancellor Hitler had requested Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen to go to Vienna was received in Rome with intense interest today.

It was felt that the choice of von Papen was a happy selection, but also that his mission could have an extremely grave effect, depending upon its character.

Any attempt to bring the Austrian government into close cooperation with the Hitler regime would be viewed by Italy with the greatest alarm.

If, however, von Papen's mission turns out to be for the purpose of making explanations or giving guarantees that German help will be denied to Austrian Nazis, then it was believed that it may straighten out the present complicated situation.

Von Papen 'Meddler,' View of Paris

PARIS, July 27.—(INS.)—The French official reaction to Chancellor Hitler's appointment of Vice Chancellor Von Papen as special German minister to Austria was decidedly unfavorable today.

Von Papen's appointment, it was said in governmental quarters, will complicate instead of clarify the situation. He is regarded as a persistent meddler. Officials pointing to his record at Washington which forced the United States to expel him, and it is believed here he will work for union of Austria with Germany.

Another view is that Hitler is sending Von Papen to the Vienna post to get rid of him.

Von Papen Appointment 'Surprise' to London

LONDON, July 27.—(AP.)—Chancellor Hitler's appointment of Vice Chancellor Von Papen as ambassador to Vienna came as a dramatic surprise to London early today and startled several newspapers into rushing out special editions.

"What does it mean?" was the first comment in press circles, but the hour was too late for any published guess at the answer to the question.

Unofficial speculation ranged between possibilities that it was a move to extend German influence to Austria or, on the contrary, to extend the olive branch and remove suspicions of Germany's complicity in the Austrian Nazi plot.

Bridge Blast Holds Carinthia Tourists

LEOBEN, Austria, July 27.—(AP.)—The dynamiting of a railroad bridge at Judenburg detained a number of tourists in the province of Carinthia.

They were being taken to Vienna by automobile buses, three loads of frightened travelers passing through here today to get out of the fighting zone.

PARIS FRIENDLY TO RETURN OF HAPSBURGS

By MEYER HANDLER
International News Service.

PARIS, July 27.—France would look with a kindly eye upon the restoration of the Hapsburgs if it should come to pass as a fortification of Austrian independence a high French official told International News Service today.

It is generally admitted by French political observers that Dollfuss' political successors may be too weak to preserve the regime which was founded on his personality. The political foundations on which the Dollfuss regime was based were too restricted as French observers see it.

With this in mind French politicians are raising the question of the restoration of the Hapsburgs. Otto, who would become emperor, is living in exile in Belgium with his mother, the former Empress Zita.

STABILIZING FORCE

Many high in the government of France have long been sympathetic to the Hapsburg cause despite the historic rivalry between France and the Hapsburgs.

Whatever handicaps the Hapsburgs presented, this official pointed out, in the many centuries of their rule they represented one of the greatest political stabilizing forces in Europe. Their 800 years of political experience had made the Hapsburgs past masters of preserving internal peace in their polyglot empire, which today is split up into Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Hungary, much of Jugo-Slavia and parts of Poland and Rumania.

Until the World War these countries included within the Hapsburg empire were a successful economic unit without artificial frontiers and trade barriers. These countries, now divided, are economically bankrupt and politically impotent.

SPOILS OF WAR

Nationalism began asserting itself in the Hapsburg empire early in the nineteenth century because of ideas spread by the French revolution and it finally disrupted the empire during the World War.

While France might not impose obstacles to the restoration of the Hapsburgs, her Little Entente allies, who formerly were part of the Hapsburg empire or who took great parts of it as the spoils of war, have many times resolved to employ armed force against restoration.

FRANCE FEARS U. S. REACTION

PARIS, July 27.—(AP.)—The French foreign office said today war is "impossible" as an immediate result of Chancellor Dollfuss' assassination.

Peace, instead, it was said, was strengthened by the "failure" of Austrian Nazis and world wide disapproval of the German campaign against the little dictator.

Hitler was described by other officials as suffering a "striking defeat."

His recall of Minister Rieth from Vienna and disavowal of Theodore Habicht, Austrian Nazi leader in Germany, were cited as evidence that Hitler realizes his policy is "disastrous."

The war scare alarmed the government particularly because of its possible effect in the United States. Officials explained:

"They are tired of our troubles and we do not want people saying the Franco-German situation is bringing another war."

Officials said neither France, Great Britain nor Italy was worried, only "shocked."

France to Prohibit Red Demonstrations

PARIS, July 27.—(INS.)—Because of the critical European situation, the ministery of the interior issued a proclamation today forbidding Socialist and Communist demonstrations scheduled for August 1.

Italy Would Make 'Switzerland' Of Austria

PARIS, July 27.—(INS.)—Italy has approached the French foreign office with a proposal to make a second Switzerland out of Austria.

After assuring Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, that the concentration of Italian troops on the Austrian frontier was purely a precautionary move amid that Italy has no designs upon Austrian territory, The Italian foreign office has outlined a project it believes will insure the peace of Central Europe for some time to come.

The proposal is that France, Italy and Czecho-Slovakia should guarantee the neutrality of Austria, with the moral support of Great Britain.

EARLE WARNS OF WAR DANGER

PHILADELPHIA, July 27.—(AP.)—The "most bloody war in the world's history" is predicted by George H. Earle, former United States minister to Austria, as a result of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss' assassination unless "national ambitions are shelved in all Europe."

Austria "would be a veritable abyss of destruction to the Hitler government in Germany or any other unfriendly power that invaded the domain of the dead chancellor," Earle warned in a radio address. He said:

"Italy and France, in my opinion, would never tolerate the Nazi movement in Austria. It would be fatal for impoverished and torn Germany should its present Hitler leadership attempt to force its half-armed and unprepared citizens into a war with its neighboring nations.

"Dollfuss is gone, but Mussolini still lives. The Italian dictator's massing of troops on Austria's border isn't a mere gesture. It's a stop signal to the Nazis."

DOLLFUSS BODY LIES IN STATE

VIENNA, July 27.—(AP.)—The body of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss—whose life all the armed forces of the state failed to preserve—was born through Ringstrasse yesterday to the City Hall.

The municipal building is a structure which played a significant part in the Chancellor's life. From it he ejected the Socialist municipal government last February, and many who watched the procession yesterday recalled the warning of the Socialists at that time:

"Touch our City Hall and you touch off an automatic civil war."

The Chancellor's body will lie in state at the City Hall until the funeral, tentatively set for tomorrow afternoon. In official quarters here nothing was known of the reported intention of Premier Mussolini to attend the funeral.

Two German Spies Arrested by French

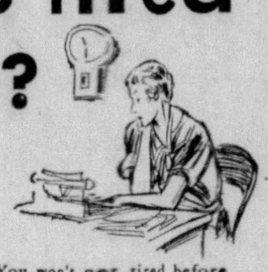
METZ, July 27. — (INS.) — French secret police today made two more arrests in their efforts to break up a gang of spies, declared to be working in the interests of Germany.

The two alleged spies are said to have confessed that they had been specially assigned to report on the new French fortifications around the town of Sarreguemines.

Swiss Advance Army Maneuvers

GENEVA, July 27.— (AP.)— Diplomatic circles reported today that the annual maneuvers of the First Division of the Swiss army will be advanced two weeks, particularly as the result of the recent seizure on Lake Constance of explosives being smuggled from Germany to Austria.

Are You Tired by 11:30?



If you begin to get fagged by 11:30—blame your breakfast! Either you didn't give your body enough nourishment, or you didn't give it the right kind.

You're smart enough to give your automobile the right kind of gasoline and oil—why not give your body the right food?

HERVEY ALLEN TO WIN AWARD FROM VETS

Hervey Allen, author, soldier and globe trotter, has been chosen to receive the certificate of merit to be awarded to a veteran of the 28th Division at its reunion in Erie next month.

According to Maj. John H. Shenkel, national president of the division's society, the honor award is being instituted this year and will be conferred annually on the member of the organization who has most distinguished himself in his profession, science or art.

Allen served as a first lieutenant in the 111th Infantry of the division during the World War and was wounded and gassed at Fisme.

ON MEXICAN BORDER

He also was in the Mexican border campaign with the old 18th Regiment.

Maj. Shenkel said the distinguished Pittsburgher, when here last month, agreed to attend the reunion August 16, 17 and 18.

Other events scheduled for the three-day meeting, Maj. Shenkel said, include a memorial service, boat rides, golf tournaments, shooting matches, a military ball and a parade in which the division will join forces with those of the American Legion which will hold its state convention in Erie on the same dates.

80TH VETS TO MEET

Pittsburgh members of the 80th Division Veterans' Association are also planning a reunion to be held at Conneaut Lake Park August 16 to 19. Christ C. Kramer, national secretary of the association, is general chairman of the event.

About 3,000 veterans from all parts of the United States are expected to attend. Col. E. G. Peyton, national commander of the organization, will fly to the reunion from his post at Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

NEWSMEN STILL DEFY JUDGE

DANVILLE, Ky., July 27.—(AP.)—The "endurance contest" between gray-haired Judge Jay W. Harlan, of Danville Police Court, and two young reporters, who have pitted their own ideals against the dignity of his court, continued today without a sign of a letup.

The reporters, both 23, Jack Durham and Wesley Carty, refused last Saturday at a court of inquiry to say how they learned in advance that Representative J. Sterling Towles was to be hanged in effigy July 19 in the courthouse yard for voting for the state sales tax.

Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday Judge Harlan reconvened his court of inquiry and asked the youngsters again, and each time they refused. The first day he fined them $10 each. Next day he gave them three hours in jail, the next day another three, and yesterday he made it six hours and tacked on fines of $3 each.

Each sentence was for contempt of court and under the law they may be so punished each time they refuse to answer. Judge Harlan said:

"If this is an endurance contest I can stand it."

'MA' BERGDOLL GUEST OF U. S.

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, July 27.—Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll, aged mother of America's most notorious wartime draft dodger, Grover C. Bergdoll, lives in her old home here today by grace of the United States government.

The big old-fashioned house where the silver-haired woman nourishes her hope that President Roosevelt will pardon her fugitive son and permit him to return from Germany, was declared to be government property in a decision handed down by Federal Judge William H. Kirkpatrick.

The house was seized by the alien property custodian in 1921 after Bergdoll had fled to Germany. Ten years later Mrs. Bergdoll filed a protest suit.

Judge Kirkpatrick ruled the property was legally seized.

But the fugitive's mother will be permitted to occupy the house without paying rent, it was announced by E. Waring Wilson, for the alien property custodian.

FOUR GUARDIANS FOR 5 BABIES TO BALK FAIR

TORONTO, July 27.—(AP.)—The protection of four guardians was given to the tiny Dionne quintuplets today to prevent their "exploitation" at the Chicago World's Fair, which was called "certain death."

Arthur W. Roebuck, attorney general of the Province of Ontario, obtained an order from District Court Judge Leask, appointing the guardians.

He charged a contract signed May 31 with Chicago promoters by Oliva Dionne, father of the 60-day-old quintuplets, contained "many catches."

Dr. Allan R. Dafoe, who has attended the five sisters since their birth, was named one guardian. The others are W. H. Alderson, of the Red Cross Emergency Committee; Kenneth Morrison, Callander merchant, and Oliver Dionne, grandfather of the famous children, who have outlived any previously known quintuplets. Roebuck said:

"Exploiters from American cities, who come to Canada to pull off a racket of this kind ned not expect the Attorney-General's office or the courts will sand idly by. The lives of children are of greater concern in Canada than profits of an exploitation undertaking, or, in other words, the profits of a vaudeville troupe who are playing with the lives of defenseless children.

"There is no law which would permit us to adequately deal with the American gentlemen, attempting the exploitation in question, so we must be satisfied with merely circumcenting their scheme."

Dionne, the contract specified, was to be paid $100 weekly until the infants were ready for exhibition, and $200 weekly with a per centage of receipts from the display at the Chicago World's Fair.

Physicians in charge of the quintuplets" were to decide whether they could be moved to Chicago "without possibility of injurious effect. Roebuck said Chicago promoters could "fire" Dr. Dafoe and engage a physician of their own choice.

STAY EXECUTION OF SHANK

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 27.—(AP.)—A writ has been issued staying the scheduled electrocution today of Mark H. Shank, lawyer, of Akron, O., convicted of a quadruple poison slaying. Associate Justice T. H. Humphreys signed the writ yesterday to permit the question of Shank's insanity to be heard by the Arkansas Supreme Court in September.

Deliberating for nearly an hour and then bowing his head in prayer, Justice Humphreys decided to grant an appeal from a lower court which had refused to compel Prison Supt. S. L. Todhunter to empanel a jury to determine whether Shank had become insane since his conviction last January.

Shank's wife, Geraldine, who has converted her belongings into cash to carry on the defense, received the news with an hysterical outburst, but the slayer himself heard it without emotion, going back to sleep immediately after he was told he would not die at sunrise.

FLAMES RAGE ON FRUIT LINER

NEW YORK, July 27.—(AP.)—Fire ranging in the hold of the United Fruit liner Atenas defied the combined efforts of the city's land and marine fire-fighting apparatus for more than five hours today before it was pronounced under control.

The flames drove the crew of 50, many of them in pajamas, to abandon the ship with all their belongings as she lay tied up to her Hudson River pier. For a time it was feared the fire might spread to nearby docks.

Water from three fire boats and a quantity of hose lines laid from nearby city hydrants were poured into the hold through hatches, companionways and portholes. So much water was pumped into her that the stern finally rested on the river bottom.

Peril in Approaching River Boats Cited

"Foolhardiness of swimmers, canoeists and pleasure boat operators" in venturing too close to river craft today resulted in a warning from Maj. W. D. Styer, district United States Army engineer.

Styer said navigators complained swimmers and canoeists jeopardized their lives and the lives of others by getting too close to tows or large vessels in operation. He urged civic bodies and athletic clubs to post warnings against such practices.

Pension Fund Fee Hearing Tuesday

Judge Samuel H. Gardner has set next Tuesday for a hearing on the petition of Attorney Archibald W. Powell for a fee of at least $12,500 for his services in handling the suit of the Allegheny County Employes' Retirement Fund to compel the County Commissioners to appropriate $75,000 to the fund. Officials of the fund are expected to protest against such a large fee.

M'NAIR'S FIGHT ON TOLL PERILS PWA PLAN

Allegheny County's $25,000,000 public works program was threatened with a new delay today.

If Mayor McNair carries out his threat to veto Council's condition consent to a toll plaza on the Liberty Tubes, the spending program will be delayed several weeks.

For Council is on vacation until August 27. And two of the necessary votes to override the veto are those of Councilmen Thomas M. Gallagher and John M. Huston, who sail for Europe tomorrow, not to return until early September.

FIGHTS TOLL PLAN

Thus the spending of the millions loaned by the government's Public Works Administration to the Allegheny County Authority was still in doubt.

Mayor McNair pledged a continued fight against the toll plan. He said:

"The federal government took $60,000,000 from us last year. That is enough of a burden to place upon us.

"When they go further and violate our age-long custom of raising revenue from community values instead of from the thrift and industry of our people, and put these tolls upon our means of communication, as the executive head of this city I will be heard in protest."

SOOST BACKS MAYOR

Councilman William J. Soost, the only member to vote against the consent ordinance yesterday, also attacked the tolls plan.

Soost said:

"The tolls plan would put us back to the ox-cart age."

Councilman P. J. McArdle was unable to attend the session, but he announced beforehand that he was opposed to the plan. Absent also was Councilman Charles Anderson, who is ill.

The other six members voted for the consent ordinance. They are Walter Demmler, Thomas J. Gallagher, John M. Huston, John J. Kane, William A. Magee and Robert Garland.

SPLIT ON DESIGN

The consent ordinance does not designate the ultimate design for the plaza to be erected at the south portals of the tunnels. It is based on a design to be agreed upon later by the City Planning Commission and the County Planning Commission.

That phraseology was made necessary because the two commissions were unable to reach an agreement on the design in time for Council's action yesterday.

Principal disagreement between the city and the county commissions centers around the question of removing street cars from the intersection at the south portals of the tubes.

The city commission is insisting that the street cars be removed through the construction of a ramp in West Liberty avenue, but the county commission's plan makes no provision for that.

Movie Exhibitors Urge Hays Resign

WASHINGTON, July 27.—(AP.)—The Allied States Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors said today that Will H. Hayes, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America should resign in the interests of the industry.

The statement said the leaders "of the boycott which is inflicting such severe punishment on the industry do not trust him and will not relax vigilance or resume a normal attitude toward the movies so long as he remains.'

Archbishop to Head Episcopalians Urged

NEW YORK, July 27.—(AP.)—A suggestion that the Protestant Episcopal church of the United States be headed by an archbishop made by the Rev. Dr. Frederic S. Fleming, rector of Trinity church, in his annual report.

The time has come, he said, for his church to "perfect and regularize the position of the spiritual leader."

Auto Hits Plug, Street Flooded

South Pacific avenue was flooded early today when an automobile, driven by Harry Logeman, 32, of 732 Wills street, hit a fire hydrant, breaking it off at the ground. Logeman was held by Penn avenue police on a charge of reckless driving, they reported.

Four Cars Derailed, Gasoline Spilled

Four freight cars were derailed last night in the Island avenue yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad. A tank car of gasoline developed a leak, but employes averted an explosion.

Married, Just the Same!

MR. AND MRS. HAROLD SHAFFER . . . NO PUBLIC CEREMONY

Young Mr. Shaffer, 21, and the former Miss Elsie Johnston, 16, Aliquippa High School junior, pictured last night as their proposed public wedding at Aliquippa's street fair was called off—because the bride's father wouldn't consent. Then they revealed that they had been married the night before! This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

ALREADY WED, DEFY BAN

Aliquippa's street fair was a great success last night—everything except the public wedding that was to have been held on Franklin avenue.

Just when everyone had gathered to watch Elsie Johnston, 16-year-old Aliquippa High School junior, become the bride of Harold Shaffer, 21, the fair committee had to announce the public ceremony would not take place.

Fred Johnston, father of the young girl, the committee explained, had refused to give his consent.

But there was a wedding!

Young Shaffer revealed he and his bride were already married. With a happy grin, he explained:

"We thought something like this might happen, so we got married the night before."

The young couple were married by the Rev. Joseph L. Grimm, pastor of the Glen Willard Presbyterian Church at Coraopolis.

Pauline Lord Loses Voice in Hollywood

LOS ANGELES, July 27.—(AP.)—Twenty-four hours after completing her first talking picture, Pauline Lord, Broadway actress, lost her voice because of an attack of laryngitis.

Miss Lord, who has signed for a second picture, expects to leave for New York as soon as her conditions permits.

Library Man Dies From Burns in Bed

Walter Eglistrom, 44, of Library road, Library, died in the South Side Hospital last night from burns suffered July 16, when a cigaret ignited his bed.

FLAMES PERIL PIONEER TOWN

GREENSBURG, July 27.—(AP.)—Fire last night threatened for a time to wipe out the quaint old village of New Alexandria, which celebrated its one hundredth anniversary a year ago.

Returning from the World's Fair in Chicago late yesterday afternoon, the family of Dr. J. D. Greaves placed their car in a private garage at the rear of the house. About three hours later members of the household discovered the garage was in flames.

Fire spread to a large barn nearby on the property of David Kull and the building, filled with crops, burned to the ground. Meanwhile, volunteer fire fighters, equipped only with chemicals, summoned aid from Greensburg and Blairsville. With the aid of the visiting companies the flames were halted, although buildings in the nearby business section, including the New Alexandria First National Bank, were scorched by the flames.

Damages were estimated at about $5,000.

'NUMBERS' RAID TRAPS 11 MEN

Eleven men, arrested when city detectives raided an alleged "Strip" numbers headquarters yesterday, were to be arraigned in Central Police Court today on charges of operating a lottery.

The sleuths, led by Capt. Harvey Clayton, surrounded and smashed in the front door of the building at 1237 Penn avenue. Six men who were on the first floor scattered as the police entered and three of them were captured by police after a chase.

Three others were arrested in the cellar where they hurried bricks at the raiders in an effort to escape. As the detectives were surrounding the place, Detective Thomas Morgan said that an automobile in which Herman Seigel, of Devilliers street, and Ben Serbin, of 1511 Penn avenue, attempted to run him down. They were arrested.

Those arrested said they were Max Stein, of 29 Perry street; Walter Schultz, of 1231 Penn avenue; Louis Rosenfield, of 2705 Tilbury street; Frank Maguire, of 1231 Penn avenue; James Costello, of 1243 Penn avenue; Robert Fisher, of 1511 Penn avenue; J. Moran, of 1237 Penn avenue, and Edward Taylor, of 1231 Penn avenue.

Elite of England Chase Hats at Royal Party

LONDON, July 27.—(AP.)—The sight of fashionably gowned women and correctly attired men chasing hats over the sun-scorched and unwatered lawns of Buckingham Palace enlivened yesterday's garden party, closing the London social season.

A strong wind blew across the palace grounds and scores of women saw their wide-brimmed hats go skimming. Puffing male escorts, who grasped their own silk toppers with both hands, chased the chapeaux of their feminine companions.

But each of the 9,000 persons attending, including almost 200 Americans, had a grand time.

It was Princess Elizabeth's first garden party and she enjoyed it hugely.

ASSAILS LEECH FARM PROBE

Charges of "white washing" in the investigation of conditions at the City Tuberculosis Hospital at Leech Farm had been hurled today by Mrs. Helen Ehrenfeld, one of the members of the committee appointed to conduct the probe.

Mrs. Ehrenfeld said that she could not conscientiously sign her name to the summary of the findings of the investigation made to Health Director Ray P. Moyer by the other members of the committee.

In a communication to Council yesterday, Mrs. Ehrenfeld asked for a hearing. She said:

"I can prove and substantiate every charge and complaint that was brought to Dr. Moyer's attention."

She charged that pressure was brought to bear on Leech Farm employes during the inquiry.

Her communication was filed for consideration when Council reconvenes on August 27.

CLEARS SOLDIER IN GIRL'S DEATH

SAN FRANCISCO, Friday, July 27.—(AP.)—Albert E. Boyer, 24, United States army private, questioned concerning his acquaintance with Miss Louise Jepperson, slain Ogden (Utah) girl, was exonerated of knowledge of her death by Captain of Police Inspectors Charles Dullea here last night.

Dullea said Boyer, who army authorities reported had been absent without leave from the Presidio here, claimed he formerly knew Miss Jepperson in Utah, but was not aware she was in San Francisco at the time she was killed in Golden Gate Park.

The soldier explained his absence from the Presidio, Capt. Dullea said, by announcing his marriage July 3. Boyer has been living with his bride at an apartment, Capt. Dullea said.

Investigation by police, Capt. Dullea said, disclosed that Boyer did not know Miss Jepperson was in San Francisco until he read about her slaying, of which Millard Hickman, marine engineer, was acquitted Tuesday.

ROOSEVELT GAY OVER GREETING IN HAWAII

International News Service.

HONOLULU, T. H., July 27. — Radiating pleasure at the magnificent reception accorded him by the entire 83,000 population of Honolulu, President Roosevelt looked forward to an inspection today of Pearl Harbor Naval Base, which was started when he was assistant secretary of the Navy.

Pearl Harbor is now the most important naval link of the United States in the Pacific and the Chief Executive is anxious for a first hand view of its defense possibilities.

The President slept late this morning, recuperating from a continuous round of fetes and receptions which started at 9 a. m. yesterday when he disembarked from he U. S. S. Houston. He attended a native feast as the guest of Gov. Joseph B. Poindexter and tasted his first mess of poi, Hawaiian pastelike food, which is eaten with the fingers.

Mr. Roosevelt derived keen pleasure from the honors heaped upon him by natives and was grateful for the visit of a group of Samoan warriors, led by a princess, who journeyed from Samoa to participate in the island welcome to the President.

Native dancing girls, dressed in bright colors, greeted the President at every stop en route to Schofield barracks, in the center of the Island of Oahu, 20 miles from Honolulu, where he reviewed 15,000 troops of the Hawaiian department despite heavy showers, which penetrated under the canopy of the reviewing stand.

He Invented It!

F. C. NAGLE

M'ADOO DIVORCE CRITIC FLAYED

LOS ANGELES, July 27.—(AP.)—Judge Frank C. Collier's criticism of the actions of the attorney representing Eleanor Wilson McAdoo in her recent 42-minute divorce from Senator William Gibbs McAdoo had brought a sweeping denunciation today from Attorney William H. Neblett, long an associate in the law offices of the Senator.

Neblett filed a notice of a motion to strike from the court files Judge Collier's remarks concerning the quick divorce. He charged Judge Collier had no authority to issue such a statement, which he described as "scandalous, libelous, unprivileged, spiteful, malicious" and an "unlawful attempt to use the files, records and processes of the court for publicity purposes."

Judge Collier had charged the actions of Attorney Henry Grivi in obtaining Mrs. McAdoo a divorce in record time last week were "contemptible if not contumacious." Neblett entered the case in behalf of McAdoo.

GUARD QUITTING MT. GRETNA

CAMP MUIR, MT. GRETNA, Pa., July 27. — (AP.) — Pennsylvania's National Guardsmen today begin breaking up what may be their last encampment on the old Mt. Gretna military reservation.

The guard units split for their two weeks stay this year, some campaigning here and others at the new 15,000 acre Indiantown Gap area 22 miles northward. Next year state officials hope all divisions will train together at Indiantown.

Use of the Mt. Gretna reservation as a site for a new state tuberculosis sanitarium has been discussed semi-officially.

Most of the guard units underwent final field inspection yesterday. Today regiments furthest from home will entrain. Camp closes tomorrow.

The first fatality of the training period yesterday took the life of Private Donald J. Whatford, of Franklin. He was killed in an automobile accident while returning to camp from an entertainment.

POSTAL SAVINGS FREE FROM TAX

Personal property taxes on postal savings will either be exonerated or refunds made, it was announced today by T. Ralph Barr, member of the tax revision board.

In a letter to other members of the board, Barr quoted an opinion of County Solicitor J. P. Fife, who ruled that postal savings were included in the scope of the Einstein law, which exempted savings and bank accounts from the tax.

No estimate of the amount of refunds to be given have been made.

Doesn't Have to Eat Hoard of Dog Food

OAKLAND, Cal., July 27.—(AP.)—A sheepish man returned three dozen cans of dog food to a store here today.

He had bought it in the rush to stock up before the general strike. The clerk who waited on him said she had tried to ask him if he wanted all that dog food, but he had turned on her and snapped: "Don't stop me—don't stop me." He admitted today he had no dog.

The Housing Committee of Weirton Steel Company Employes Representatives has announced the completion of plans for a housing program calling for the erection of 20 homes near Holiday's Cove, W. Va. The project will provide employment for 75 men.

According to James E. Thompson, chairman of the committee, construction will be speeded as a result of the assistance of J. C. Williams, president of the Weirton Steel Company. Williams, he said, agreed to assume the responsibility for financing the first six homes to be erected.

UTILITY PROFIT MOUNTS; RATE ISSUE REVIVED

The Philadelphia Company, principal target of attacks in City Council for lower rates and taxes on utilities, today reported an increase in earnings. Its subsidiary, Duquesne Light Company, reported a gain in total business but a slight decline in net earnings.

For the 12 months ended May 31, the Philadelphia Company reported consolidated net income of $8,029,863. This represented a gain over net income of $7,560,376 in the preceding 12 months. The increase reflected a gain in the gross volume of business which reached $46,441,217, in comparison with $44,681,950 in the preceding 12 month period.

The company controls practically all of Pittsburgh's utility business with the exception of part of the distribution of gas. Its subsidiaries, in addition to Duquesne Light, include Equitable Gas Company, Pittsburgh Railways Company, Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company and the Allegheny County Steam Heating Company.

Duquesne Light reported net income of $10,361,412 in comparison with $10,979,059 in the previous period. Gross business was $24,733,936 in comparison with $23,930,695.

Members of City Council yesterday called upon the Public Service Commission to report on the progress of negotiations for lower utility rates. It was indicated by councilmen that unless the commission can take up the question of Pittsburgh rates quickly, the city itself will institute proceedings for reduced charges.

Councilman John J. Kane pointed out that Pittsburgh is one of the few cities in which public utilities pay nothing for their use of city streets, in supporting his move for a utilities license tax.

R. B. HAYES' SON DIES AT 78

FREMONT, O., July 27.—(AP.)—Col. Webb C. Hayes, 78, only living son of the former President, Rutherford B. Hayes, died yesterday in a Marion sanitarium after more than a year's illness.

Soldier, industrialist, philanthropist and historian, Col. Hayes had a distinguished career until he retired several years ago. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Mary Miller Hayes, and one sister, Mrs. Fanny Hayes.

Funeral services probably will be held Monday in the ancestral home in Spiegel Grove state park here.

Col. Hayes was born in Cincinnati. He was secretary to his father while the former President was Governor of Ohio, and during his presidency. With Myron T. Herrick and others he organized the National Carbon Company. He entered the Spanish-American War as a major of cavalry and participated in the Philippine insurrection as a lieutenant colonel of infantry. He was awarded the congressional medal of honor. He also served on the staff of Maj. Gen. Chaffee, commanding the China relief expedition of 1900 and was regional commander of the A. E. F. in France and North Africa during the World War.

Dancer Seeks Son From Ambridge Man

BEAVER, Pa., July 27.—Wanda Senkovich, profesional dancer, of New York, will battle for the custody of her son, Robert, 14 months, in court here Saturday morning.

Her husband, Joseph Senkovich, Ambridge, has procured a writ of habeas corpus. Mrs. Senkovich has won two rounds in the marital battle. She had Senkovich held for court on a non-support charge and recovered her son, after she alleges Senkovich had taken the boy while she slept.

Contractor Blamed For Razing Order

Public Health Director Ray P. Moyer today blamed a contractor hired by the city for tearing down the wrong house in the city's slum clearance drive.

The mistake was called to the city's attention when Mrs. Roberta C. Markell, of Cleveland, owner of the property, sent a communication to Council yesterday. She said her property at 3006 Smallman street had been partially razed instead of another property in Mulberry way, which she also owned.

Lawyer Keeps Son From Death Quiz

PHILADELPHIA, July 27.—(AP.)—A father's refusal to present his son to answer charges in the death of Edward Burgess, Shamokin truck driver, has led police to search for the son.

Michael J. Conway, an attorney, appeared at the police station during questioning of three other men and told police his son, Edward, 23, would appear "at the proper time." Burgess' fatal injuries, police say, resulted from a fight after a birthday party.

SEEKS RECORD IN PARACHUTE JUMPING

'Garry' Out to Better 19 Successive Leaps in Sky

The world's endurance record for parachute jumping may be broken at Latrobe Airport Sunday as Capt. R. E. (Garry) Garrison, noted air performer with 2,500 leaps behind him, goes aloft at dawn.

The record Capt Garrison will seek to break is that of 19 successive jumps established July 15 by Otto Hoover, of Latrobe.

On the ground will be Mary Garrison, the parachute jumper's wife, who herself has jumped twice. She will help to repack his 'chutes for each descent.

Going up at 4:30 a. m. to get an early start and make possible a record of at least 20 successive jumps throughout the day, Capt. Garrison expects to show the crowd something in aerial efficiency, he said.

It will require about 12 hours to do the trick, he said. But most of that time will be consumed in repacking the two 'chutes. Each descent will only take from seven to eight minutes, from the time the plane takes off. Leaping from an altitude of 1,500 feet, the actual descent will take only about a minute, dropping at 1,000 feet per minute.

On delayed jumps, where the ripcord is not pulled until within 200 feet of the ground, the body reaches a velocity of 240 miles per hour. But in hanging up a world's record for endurance jumping the strain on nerves and shoulders is too great.

CAPT. AND MRS. GARRISON . . . HE'LL JUMP, SHE'LL PACK

He estimates that if he is able to make 24 successive jumps he will have sped through 36,000 feet of space—nearly seven miles.

Capt. Garrison began his career 17 years ago with the 118th Observation Balloon Corps of the Army, in France.

Two planes will be used—a challenger biplane and a Curtis-Robin high-wing monoplane. The pilots will be Bill Angel and Walter Hartman of Bettis Airport; Dave Patterson of Greensburg, and Charles Carroll, manager of Latrobe Airport.

All the food Capt Garrison will have during his "jumping Sunday" will be a sandwich. He said:

"You don't want to eat much when you're in the air all day jumping."

TRUCK STRIKE BRINGS MORE GUARDSMEN

MINNEAPOLIS, July 27.—(AP.)—Concentration of National Guard troops in downtown Minneapolis because of the truck drivers strike, was increased by the moving in of an especially trained "shock" troop battalion today.

Quietness prevailed the city as the Third Battalion of the 206th Infantry entered the downtown district with a heavy complement of arms, including gas guns, field machine guns, and automatic rifles. The men, most of them veterens with war experience were especially trained in dispersing crowds.

Military rule of the city, decreed yesterday by Gov. Olson, today brought guardsmen to every corner of the heart of the downtown district. They acted on instructions to prevent parking within a 76-block area except to discharge passengers, and to forbid the gathering of crowds. They wore steel helmets and carried rifles with fixed bayonets.

The total strength of the guard within the city approximated 1,200. Some 2,800 more men still remained at the fair grounds, just outside the city limits, ready for call. Whether this reserve force would be demobilized and sent home, depended on developments in the next few days.

Federal mediators, the Rev. Francis Haas and E. H. Dunnigan, prepared a new peace plan they expected to complete today and the Employers' Advisory Committee again publicly blamed Communists for the strike. All efforts to settle the controversy so far have failed.

REPUBLIC ENDS UNION FEUD

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Settlement of differences between the Republic Steel Corporation, of Warren, O., and its employes, was assured today with the announcement by the National Steel Labor Board that an accord had been reached.

The trouble existed between the steel corporation and the Trumbull Lodge of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers and the De Forest Lodge of steel workers at Niles, O.

The settlement is expected by the board to apply to a similar situation existing between the company's branch at Moline, Ill., and the Sylvan Lodge of steel workers.

The accord is the first labor dispute to be settled by the National Steel Labor Board since its inception by President Roosevelt a month ago.

KOHLER STRIKE LINE SMASHED

KOHLER, Wis., July 27.—(AP.)—Seventl-five special deputy marshalls of Kohler Villiage today smashed the picket lines beseig-Company, and cleaned out field headquarters of the strikers.

The pickets offered little resistance, most of them fleeing before the mass advance of the deputies. One was struck on the head.

Shacks of the pickets threw together on property adjoining the plant were demolished. The deputies reported seizure of many clubs, slingshots and railroad spikes. Barricades at the gate to the pottern plant were torn down.

Rocks and Shot Fly In Gasoline Strike

PHILADELPHIA, July 27.—(AP.)—Two houses and two gasoline filling stations were damaged today by rocks which police said they suspect were hurled by striking employes of the Gulf Refining Company.

William Zinck, chief of the company's police, fired a shotgun from a window of his home at an automobile after a brick crashed through the front door of his house.

DROUGHT MAY SCRAP LAW ON COTTON CUT

WASHINGTON, July 27.—(AP.)—Out of the dust and misery of the nation's worst drought two developments arose today:

1—There is a possibility that the Bankhead Act, involving compulsory reduction of the cotton crop, may be scrapped. The drought has been extending its killing reign into the South, notably Texas and Oklahoma, this has led officials to wonder whether the crop would not be reduced even lower than the 10,460,251 bales permitted under the Bankhead Act.

2—An enormous expansion of the government's cattle buying program is planned. Secretary Wallace declared, "We expect to buy at least 4,000,000 cattle and possibly 7,000,000." The government has already bought 1,500,000 to save them from death by thirst and starvation.

Wallace predicted the AAA's general effort to aid the farmer, or some similar plan, "will continue regardless of any change in administration—or there will be disaster again."

"Grotesque" was the way he described the saying that "the Lord is punishing farmers for reducing acreage." He said:

"If that is true, I wonder why the Almighty has not punished the factory owners, who through these years have stopped production the moment they could not longer make a profit."

The Weather Bureau said that from the Rocky Mountains to the Appalachians, more rivers have shrunk to abnormally low levels this month than in any other July since records began in 1859.

Efforts to persuade families in hardest hit sections to sell their land and move to better soil were said to be having some success. The word went out that several thousand acres in north central states have been optioned by the government for purchase when titles are clear. Officials disclaimed any desire to force families to move.

With the level of water in the ground dangerously low, officials of the geological survey said drilling more deep wells offered the only immediate solution of the water shortage.

KNIFE DELAYED IN BIRTH CASE

DENVER, July 27.—(AP.)—A Juvenile Court judge yesterday declared doctors should not hesitate to proceed with a birth control operation upon a 12-year-old child, but physicians declined to act because the judge failed to issue a formal court order.

The girl is in Denver General Hospital. Physicians said the birth of her expected child might result in her death or seriously impair her health. Judge Lerge said:

"The judge of the Juvenile Court has no authority to hear expert medical testimony or to make an order in this case.

"The doctors should not hesitate to proceed. There is no reason for them to fear action by the district attorney and already the city attorney has made clear the law under which the operation may be performed."

Dr. B. B. Jaffa, superintendent of the Denver General Hospital, said there is no immediate need for an operation and that he must be satisfied physicians will not be prosecuted in the event they operate and the child dies.

Oregon Judges Must Go Payless

SALEM, Ore., July 27.—(AP.)—It looks like a tough winter for the Oregon judiciary. The state emergency board has refused to allow $44,000 for salaries when it was asked to make up a deficit.

Circuit judges will be without checks for about three months and Supreme Court justices will find themselves short about five weeks' pay.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

Air Corps Irate at Foulois for Signing Baker Report

(Paul Mallon, whose signature usually appears over this dispatch, is on a brief vacation. During his absence the column will be composed of contributions from leading Washington correspondents.)

WASHINGTON, July 27.—The prevailing heat wave is nothing in the way of high temperature to the language which is being used by the rank and file of the air corps regarding Maj. Gen. Benjamin Foulois.

The occasion for this outburst of temper is the signing by the General of the report of the Baker board on aviation. General sentiment in the corps was for separation of their activities from the general staff of the War Department. They wanted to be completely out of control of the general staff.

But the Baker board report recommended no separation of the air force, and, since, Gen. Foulois gave his approval to this attitude by signing the report, the air corps feels that he sold it down the river.

On the other hand, Jimmy Doolittle's stand in filing a minority report contending for the freeing of the air corps from War Department domination has endeared him to the rank and file.

Also Bill Mitchell's blast condemning the report has increased his influence with the men, which was always very great.

As soon as the report was circulated in the War Department, before it was made public, they were in touch with Mitchell and urging him to take a crack at it. This he did very promptly, describing it as "just another whitewash" and "the greatest exhibition of ignorance that ever came out of the department."

He said the army chiefs did not know anything about aviation and did not want to know anything. The statement that this country was immune from attack by air by any fleet which would have to cross the sea was singled out for especially caustic treatment. According to Mitchell, an enemy air force could reach Alaska with comparative ease and from there strike terror into this country.

He said a force of enemy planes flying at 35,000 feet could reach New York from Alaska without being heard and with a load of nauseating gas, which one plane alone could carry, would be able to cause the evacuation of the city. This is what Mitchell believes, and the air corps applauds.

UNSTABLE EQUILIBRIUM

Advices received here from Germany are such as to give official circles less concern about the political than the economic situation there.

Foreign traders are insisting upon cash payments. This applies to the cotton supply. Two-thirds of it is not paid for and is being released only for cash.

It is said the big industrialists, who have all along backed Hitler and have used him for their purposes to get control of labor, are beginning to fear that the government control they invoked is getting out of hand.

Instead of being able to manage it for their own benefit, they see it slowly swallowing them up, so that soon the government will have taken over everything. This was not what they bargained for.

GROTESQUE

One of the absurdities of autocratic government action is the fixing of exchange values for the mark according to the pretense that Germany is on the gold standard. This is pure fiction, since the gold coverage is around 2 per cent, yet the worthless mark is set by fiat of the government at 39 cents in terms of United States dollars. With full gold coverage, its value was about 24 cents.

Not much business can be done between the two countries, except by barter, on such terms as that. American traders would hardly care for long to buy German goods at such a disadvantage in exchange, nor would they care to sell at such a discount, even if the mark had any backing.

In the light of the present state of affairs, it is almost amusing to look back to 1931, just before the moratorium was sought and arranged.

Then the whole financial world was trembling with apprehension and fright because the German gold reserve was about to go below 40 per cent. If that happened, it was predicted, the heavens would fall.

Now Germany has virtually no gold reserve, she has refused to pay interest on her debts, a small portion excepted, and she has all but repudiated them.

FOREST CLOSED WHEN DROUGHT SPREADS FIRE

International News Service.

KANE, Pa., July 27.—Because of extremely dry conditions, Allegheny National Forest, comprised of 400,000 acres of land in McKean, Warren, Forest and Elk counties, was closed today by R. M. Evans, regional forester of Washington.

Until rains relieved the parched conditions of the woodlands only employes of oil, gas, mineral and lumber companies will be permitted in the forests, Evans said.

To check the spread of fires, 14 of which have occurred in the past three days, members of the Civilian Conservation Corps and forest rangers have been posted at strategic points. Seven hundred of this group extinguished a blaze 100 feet from one of the largest sections of virgin hemlock in the east.

All fire towers in this region have been manned this week for the first time in history. Heretofore, the towers were occupied only during the spring and fall seasons.

INCREASED TAX SEEN IN BUYING OF BOOTLEG

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, July 27.—Patronize the bootlegger and increase taxes.

That, in effect, was the warning the State Liquor Control Board delivered to Pennsylvanians today in a statement commenting on a newspaper article relating to present-day bootlegging activities.

Admitting it was having a hard job battling bootleggers, the liquor board said:

"Those who deliberately buy and sell non-taxed liquor are bringing about a rise in the tax burden for policing, court trials and maintenance of prisoners in jails.

"If sufficient money for relief is not produced by the state stores because the public is evading the tax by buying bootleg liquor, then the necessary funds will have to be produced by other forms of taxation."

The liquor board has decided to get a look at the business places of applicants for retail licenses. Hereafter, applicants must submit pictures of both the interiors and exteriors of their places of business.

DENNY'S SWIM SPOILED BY CURIOUS

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1934, International News Serv.) International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, July 27.—If it hadn't been for autograph seekers Reginald Denny today might hold a new record for the three and one-eighth mile swim across Lake Arrowhead.

The English actor went to the resort last weekend laughing up his sleeve at his director, William Seiter. The pair had a substantial bet that Denny couldn't swim the lake in less than two hours. What Seiter didn't know is that the actor already holds the present record for the swim of one hour and 27 minutes.

With official A. A. U. timers on hand, and fellow members of "The Richest Girl in the World" troupe looking on, Denny entered the west side of the lake and began cleaving the water with a powerful breaststroke. There was a spanking breeze from the east, but the lar scarcely noticed it.

Unfortunately, it was Sunday and hundreds of cars had driven up from the city. When the swimmer was identified, there was a scramble for speedboats and the chugging outboards.

Soon Denny was surrounded by boats. They circled him again and again, and many came alongside, as their occupants urged the star to catch hold for a minute and sign his autograph.

By the time the exasperated Denny could reach the east side of the lake one hour and 53 minutes had passed. He won the wager by seven minutes, but was 26 minutes under his former record.

WINSOR M'CAY, CARTOONIST PEER, DIES

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 27.—Winsor McCay, widely-known cartoonist of the Hearst newspapers, died at his home in Sheepshead Bay, N. Y., yesterday, following a cerebral hemorrhage. He was 63 years old.

The celebrated artist had worked at his desk in the New York American office on Tuesday and had dined with a friend on Wednesday night, with no complaint of illness. He became ill yesterday morning. Later he collapsed, paralysis seized his right arm—the arm with which he had won fame—and shortly afterward he died.

At his bedside were the widow, Mrs. Maud Dufour McCay; his daughter, Mrs. Marian Moniz; his son, Robert W. McCay, and his son-in-law, Maj. Ray Moniz.

McCay was recognized by his fellow craftsmen as one among them virtually without peer. His distinction was built on unsurpassed technique, seemingly unlimited imagination, unsparing insistence on detail and inventive genius.

SUCCESS PHENOMENAL

He was born Winsor Zenis McCay, in Spring Lake, Mich., where his father was a lumberman.

In Chicago he found work with a company making crudely colored woodcuts for traveling melodramas and circuses.

His acquaintance with stage folk took him off into Ohio doing posters, and eventually led him to a job decorating the old Vine Street Museum in Cincinnati. Here his drawings on the facade of that temporary repository of freaks won him his first real reputation. Later the Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune engaged him for its art staff. On that paper, and later on the Cincinnati Enquirer, his work consisted largely of "covering" news events and illustrating them.

In 1902, he came to New York where his success was phenomenal. He found work on the old Telegram within a few days of his arrival. Within the next few years, on that paper and on the old Herald, he created in rapid succession such popular and well-remembered comic strips as "Dreams of a Rarebit Fiend," "Little Nemo in Slumberland," "Sammy Sneeze," "Hungry Henrietta," "Tales of Jungle Imps" and "Poor Jake."

SUCCESS ON STAGE

Five years after he arrived in New York he had established such fame as a humorist that he took on vaudeville as a sideline, and commanded $1,000 a week for working 20 minutes twice a day on the stage.

Shortly after this he began work on an animated cartoon, and he had one ready for showing in 1909.

In 1911, McCay first joined the Hearst newspapers, becoming a member of the staff of the Evening Journal. He remained there for several years, but later went with the New York Herald-Tribune to associate again with the characters he liked most, "Little Nemo," for the Herald had retained title to that name.

From the Herald-Tribune he went to the New York American and the Hearst newspapers, with which he remained until his death.

SENATOR KIRBY, WAR FOE, DIES

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 27.—(AP.)—William Fosgate Kirby, 67, one of the senators President Wilson called the "willful 12," who opposed entrance of the United States into the World War, died of heart disease tonight.

Judge Kirby, twice associate justice of the Arkansas Supreme Court and former junior senator from this state, contended the European conflict was "not America's war," when he opposed its declaration in 1917.

Possum Bite Proves Woman Mistaken

Minnie Moses, a Negro, is still looking for Sam, her pet possum, today. She reported her loss to South Side police yesterday, and revealed the identity of the man she believed had it.

Into the police station came the suspect, with a possum wrapped in a paper bag. When Minnie put her hand out to pet the suspect's pet, the animal bit her finger. Minnie left satisfied she was mistaken.

Court Upholds Rule Against N. S. Club

Refusal of a liquor license to the Independent Beneficial Association, 912 East street, rear, has been sustained by Judge M. A. Musmanno, after a hearing. It was shown that the club had suspended 10 years ago, and been inactive until they wished to resume as a licensed club.

Truck Hits Building, Plunges to Cellar

JOHNSTOWN, July 27.—(AP.)—A gaping hole in the sidewalk at the side of the Public Safety Building marks the narrow escape of a Pittsburgh truck driver from death or serious injury.

Nuncio Orsini, of 460 Pearl street, Pittsburgh, seeking to avoid a traffic barricade in a nearby alleyway, drove his four-ton truck over the sidewalk and it crashed through a flimsy glass and concrete structure to the underground police revolver range. Two derricks were required to lift the truck from the building basement.

TROLLEY HITS AUTO, 1 DEAD

A motorist was killed and 25 passengers were jostled last night when a Charleroi interurban street car smashed a touring car at the Library road crossing, near Library.

The victim, Alex Matzsko, 35, of Charleroi, driver of the automobile, died in Mercy Hospital shortly after he was hurried there by a passing truck.

The windows in the front of the car were shattered and the cab was otherwise damaged. The motorman, C. W. Lundy, escaped injury. The automobile was demolished.

The passengers were nearly thrown from their seats as the motorman applied his brakes to avoid the collision. According to the Pittsburgh Railways Company report, the crossing is protected by flashing red lights and a warning bell.

FEVER IN CIRCUS PROBED BY U. S.

International News Service.

DETROIT, July 27.—A federal health investigator was expected here from Washington to assist state and city health officials in an investigation of a typhoid epidemic which swept the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey's circus and placed 85 employes in hospitals for treatment.

Ten of the latest victims arrived here last night from Flint, Mich., where the show had gone after its performance here. Dr. Henry F. Vaughan, city health commissioner, said 60 of the employes definitely have the disease, while the remainder are undergoing observation. Some, he said, are in serious condition.

No attempt was made to close the circus, Dr. Vaughan said, because of the possibility that some of the employes would attempt to flee and thereby spread the typhoid germs over the country. The entire personnel is undergoing daily examinations.

"Ambulance Case," a tense drama with a hospital operating room for its setting, is presented over WCAE tonight at 7:15.

The dramatization, adapted from a Short Short Story appearing in the Saturday Sun-Telegraph, deals with the strange behavior of an interne during an operation.

The interne breaks the most rigid rule of the operating room, and for a good reason.

WWSW Seeking New Power, Wave Length

Station WWSW yesterday opened a fight before the Federal Communications Commission in Washington to wrest from station WMMN, of Fairmont, W. Va., the facilities now assigned to that station.

WWSW seeks the 1,500-kilocycle wave length and the 500-watt day power and 250-watt night power on which the Fairmont station operates. WWSW at present operates on 100-watt power.

Heard in New Series

Things are looking up for Nancy Martin, who is heard in the second of a sponsored series of intimate and informal song-and-patter programs over KDKA tonight at 7:30. She is pictured in her native West Virginia surroundings.

Commission Checking Ballyhoo

By (AIRCASTER)

Mr. O. H. Caldwell, a radio-wise New Yorker, who used to be a radio commissioner himself, was one of the first technicians in the country to call on the new communications commission, which holds the fate of broadcasting more or less in its collective palm.

Mr. Caldwell took with him a technical pill which, he said, would have the same effect on radio broadcasting as a sedlitz powder has on a gent with a hangover. The name of the panacea is "synchronization."

In proffering his plan to the commission, Caldwell pointed out there are any number of American stations on the same wavelengths and that they ought all to be synchronized by a process of "frequency adherence," which means that, by use of balance apparatus, the stations are made to breathe together as if they were Siamese twins. WJZ and WBAL in Baltimore do it, and so occasionally do several New England stations.

* * *

CHECKING UP

I don't think, however, that the new commission will give a lot of attention to the plan right at this time. It is more concerned at the moment with broadcasting ethics than with technicalities.

The worrysome matter of advertising, which might be more scrupulous and conscientious, is engaging the commission. Its scouts are checking up on claims made by sponsors of certain programs which plug the product out of all proportion to logic or percentage of entertainment.

* * *

Not only are the exploiters being queried on this subject, but also at least eight stations which have allowed their clients to ballyhoo beyond the realm of good taste.

The information is being collected by the commission and various other agencies to be turned over to the Federal Trade Commission, which objects to overstressed claims for cure-alls, reducing systems and fountain of youth concoctions.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Some time ago we ran a notice about the celebration of Good Samaritan Day, next Sunday.

That kind of celebration is right down the Globe Trotters' alley and it behooves us all to get behind this idea. It's something like the Boy Scouts, with their principle of doing a good turn daily.

The gentlemen who fostered the Samaritan Day idea is Leo Allmayer, known for many years as the Pittsburgh watermelon king. Each year he distributes cheer to the hospitals and institutions in the substance of thousands of watermelons.

Mr. Allmayer has consented to join the Globe Trotters tomorrow evening at 6:35 and explain the background, the aims, and the benefits of Good Samaritan Day.

* * *

Dr. Ray P. Moyer, guardian of the city's health, has talked with me concerning several broadcasts on sick preventive measures.

He is primarily interested at the present moment in a plan to immunize the children of Pittsburgh against the ravages of diphtheria.

If Globe Trotters will let me know that they are interested in such radio discussions, I will complete the arrangements with Dr. Moyer.

Monday at 12:15 you will hear from Margaret Miller, executive secretary of the Mothers' Assistance Fund, who will transmit what information she has regarding the Blind and Old Age Pensions.

Yesterday's paper carried a story about the first blind pensioner check being delivered.

Allegheny countians can expect their checks very shortly. The names of the blind in Allegheny County already have been certified to the state capital.

The checks are expected by the first part of August.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Four local acts on WJAS bill tonight, starting with the LaNipsa Ensemble at 6:15.

Children's Program On Air Today

At six o'clock, James J. Long, dean of sports writers, returns to the air after a fortnight's's vacation.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Notes of a New Yorker in California

The orchestrating and score of the Grace Moore delight "One-Night of Love" is lovely . . . But no wonder . . . Lou Silvers did it . . . It takes longer for a letter with a two-cent stamp on it to go from a hotel in Los Angeles to a person two miles away—than it does for an air mailed letter to go from Los Angeles to my secretary in New York City . . . Wonder why the makers of the movies for Kay Francis make her screen groom's name Dr. Brandon? . . . Or any name with an "R" in it . . . Why not Dr. Bandon? . . . Kay has such a time with her "R's"—and has to keep saying: "Dr. Bwandon" all the way through "Dr. Monica" . . . Things to worry about, huh? . . . In "Stamboul Quest" when George Brent gives a German waiter an order, the Heinie replies: "Oui, Mooseer" . . . For a German—that's simply swell.

One of those chiseling writers went to an exclusive beach club on the Coast the other night—where she got a de luxe suite and plenty of free refreshments . . . When she came to—10 days later—did she give that place a break? . . . No . . . She forgot where she was and wrote a honey of an article for the spot's rival! . . . I don't recall ever seeing this story in print . . . On their first visit to America a few years ago Mr. and Mrs. Einstein were given a dinner by a New York gazette . . . The paper also ordered a corsage of orchids for Mrs. Einstein—which came late, after all were seated . . . So the two orchids were placed on her plate . . . Mrs. E. is near-sighted, and is most anxious to conform to foreign customs . . . She revealed no awkward surprise at this strange American hors d'oeuvre . . . She started to eat the flowers very delicately, when a waiter relieved the sitch-ee-ay-shun by tactfully removing the plate and posies . . . At any rate she's probably the only person who knows what orchids taste like.

Eddie Cantor's story, he says, is true . . . About the extra—who hadn't worked in a flicker for too long . . . And the landlady, among other creditors, was getting restless . . . He was pretty hungry, too . . . He finally got a call from a studio—but it was necessary that he come in full dress attire . . . He hadn't a sou—so what to do? . . . He went to a pawnbroker—and told his sad story . . . "I can get $10 if I land the job," he said; "please let me have a suit for tonight—and I'll pay you five!" . . . The pawnbroker agreed . . . He was dapper in appearance as he strolled to the studio after the sun went down . . . As he ankled near a wooded sector he was waylaid by two stickups, who cowed him into a car . . . "Come on, big shot," one said, "this is a stickup—hand it over!" . . . He tried to explain that he was a movie extra—with a borrowed dress suit, and that he didn't have a dime to his name . . . And that he hadn't eaten all day and was walking to the studio because he couldn't afford, nor did he have, cab fare . . . His story impressed them . . . They drove him to a beanery—treated him to a meal—and before depositing him at the studio handed him $5.

I go for "My Old Flame," the ditty Mae West sings . . . It's about time Harry Fox, one of my betters—was signed by the flickers. Fox has signed him—to write and act . . . For which goody . . . The Goldwyn gals presented their dance director, Seymour Felix, with a wrist watch—affectionately inscribed . . . He wept when he got it . . . They tell me it's the first time any group of girls out here went to the bother for any dance tutor . . . Ain't it so? . . . I mean what Olin Miller says. That a person will fight harder to keep his illusions than almost any other possession . . . Gosh, yes.

Sid Silvers, who is preparing a screen show called "Mr. Stooge" in which he probably will appear—and should—was in a mood last night . . . In response to the query, he said that a producer almost signed him up that day—but for one thing . . . "Your name," said the producer (who is Edward Small) "such a name—Sid Silvers! It isn't good picture billing—like—let us say—Pickford!" . . . To which Sid snapped: "You don't say? I notice it didn't do Lottie Pickford much good."

Clark Kinnaird, who is doing a thrilling day by day story of the World War for the papers, relates this: That it was Count Berchtold, Austrian, who presented to Serbia an ultimatium, which he deliberately designed to precipitate a war . . . Two years later, when Berchtold was drawn into a discussion of the conflict into which 60,000,000 men were drawn—and in which 8,538,000 were to perish, he said: "Oh, don't speak to me about it! I became tired of it long ago!" . . . Nice man, him.

Universal Films paid John Barrymore $5,000 a day for a picture recently finished . . . Barrymore has handled his deals on films through an agent . . . One offer was for $150,000—regardless of the time necessary to make the film . . . Another was for $100,000 for two weeks work! . . . And still another for $5,000 with Universal . . . Big money that, yes sir . . . But Barrymore is listed as number 30 on the list of box office attractions! . . . Here's a cute thing. Veddy kayute . . . A new tenant in H'wood took over the quarters downstairs from a former gambling club, and needed more height to handle his affairs. It was necessary to rip up some of the ceiling . . . Under the flooring of the second story the beams were honeycombed with little electric wires! . . . For the roulette wheels and dice tables? . . . Master Garfinkel hands me a titter, through a rewrite on a Joe Frisco quip. He says things are so dull in New York—Milton Berle just laid off seven relatives.

A Marceline, Missouri, reader relays this amusing incident about Clark Gable . . . The star stepped off a Santa Fe choo-choo at Marceline and was met by a large group of admirers . . . Some autograph seekers pressed near him, and a boy about 9, handed Gable a soiled bit of paper and asked him to sign his name to it . . . Gable obliged hurriedly, and the boy departed . . . A Marceline school teacher on the following morning was startled no little when the boy handed her this note: "Deer Teecher. Plez excus my little boy from school. He has to work. Clark Gable."

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Mary Philput and May Smyth will be seen for the first time in a Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse production Tuesday and Wednesday evenings in Arnold School, when "First They Whisper" will be given its first presentation on any stage. Robert Gill and DeLisle Crawford also will be in the cast. Harold Rosenblatt and A. Montague Ash are responsible for the script of "First They Whisper."

* * *

Florence Reed, one of our leading stage actresses, has been signed to appear with Henry Hull, late star of "Tobacco Road," in a film version of "Great Expectations." She will depart for Hollywood August 6.

* * *

Vivienne Segal has declined an offer to be one of the cast of "The Red Cat," slated to begin its prowl on Broadway in the fall. She prefers her own metier, musical drama, and is considering several offers.

* * *

A certain young woman now in pictures moved along up the entertainment ladder by means of her voice, and was constantly being told that she might get some place if she would only take singing lessons—but she didn't. She says she never took a single one in her life. She is Ethel Merman, the gal who made us sit up in the Nixon when she sang "Eadie Was a Lady" in "Humpty-Dumpty," a Schwab & De Sylva production that was a local flop but later was rewritten into a big hit titled "Take a Chance."

Those Clever Sleeves Literally Make a Frock

Pattern 1933

Sun-Telegraph 15c Pattern

Whatever is bothering the lady in the sketch it is not the price of that chic frock she is wearing. She made it herself of a neat cotton print which cost just a few cents a yard—and look at it! It is as good-looking a dress as you will see of a summer day whether you spend your summer in the town or country. Those clever sleeves would literally make any dress to which they belonged. If you don't like them short, have them long—see them that way in the little drawing? And don't overlook the smart closing and good skirt.

Pattern 1933 is available in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 3½ yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

And while you are writing, why not include an order for a fascinating book, crammed from cover to cover with stunning illustrations and captivating descriptions of new fashions, fabrics and other things that make a woman chic . . . Gaynor and Baxter to Co-Star

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, July 27.—Hello! With his eye on the splendid box office reports of "Daddy Long-Legs," co-starring Warner Baxter and Janet Gaynor, of some movie seasons ago, Fox's Winnie Sheehan whispered it just before he left for his European vacation Sunday night that he would start a special production "One More Spring," again teaming Janet and Warner, upon his return here in September.

The Ernst Lubitsch dinner party, which was in the form of a house-warming, brought out some of the movie village's best bibs and tuckers. Much fun and giggles, no less! . . . Bobby Labranch, the debs' delight, cracks:

"A plagiarist—A second-story guy, usually in an empty house!"

Somebody was musing to Jack Benny, who is nearly always in a trance, that he heard they were going to start another civil war, and Jack absently spouted:

"How can they start another civil war—there are only four veterans left?"

Wanderings around Hollywood . . . Harvey Collins, the curly-haired bulb-presser (photographer), and June Vlasek have worked themselves up to a high romantic pitch . . . Marjorie Rambeau is set for a featured role in "Ready for Love," which Paramount will shortly put before the clicking cameras, with Richard Arlen and Ida Lupino in the top spots . . . Fuzzy Knight is wowing the nighthawks at the El Rey Club . . . Harry Richman, in town to talk contract turkey with Columbia, wouldn't sing at a gay place the other evening because his mgr., Artie Stebbins, was tired!

The Columbia Studio is still trying to find out if Jack Holt married that San Francisco belle—and if so, when and where . . . Glen Boles is ruining his bank account trying to buy orchids for Ann Shirley (formerly Dawn O'Day) . . . Little Maxine Marx is giving coy side glances in Joey Ray's direction.

Boulevard thingamuhjigs . . . Gary Cooper's verra social vacation in the East (it was wifey's idea) puffed out when Paramount recalled him to start on "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," probably Hollywood's most postponed celluloid . . . Raquel Torres (so lovely in black) and hubby, Steve Ames; Alice White, Cy Bartlett, Donald Alvarado and others were night-club touring t'other eve . . . Now that the Players' Club is featuring special celeb nights, how about one without Jack Durant?

* * *

Boulevard buzzings . . . John Gilbert had a rassling match with cameraman Arthur Edeson and the tussle ended up with Art's panties being completely destroyed. John presented the lens guy with a new pair . . . Helen Vinson's been engaged for the "Other Woman" in "Broadway Bill," the Frank Capra pitcher for Columbia . . . The independent producer, Sol Lesser, passed around a bonus to every member of the crew for bringing in "Peck's Bad Boy" under the budget and scheduled time.

* * *

One of the better bon mots was cracked last time by Kay Kyser when Suzanne Kaaren, Fox neophite, rhumba-ing past the band stand, lunged for Kay's wand on the plea she wanted to lead the orchestra.

"Lady," quipped Kay, "my boys would follow you without a baton!"

Snoopings . . . Phyllis Seiler came to the movie village on a test by M-G-M, but while the studio was making up its mind about a contract, Universal sneaked in and signed the gal . . . Just to prove to themselves that they were brave guys, Edgar Selwyn and Eddie Mannix climbed back into the airplane after a near crack-up and continued their flight to Hollywood—and now they are getting a bad case of the jitters . . .

Things I Like to Remember—

When Rudy Valentine used to climb under his big foreign car and do all the repairing himself, emerging in messy grease from head to foot.

The Hollywood celeb who offered 10 grand to some private detectives if they could arrange it for him to capture Dillinger—as a publicity stunt.

The way Lyda Roberti snubs all the local playboys who want to be seen gay-sporting it with an actress.

Earl Wild Soloist Of 'Pop' Concert

The "Pop" concert tonight on the Hotel Schenley lawn will feature Earl Wild, pianist, as soloist with the Little Symphony Orchestra, under Victor Saudek. Another feature will be the appearance of Willian Stone, violinist. The following program will be given:

Hungarian Dance, No. 5 ..... Brahms
Carnival Overture, Op. 92 ..... Dvorak
Introduction et Rondo Capriccioso ..... Saint-Saens

Selection "Madame Butterfly" ..... Puccini
Prelude ..... Jarnefelt
Scherzo, "Flight of the Bumble Bee" ..... Rimsky-Korsakoff
Andante, "Isolation" ..... J. Vick O'Brien
Hungarian Fantasia ..... Liszt
Earl Wild
March of the Bojars ..... Halvorsen

10 Laws for Show Girls

There is wailing and gnashing of teeth these days in Hollywood, for with one fell swoop, Busby Berkeley, dance director, has gone a long way toward disrupting the movie capital's night life.

Recently he promulgated ten beauty commandments for the 60 beautiful chorus girls under contract to the studio, those luscious charmers you saw in "Footlight Parade," "Gold Diggers of 1933," "42nd Street" and "Wonder Bar," and whom you will see again in "Dames."

"These rules must be strictly adhered to, or else!" Berkeley commented, in annuoncing them to his assembled terpsichoreans.

Here are Berkeley's ten commandments:

1.—Girls must eat three square meals a day—with a steak or chops once each day, when working.

2.—Girls must drink one quart of milk and at least one large glass of orange juice each day.

3.—Girls must take a cold shower every morning.

4.—Girls must take a daily sunbath, when not working.

5.—Girls must exercise in the open air daily—tennis, golf, or swimming—when not working; they must walk twenty blocks a day when working.

6.—Girls must use a minimum of makeup, except for screen work—and NO mascara.

7.—Girls' hair must remain the same color while they are under contract.

8.—Girls must wear no high-heeled shoes, while working or exercising.

9.—Girls must get at least eight hours' sleep at night, starting before midnight.

10.—Girls may have only ONE late date a week, when working.

'Ice' Gift Made to Star

By LLOYD PANTAGES

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, July 27.—We Hollywoodians know that Dorothy Mackaill came home from her European vacation on account of a New York gentleman with whom she is in love. The gent in question already has presented Dottie with some very expensive "ice" in the form of a bracelet, a pin and a ring. What is his name, please?

* * *

It is very odd that, with all the screaming and screeching for new faces, they completely pass by all the old-timers the public really wants to see. For instance, Clara Kimball Young, just as beautiful as ever, has received 10,000 letters in the past year, asking that she again give of her histrionics, but she still finds it tough to find work. Bryant Washburn, a very popular ex-leading man, seems to find himself nowhere but in the Independents in tiny roles. How about it, boys?

* * *

The most interesting sight for a body to see is Constance Bennett at the prize fights. Even though she attends them all, she always covers her eyes when the boys begin pounding each other, which keeps her with her orbs well covered for practically the entire match. Incidentally Miss B. has the largest and most expensive collection of blanc de chine (a highly glazed oyster colored porcelain to youse) in the country.

* * *

Maurice Chevalier, when working, always takes a lunch box to the studio, and eats in the quiet of his dressing room. If you happen to have a luncheon engagement with him, and are late, you are off his list permanently.

The dachshund craze in Hollywood began when Marion Davies imported one. Since then everyone wishing to be in the social swim has purchased one of the weenie looking animals.

* * *

It might interest the ladies to know that Norma Shearer always puts on a complete street make-up on before retiring, her philosophy being that a woman's husband should always see her at her best. If Charles Sabin, a new Columbia white hope, becomes a sensashun on the screen, he can thank Rex Ingram for inducing him to give up a dancing career to go into the movies.

Two New Films for Carole Lombard

"Soldier Woman," a story by Charles L. Clifford, has been purchased by Paramount for Carole Lombard. This is the second Lombard vehicle secured in a week, the first being Damon Runyon's "Maybe a Queen." The purchases follow her signing a new two-year contract with the company.

Warner Offers Diverting Double Program

By KARL KRUG

A superb character study by that masterful actor, Walter Connolly, in a somber, dignified drama known as "Whom the Gods Destroy," and a riotous melodramatic comedy called "Friends of Mr. Sweeney," starring that always welcome humorist, Charles Ruggles, made their appearance in the Warner yesterday to give that theater a more than satisfying double bill.

Connolly, given an opportunity to carry an entire film on his more than capable shoulders, makes his characterization of John Forrester, prominent New York theatrical producer, broken by fate, a moving and sincere figure. As a matter of honest report, the Connolly performance is the thing to see and listen to in "Whom the Gods Destroy." The film is a paternal variation of the "Madame X" theme, and I trust will not be the advance guard of an avalanche of films dealing with father love.

As a powerful figure in the theatrical world, Connolly lives only for his art and small son. In the boy he sees the continuation of his production dreams, and it is for the sake of his family that he hides in a woman's cloak and is saved at sea when a liner he is aboard goes down. Knowing he will be branded a coward, he choose to remain "dead" and hide his identity as the years pass. Later he comes into his son's life to save the young man from disaster as a playwright and producer without, of course, his son learning who he is.

The picture naturally has its moments of pathos, especially with Mr. Connolly heading the cast of such a story, and its scenes of the hundreds of passengers leaving the sinking liner by lifeboat are stirring and exciting. Doris Kenyon, growing old gracefully, does a creditable job as Connolly's wife, and Robert Young, cast as the grown-up son, is satisfactory. A performance by the Yale Puppeteers is included in the action.

"Friends of Mr. Sweeney" is a spontaneous laugh-maker, a comedy that packs a few well-handled thrills in its action, and with a humorous Russian portrayal by Robert Barrat that you won't forget in a hurry. Such happy thespians as Eugene Pallette, Berton Churchill, Ann Dvorak and Dorothy Burgess have been called in to support Ruggles in this screening of a story by Elmer Davis.

As a former fire-eating football star Ruggles has degenerated into a spineless editor of a spineless weekly news magazine, and it is not until he and Pallette recall their days of gridiron glory at Yale while on a bender that he regains his true status in life and foils a hold-up, makes hypocritical publisher allow him to express his real opinion of a certain politician and gets up enough nerve to ask Miss Dvorak to marry him.

It's all zippy fun, this "Friends of Mr. Sweeney," and Ruggles' drolleries were never in higher estate. From mildly amusing situations, the action often jumps to laughs of the explosive variety, and the melodrama that creeps in occasionally is leavened by a delightful vein of subtlety.

By MARK HELLINGER

Summer Hot—Summer Cold

I AWAKENED yesterday morning with a slight suspicion that something was wrong. Even as I opened my eyes I felt myself sneezing. Then I gave out a dubious cough. Whereupon the truth dawned upon me. I had a cold!

Now the summer is no time for a cold. The summer is the proper season for moonlight, roses, soft breezes, prickly heat, and cold lunches with ants and pickles. But a cold? Never!

I dressed between sneezes and looked hopefully at the wife every time I gave out a cough. But she never moved. The least she could have done, I felt, was to stop sleeping through my sneezes. Here I was deathly ill, at the very least, and she didn't know it thing about it.

I finally nudged her.

"Honey," I whispered hoarsely, "I'm very sick. Listen to me cough." I gave out a hollow cough. "You know all about these things. What should I do?"

"Forget it," was her helpful advice. She rolled over and went to sleep again.

I walked to the elevator with a heavy step. This was fine consolation for a sick man. I slave the days away—an hour a day—in order to support a household. And when I am in danger of death, what happens? I am insulted, abused, ridiculed, maligned and all points West.

The elevator on this particular morning was manned by my good friend Whitey. I gazed at him gloomily as the car shot downward at the rate of a foot a minute.

"Whitey," I said, "you're a man and you understand things. I am suffering with a horrible cold. If it were winter, I'd know what to do. But this is summer. What would you suggest, Whitey?"

"A good shot of rye, sir," was Whitey's reply.

I shook my head. "No rye, Whitey," I groaned. "Can't you suggest anything else?"

He finally recommended quinine, which sounded okay. So when we reached the ground floor some 10 minutes later, I went around to my favorite drug store.

"Mr. Althan," I said, "I have a summer cold. You can give me some quinine."

"Quinine!" he ejaculated. "Quinine while you're walking around? No, sir. I'll give you some aspirin and a Benzedrine Inhaler. That's much better."

I filled my pockets with aspirin tablets and inhalers and hired my usual cab. As Charlie was driving me to the barber shop, I told him of my trouble.

"A summer cold, Mr. Hellinger," he said exactly as if I didn't know, "is a terrible thing. There's only one cure, sir. You must go and sit in a brewery."

I sat up. This, at least, sounded like something.

Well, I'm not going to bore you with too much of this. But I'm here to tell you that I heard the same sort of advice all through the day.

When I went to his establishment for lunch, "Sunshine" Jim Moore gave me a bottle of Reggie's Vanderbilt oil and told me to take a teaspoonful every two hours. Ted Husing recommended Dr. Hinkle's pills. Gus Edwards told me to take a long drive in the country.

Mr. Lou Holtz suggested ibish tea, while Buddy De Sylvia insisted that a certain brand of cough medicine was all I needed. And so it went; on and on and on.

In my office, Mr. James Burbridge, my secretary when I can find him, was very much concerned.

"You look horrible," he assured me. "A summer cold is no fun. What are you taking for it?"

I told him of all the things that had been suggested to me. He nodded.

"I had an uncle who had a summer cold," he said. "He didn't take all the remedies you mention. But he took a lot of them."

"Did it take him long to recover?" I asked.

"Too long," was Mr. Burbridge's cheerful response. "He died the following week." . . . . .

Around seven o'clock that night, I arrived home. I carried with me a huge budle containing all the remedies I had purchased or had been given to me that day. As I entered my apartment, my wife greeted me.

"I have news for you honey," she said. "I've been sneezing ever since you left this morning. I guess I have a summer cold. What's the best thing to do for it?"

I walked to the window and tossed out the bundle of remedies. With great joy, I heard it hit the alley. Then I sank into a chair and sneezed happily.

"Forget it," I advised. "Just forget it." . . . . .

Seein' Stars :-: By Feg Murray

YOUR THEATER AND MINE :-: By Karl Krug

LOUIS K. SIDNEY HELPS ANOTHER YOUNGSTER

Louis K. Sidney, Loew production chief, who has probably done more than any other single individual to make the movie stage shows the lavish and pretentious affairs they are today, is getting a big kick out of life again.

Lou, as he is known to hundreds of his Pittsburgh friends, has helped another kid along the rocky road to getting somewhere in the movies. In his day in the Aldine here, the genial Sidney put his shoulder to the wheel for many an ambitious youngster, including Pittsburgh's own Dave Rubinoff, and he is finding time to continue his Good Samaritan role as he directs the far-flung stage activities of the Loew circuit from his New York office.

At the moment, Sidney is especially interested in the talking screen version of the stage hit, "She Loves Me . . ot," a picture not made by his company or any of its affiliations. Bing Crosby and Miriam Hopkins are its stars, but they are of no import to Lou. He is beaming because 21-year-old Kitty Carlisle is said to handle her role so well in the picture.

About two years ago, Lou picked Kitty for the lead in the Loew road show unit of the late Florenz Ziegfeld's "Rio Rita," which played here. She was one of a dozen or more applicants for the part, and had just arrived in New York from Europe where she had been studying voice. She had no theater experience.

MISS CARLISLE 'CAME THROUGH' FOR HIM

But, the alert Sidney, looking, as usual, for a diamond in the rough, and always willing to lend a helping hand to deserving talent, liked Miss Carlisle's voice and stage presence. He took a chance and picked her, and she came through for him, as the boys in the business say.

The job in "Rio Rita" lasted for many months. The unit, doing four shows a day, week in and week out, gave Miss Carlisle the polish and stage experience she needed. That training ground gave her a background in a short time such as might have taken years to acquire in a "legitimate" production. At the end of the "Rio Rita" run she got a leading role in the musical "Champagne Sec," one of the stage hits of the late season in New York.

Those two stage jobs and a small part in the screen version of Earl Carroll's "Murder at the Vanities" are the extent of Miss Carlisle's experience. Aside, of course, from the featured role she has in "She Loves Me Not," Paramount, producer of that picture, took one look at the film and immediately laid big plans for Kitty Carlisle.

And that makes Louie Sidney a happy man. Not only has he added another name to his long list of "discoveries," but, as I said before, he has given another youngster a "break" in a sometimes tough racket. Mr. Sidney doesn't talk of the philanthropies he directs toward deserving young men and women, and this story came to me in 'round about fashion from a source close to Lou. Knowing Mr. Sidney's habits, I have no doubt of its veracity.

WHISPERING GALLERY

Columbia Pictures prohibitions, which have long gone to the Warner theaters here, will be seen in the Penn next season . . . The entire Loew circuit has contracted for the Columbia output . . . M. H. Fierst is looking for another "big name" for the Civic Playhouse. Vincent Lopez, associated with the razzle and dazzle, glitter and tinsel of the stage and night clubs, is a devout disciple of astrology and numerology . . . And gives the study of them credit for "curing" him of procrastination and making him systematic rather than disorderly in his personal and business habits . . . I forgot to ask him if his hobby has anything to do with his swell rendition of "Every Day I Dream of You" . . . By unleased wire from Hollywood: Von Sternberg, the director, is burning . . . When he entered his office the other morning his gaze was met by the throne he had erected for "The Scarlet Empress" . . . A gargantuan affair, it had been placed behind his desk in lieu of the customary chair . . . And, to make his face redder, in the seat was one of those emaciated plaster statues, which Von Sternberg has strung with such profusion throughout the film . . . Sam Goldwyn is going to make "The Dark Angel" as a talkie, but Ronald Colman, who had the lead in the silent film, won't be in it . . . Sam says Colman will never work for him again and Colman says he will never work for Sam again . . . Which would appear to make it unanimous . . . Mae West's sister, Beverly, built along the same general specifications as the best known member of the family, is turning down all film offers . . . Add things to look forward to: Mark Hellinger's "Broadway Bill," with Warner Baxter and Myrna Loy.

MadgeBellamy Back in Films

The silent screen star, Madge Bellamy, has returned to her home studio, Fox Film, under a long term contract this week and was assigned a featured role in "Charlie Chan in London," now in work. Hay Millard, British actor, has also been added to the cast. In this picture, Warner Oland once again heads an unusually large cast directed by Eugene Forde which includes, besides Miss Bellamy and Mr. Millard, Drue Leyton, Mona Barrie, Walter A. Johnson, Alan Mowbray, David Torrence, Murray Kinnell, E. E. Clive, George Beeraud, Paul England, Elsa Buchanan, John Rogers, Douglas Walton and Perry Ivins.

MALONE NOT INTERESTED IN FINLEY'S POST

NEW YORK Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 27.—Thoughts while strolling: Mary Boland couldn't be as surprised as she always seems to be on the films. Harry Richman is beginning to look drawn. The aged and deaf Mrs. J. W. Harriman wrung the heart of the town by her fidelity. How right Kipling was: "It's the woman, etc."

One word description of Elsa Maxwell—oompah. How they gallop to see a Damon Runyon film. And five years ago he said he would not know how to start to write fiction. Young Will Hays would make a handsome film juvenile. Add firm friendships: Mrs. Irving Berlin and Mrs. Samuel Goldwyn.

Adela Rogers St. Johns and Pauline Lord express the same wistfulness. Why do they keep on calling it Madison Square Garden? Slim pickings for the pickpockets these days. Whatever became of Helen Ford? I never fail to edge up front in a taxicab drivers' row. Some day they'll carry me off feet up.

Richard Watts, Jr., and Ogden Nash bear a resemblance. Richard Barthelmess, window shopping. Lots of actors making books at the tracks. It's a living! Last of the journalistic dandies—George Buchanan Fife. Evelyn Thaw's book has been a clean up. Helen Gallagher's rosy cheeks.

One of my favorite people—Jimmy Johnstone. Some of the theater ticket agencies have but a single clerk. And he's mostly just leaning around. The avenue promenader who is Webster's Casper Milquetoast in real life. Even to the mustache. About the only thing an heir inherits these days is liability.

* * *

Desolation of the big liquor stores becomes increasingly tragic. They are all glitter and clerks, but with few customers. The proprietors say racketeers have flooded some shops with such bad liquor that it has made trade skeptical of even respectable places. Plus, of course, the fact that opening liquor shops took on the furore of a Klondyke rush and there's over-supply.

* * *

It happened in front of 290 Park. Young, hatless, eager, a derelict drifted from the East Side to hawk gardenias to smart ladies at 25 cents each. Two, like pert models out of Harper's Bazaar, stopped. They would take one apiece, but had nothing but a ten dollar bill. He fished through tattered clothes and finally handed them $9.50 in change, bowing profuse thanks. Ten minutes later the shrill scream of the terribly stricken. In the excitement he had not received the $10 bill. Ladies, ladies, you are known!

This twilight, wandering, I blundered into a shrine that will capture all beadsmen of small town joys. It was a forgotten frame notion store in East One Hundred and Ninth street—aromatic and stuffed with treasures of Boyville. I came away with a bundle containing a sheaf of licorice strips, a long spiked top, three sets of transfer pictures, a ball on a rubber string, the disappearing egg trick, suger-coated flag candy, dynamite jaw breakers, a tin badge "Eagle Eye Detective Service" and that ragged waif of literature, "The James Boys in Missouri." It seemed the biggest purchase in some time and the trembling old man in a skull cap was obviously pleased. So much so one felt a slight chole.

Pier ends on sweltering nights are a ragged disarray of humanity hunting sleep. All the tag ends of slum unraveling are found there—perhaps the filthiest aggregation outside of Limehouse or under the Seine bridges. In the first flush of dawn at the sound of a cop's whistle they come to heel like spaniels, shuffling off bleary eyed for a search of alleys and refuse bins.

When Chinatown was not the faked up hocus-pocus for yap wagons it is today, I made the rounds of its dank causeways and hidden catacombs with Francis Albertanti and a derbied fellow from Central Office. It was the worst squalor I had seen up to that time but pin-neat compared to the raffish array on pier ends. On that excursion, I recall we talked to "Little White Flower," a sob sister sobriquet for a girl reputedly from a good family who had married a Chinese and was much in the headlines. Also we came upon "Old Horse and Wagon," who was then, and may be now, the only Chinese beggar known in the greater metropolis. But he begged because he was almost totally blind and badly crippled.

From an Idaho weekly: "What some of those big town columnists should explain is this: How do New Yorkers stand the pace?"

But is me, too. Sometimes we don't have supper until half past seven.

BLAME OFFICER IN SHOOTING OF BOY

2 Women Witnesses Support Story of Arrested Youths

A policeman's story of how he shot a 19-year-old boy in self-defense was contradicted by four witnesses in Morals Court today.

Patrolman Marion C. Chapman testified that when he tried to scatter a group of loiterers at South Twenty-fourth street and Harkins way, on July 9, two of the boys attacked him—John Genites, 19, of Jane street, and Edward Susnowski, 19, of South Twenty-first street.

Chapman said he fired his revolver only after Susnowski had grabbed his mace and Genites had reached for his (the policeman's) gun.

The bullet ricocheted off the street and lodged in Susnowski's leg, the patrolman added. He arrested the two.

'KNOCKED OUT TOOTH'

Chapman said that, because neighbors had complained that he had been drinking, he went to Mercy Hospital 20 minutes after the shooting and received a report that he had not been. This examination was made by Dr. Daniel Sable, city surgeon.

Both boys denied the policeman's story. Susnowski testified Chapman knocked out a tooth with his mace, dragged him 25 feet, then shot him. Genites told a similar story.

Two witnesses, Mrs. Hilda Fuchs and Mrs. Nora Denk, of South Twenty-fourth street, testified Chapman made no effort to assist the wounded boy. Mrs. Fuchs said she saw Chapman hit Susnowski with his mace, that he had his mace in one hand and shot with the other.

SAYS HE POINTED GUN

Mrs. Denk said Chapman never lost his mace, that after shooting the boy the patrolman pointed his gun at the crowd and warned onlookers to step back.

Police Supt. Jacob Dorsey was a spectator at the hearing, and a transcript of the testimony was ordered for the Police Trial Board.

Charges of assault and battery have been brought against Chapman before Alderman A. M. Maloney.

Magistrate J. W. McGowan released both boys on their own recognizance, declaring:

"No officer, unless provoked to a supreme degree, has a right to use a gun. We are trying to discourage use of guns by officers."

2 GIRLS INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Two Mt. Washington girls were injured last night when their auto collided with another car on Saw Mill Run boulevard, at Banksville road.

Christina Ogg, 18, of 47 Albert street, and Cecelia Nusser, 18, 57 Southern avenue, were taken to South Side Hospital with bruises and lacerations. Police said William Harlan, 70 Southern avenue, with whom they were riding, was charged with reckless driving. A charge of violating the auto laws was placed against Dan P. McConlogue, 295 Parker drive, Mt. Lebanon, the other driver, police reported.

Struck by an auto while crossing Federal street and East Park way, July 4, Mary Hawthorne, 53, of 2548 Hackney street, North Side, died in Allegheny General Hospital last night of bronchial pneumonia developing after her right leg had been broken.

Police said the driver of the car was J. Meryl Silk, Ingomar.

Ignore Protests, Plan Incinerators

The city has advertised for bids for the construction of incinerator plants at the Brilliant Pumping Station and in Manchester. The bids must be submitted by August 20.

Despite widespread opposition from residents of the East End and of the North Side, the incinerator ordinance was passed some time ago by Council and signed by Mayor McNair.

Stockholders' Meet Just Family Reunion

Clark and 12 Children Control North Side Company

It's a family reunion when David L. Clark calls a meeting of stockholders of his chewing gum and candy companies.

Thirteen members of the manufacturer's family—himself, six sons and six daughters—own 90 per cent of the chewing gum company stock and 70 per cent of the candy company shares.

The candy company has assets of more than $2,000,000 and employs nearly 600 persons. Its capital consists of 300,000 shares of no par common stock.

Both plants are located on the North Side.

SHARE AND SHARE ALIKE

For many years, Mr. Clark explained today, he has made it a policy to distribute the stock ownership of his companies among his children, share and share alike.

The children range in age from 21 to 42. They are Mrs. Norman Sprague, Mrs. Ruth Gerwig, Robert M. Clark, Leonard J. Clark, Mrs. Helen F. O. Tawney, Charles T. Clark, David L. Clark, Jr., Alan F. Clark, Mrs. Graham Caldwell, Catherine R. Clark, Mary Margaret Clark and Harold S. Clark.

SONS ALL ACTIVE

Each of the sons is active in the Clark organization. Harold is manager of the candy company,

Not Consulted at All, Ex-Councilman Reveals

James F. Malone, the latest of Mayor William N. McNair's long list of futile "appointments" to the chairmanship of the Traction Conference Board, today said he would not consider the position. Malone, former Councilman, was named yesterday as the "successor" to Charles A. Finley, after City Council had turned down the name of Theodore L. Morita, the Mayor's secretary and man of all work.

Malone today said:

"Under no conditions would I accept this or any other appointment under the present city government. I was not consulted about the Mayor's action, have not talked to him for five months, and knew nothing about it until I read the newspapers."

At the start of the McNair administration Malone was backed by M. L. Benedum, financier of the last Democratic campaign, for the position of Director of Public Safety. The Democratic bloc in Council and Councilman W. J. Soost, Republican, blocked the move after much wrangling and delay.

BEHIND THE MOVE

Recently Benedum has been trying to bring together McNair and the Democratic organization headed by State Chairman David L. Lawrence. Yesterday's action was interpreted as a sop by the Mayor to Benedum, but one which he probably realized never would materialize into an actual appointment.

On motion of Councilman W. A. Magee, the nomination of Malone was referred to the service and surveys committee.

Altmayer Treats Again

A crowd of more than 50,000 is expected to spend a happy day at Leech Farm, Washington boulevard, celebrating the first observance of Good Samaritan Day, Sunday.

It's one day in the year when the public is asked to think about and help the shut-ins, the sick and needy who must spend their days away from the active life of the world.

But in spite of its new scope, it's still Leo G. Altmayer's party. He started the idea many years ago with his annual watermelon treats every July 29 for inmates in Pittsburgh hospitals and institutions.

LEO ALTMAYER SHOWING THE PROPER WAY TO CUT A MELLON: FIRST INTO

This year, 142 institutions will receive more than 4,000 melons. Altmayer, himself a produce dealer, superintended the unloading of the first cars into trucks at the produce yards yesterday.

At the same time, Altmayer demonstrated his way of cutting a watermelon. One stroke cuts the fruit in two. Then it's easy to divide each half lengthwise for quarters. And then again to make convenient eighths.

Altmayer explains that this method leaves each piece more

More and more of the smart set, now that the heat wave has been with us for so long, are fleeing to the cool refuge of New England or Canada. Or are seeking cool ocean breezes on cruises.

MISS BETTY KENNEDY

But one Pittsburgh social registerite mother and her post-deb daughter are going to seek coolness in the mountains of their own state—in the Poconos.

They are Mrs. John J. Kennedy, of Shady avenue, and her vivacious young daughter, Betty. They are going to leave town today and motor to the Poconos, where they plan to stay for three or four weeks at the Pocono Manor Inn.

The Kennedy family prefers to do its ocean cruising in February, as do many of the smart set. There are social registerites galore, though, this summer, taking cruises here and there—more than in several seasons.

Summering in picturesque Nantucket Island, R. I., with its cobbled streets, its view of the ocean flecked with the vari-colored sails of many boats and its yacht clubs, are the Totten twins, Phyllis and Louise, daughters of Mrs. Robert D. Totten, of Dennistion avenue.

And just as the twins are active here in organizations galore, chiefly the Pittsburgh Junior League, so are they active even at a summer resort.

Louise is general chairman of a committee which has arranged two open-house days for the benefit of the Nantucket Cottage Hospital.

The houses to be shown to the public are a group of Nantucket's oldest and most charming homes.

One wonders if the Totten girls were the instigators of the benefit? They might have had their inspiration in the success in past years of the open gardens program in Sewickley, sponsored for the benefit of the Allegheny General Hospital.

The homes are to be open to the public in Nantucket this afternoon and on August 10. The houses to be shown today are said to present the evolution of architectural types over a period of more than 100 years. In fact, one of the houses to be open today is of the "lean-to" type, characteristic of about the year 1700.

RESULTS IN NATIONAL PLANE DERBIES GIVEN!

By LAWRENCE SHAW
National Director

Greetings, Junior Birdmen and Birdwomen!

Last Saturday I gave you six derby reports from wing cities. Included in that list were Los Angeles—then far ahead of every other city in all three events—Omaha, Atlanta, Boston, Albany and Milwaukee.

Today I have reports from the New York, Syracuse, Detroit and Chicago. All the derbies have been held with the exception of San Francisco, which will be held in the near future. All the U. S. wing champs will meet in Washington on August 28 for the National All-American Model Plane Derby.

NEW YORK GLIDER LEADS

The most outstanding time in the list below is the glider event in the New York Derby. The record of Los Angeles, one minute and seventeen seconds, was bettered by Robert Meagher, of New York, with a flight of four minutes and twenty-one seconds.

However, Los Angeles still holds the record for the single stick and double stick flights. Here are the latest plane meet results:

NEW YORK

Robert Meagher, 200 points.
Glider event—First place, group A, Robert Meagher, 4 minutes 21 seconds.
Glider event—First place, group B, Mark Brook, 1 minute 1 3-5 seconds.
Single stick event—First place, group A, Joe Kovel, 2 minutes 55 seconds.
Single stick event—First place, group B, Hall Young Kaighin, 1 minute 52 3-5 seconds.
Double stick event—First place, group A, Robert Meagher, 5 minutes 5 2-5 seconds.
Double stick event—First place, group B, William Ying, 3 minutes 31 seconds.

DETROIT

Wing champion, David Hoffman, 200 points.
Glider event—First place, group A, Ray Gerlick, 32 1-5 seconds.
Glider event—First place, group B, Clarence Trombly, 10 2-5 seconds.
Single stick event—First place, group A, Michael Roll, 1 minute 55 seconds.
Single stick event—First place, group B, David Hoffman, 47 2-5 seconds.
Double stick event—First place, group A, Mitchell Stanck, 3 minutes 28 2-5 seconds.
Double stick event—First place, group B, David Hoffman, 1 minute 7 seconds.

SYRACUSE

Glider event—First place, group A, Edward R. Guth, 2 minutes 56 4-5 seconds.
Glider event—First place, group B, James Zimmer, 35 seconds.
Single stick event—First place, group A, Jean Chadwick, 1 minute 14 1-5 seconds.
Single stick event—First place group B, James Zimmer, 1 minute 2 seconds.
Double stick event—First place group A, Edward R. Guth, 8 minutes.
Double stick event—First place group B, (no competition).

CHICAGO

Wing champion—Walter E. Getsla, 270 points.
Glider event—First place group A, Walter E. Getsla, 57 2-5 seconds.
Glider event—First place group B, Wallace Simmers, 46 3-5 seconds.
Single stick event—First place goup A, Walter E. Getsla, 1 minute 45 seconds.
Single stick event—First place group B, Mileton L. Huguelet, 1 minute 22 seconds.
Double stick event—First place group 3, Stephen Glasura, 3 minutes 6 seconds.
Double stick event—First place group B, Wallace Simmers, 1 minute 38 3-5 seconds.

This leaves us with but a few more wings to report. I shall give them to you early next week. If your wing is in the lead don't be too jubilant over victory yet. One of these late derby results may beat the pants off your landing gear!

AIR DICTIONARY NO. 31

Dictionary 31 today is particularly interesting. In the list are the definitions of flaps and flares. Here it is:

FIXED LIGHT—A marker or beacon light which is fixed in its intensity and direction. It does not blink, fade or turn off at intervals.

FLAP (GENERAL)—A hinged or pivoted airfoil forming the rear portion of an airfoil such as an aileron (rudder), used to vary the effective camber.

FLAP (SPLIT)—A hinged plate forming the rear upper or the rear lower portion of an airfoil. The lower portion may be deflected downward to give increased lift and drag. The upper portion may be raised over a portion of the wing for the purpose of lateral control.

FLAP (DRIP)—A strip of fabric attached by one edge to the envelope of a balloon, blimp or other aerostat so that rain runs off its free edge instead of dripping into the basket or car. It also helps keep the suspension ropes dry.

FLAP PRESSURE—A flap valve fitted in the outer cover or envelope of a rigid airship and arranged to permit the rapid flow of air in and out—mostly inward. Its purpose is to facilitate the rapid equalization of the pressure of the air in the envelope with that of the surrounding air.

FLARE PARACHUTE—A device attached to a parachute and designed to illuminate a large area when released from an aircraft at an altitude.

FLARE SIGNAL—A signaling device of various colors and characteristics by means of which one plane may signal to another, or the ground, during night flying.

FLARE (WING-TIP)—A device attached to the wing af an aircraft for illuminating the ground while landing.

FLAT SPIN—A spin in which the longitudinal axis is less than 45 degrees from the horizontal. It is more of a pancake effect with the plane spinning around as it decends.

FLATTEN-OFF—The act of regaining normal flying position after a dive, spin, climb, etc.

Watch for the next list and be sure that you clip each out for your scrap book. You will find it difficult to obtain back lists.

EAGLE TESTS ARE READY

Say there, it's nearly time for those eagle tests. I haven't forgot about them. Watch for news of this important feature in our Sunday column. All of you fledglings will certainly want to become eagle members. See that you are one of the first.

Happy landings!

Motor Truck Group Arranges Picnic

The Pennsylvania Motor Truc' Association will hold its annua picnic at Idlewild Park, Ligonier, tomorrow. Hugh G. Walsh is chairman of the entertainmen' committee, assisted by E. H. Niedenhaus, Charles J. Blanck, Walter Hasley and J. Lee Kirby.

ADVANCE FALL HATS, SLIGHTLY MADCAP

The girl sketched right suggests the effectiveness of a dark brown be-feathered hat as an August bridesmaid's topper over peach organza.

Top, a tiny medieval cap of stiffened brown hair veiling, with a roll of curled ostrich tips in brown around the back and sides. Center, a very tropical sort of hat what with is monkey shape in black felt and its rim of natural humming birds in full flight. The black veil is of unusually large mesh. The third hat is Cleopatra's headdress, in iridescent raven feathers almost covering its stitched black cloth foundation.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

IF YOU are fed up with cartwheels for your formal summer headgear, you might warm to the newest advance fall models. There are loads of perfectly delightful "table top" bonnets in the offerings—models that will look very arch and sophisticated poised over a thin summer gown, instead of the satin or fur scarf originally intended to set them off.

There is more than a touch of Nana to many of the new hats: the tiny stuffed birds that are posed on some of the toque models are a blue print of Anna Sten, as it were and very, very good if youre the type and no enemy of taxidermy.

TOO MUCH canno the skid for the new beret, one supposes at this stage of the game, but it probably will be. That is the dooce of something new and glamorous—it gets into the ranks all too fast and loses its pristine freshness. So it might be a smart notion to begin your beret season right now: trying out a huge black velvet nimmber with your sheer black dinner gown, or atop your white chiffon tailleur, on a hot night. That sort of costume is swell for al fresco dining, on sidewalk or roof, when it is not convenient to get into a long skirted very elegant ensemble.

THIS Cleopatra influence is getting in the asp state of things already. The lady's gown is already on the market; her hat appears on this page, amongst many other places; the same motif which styles her hat has been swiped for clip earrings; her chain bracelets and anklets are about to curl around our own extremities in metal junk jewelry; and we have been wearing her sandals for quite some time, not to mention her hennaed toes and fingers and her kholed eyes.

Freckle-Face Rules Vex Judges

Judges selected for the contest for freckled faced kids are already in a quandary. They are wondering how they will count the freckles. Will they estimate by the square inch, using a magnifying glass and an adding machine, or will they make their seclection for the championship boys and girls from the general survey of the entire crop.

And the question arises—do freckles behind the ears and on the ears count? Well, these points will all be ironed out before the freckled faced kiddies—an army of them—meet at West View Park next Tuesday afternoon to participate in the annual outing for National Kiddies' Day—the Junior Patrol and Junior Birdmen of America.

In the meantime the strips of free tickets for the rides and attractions at beautiful West View are now ready for distribution at listed on page 16, of today's Sun-Telegraph. Fifteen-cent street car passes can also be purchased at the same stations. Only two coupons are required for each strip of tickets for the rides and attractions at West View. The coupon is also on page 16.

HINTS TO EASE PREPARING OF MEALS

Have you ever heard of Mahon on the tiny island of Minorca? It was there that the genius of a French chef created the most popular of all sauces, mayonnaise.

To celebrate the French victory at Minorca, which ousted the British in 1791, the Duc de Richelieu gave a great banquet. That night his chef presented him with a new sauce that pleased the guests so enormously that he was called in to explain how it was made. The chef told him and christened the concoction "Sauce Mahonnaise," later to be called simply "mayonnaise."

What other experiments this chef may have made with sauces is lost in history, but innumerable women are now in his debt. For mayonnaise is not only a delicious sauce that flavors most salads and sandwiches and many hot dishes, it is also the foundation for many variations.

Its flavor can be subtly changed to just suit any fruit salad or any unusual combination of vegetables. The excellent texture and the full body of real mayonnaise makes it amenable to innumerable variations.

Why not try a few of the following variations of mayonnaise?

* * *

CUCUMBER MAYONNAISE—(For hearts of lettuce and other greens)—½ cup double-whipped mayonnaise, ½ cup sour cream, ½ cup cucumber, finely diced.

Fold mayonnaise into slightly whipped cream. Add cucumber and blend. Makes 1 cup mayonnaise.

Equal quantities of chopped pimiento and diced cucumber may be used instead of all cucumber.

* * *

FROZEN RASPBERRY CREAM MAYONNAISE—(for fresh fruit salads)—½ cup double-whipped mayonnaise, ¾ cup red raspberries, crushed and strained, ½ cup cream, whipped.

Fold mayonnaise and raspberries into whipped cream and blend thoroughly. Freeze about 2 hours in tray of automatic refrigerator. Makes about 1½ cups mayonnaise.

This mixture should not be frozen at too low a temperature.

* * *

Here's another of the delicious recipes to receive an "honorable mention" in the Prudence Penny contest:

* * *

STRAWBERRY MERINGUE CAKE—2 cups sifted cake flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 4 egg yolks, beaten, ¾ cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup sugar, 4 egg whites, stiffly beaten, 1 quart fresh strawberries, ½ cup sugar.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and sift together three times. Cream butter, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks, then sifted flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in two 9-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375 degrees) 25 minutes. Remove from pans and cool. All measurements are level.

Fold ½ cup sugar slowly into egg whites. Place two layers on baking sheet. Pile meringue lightly on them and return to moderate oven (350 degrees) to brown 15 minutes.

Wash and hull berries. Reserve a few choice ones for garnishing. Crush remainder of berries with ½ cup sugar. Spread between layers. Garnish top with whole berries. Serve at once. Serves 8.

(Raspberries, blackberries or huckleberries can be used in place of strawberries if desired). Submitted by Mrs. Margaret R. Johnston, Crafton.

* * *

TURKISH CANTALOUPE — 2 cantaloupes, 3 tablespoons chopped ginger, 1 teaspoon gelatin, ½ cup sugar, 1-16 teaspoon cinnamon, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup whipping cream.

Grind the cantaloupes and ginger, add the sugar, spices and salt. Soak the gelatin in 2 tablespoons of the cantaloupe juice and melt over hot water. Add this to the cantaloupe and finally fold in the cream which has been beaten until thick but not stiff. Pour into refrigerator tray and freeze until frozen for about one inch from the edge of the tray. Beat very vigorously in the tray with a wooden spoon. Return to the refrigerator and freeze. Submitted by Mrs. Margaret R. Johnston, Crafton.

* * *

CHOP SUEY—Two cups raw chicken, cut in pieces about 1 inch long, ¼-inch thick; 2 cups celery, sliced thin, crosswise of stalk; 2 cups fresh bean sprouts, half pound fresh or one small can mushrooms; 3 tablespoons soy sauce, 2 tablespoons cornstarch.

Fry meat brown in about two tablespoons fat, add about two cups of water and mushrooms; let boil until meat is tender. Then place celery, sprouts, meat, mushrooms and gravy in kettle, add soy sauce and water to almost cover. Add salt to taste. Cook about 15 minutes or until celery is just tender, not soft. Thicken

P. R. R. CHANGES PENSION PLAN

The Pennsylvania Railroad issued a statement today, signed by President Gen. W. W. Atterbury, setting forth to active and retired employes the conditions of a new pension plan, adopted in concordance with the Railroad Retirement Act, passed at the last session of Congress.

The act establishes a government pension plan for employes of all railroads, and becomes effective August 1.

The pension plan requires each employe to contribute 2 per cent of his salary, up to $6 a month. The employer is required to contribute twice this amount.

The government plan provides that retirement shall be compulsary with employes who have reached the age of 65, unless the employe and his company agree in writing to extend the period for five additional years.

The Pennsylvania, which has had a pension plan in operation since 1900, has advised its employes that annuities eligible under the old system will be paid as usual until further notice. Those eligible for pensions between August 1, 1934, and February 1, 1935, when the first annuities will be paid under the new plan, will receive compensation according to the displaced system.

THREE MAJOR SURPRISES SURE TO SPUR THOSE JADED APPETITES

By PRUDENCE PENNY

One . . . two . . . three . . . Here they are—no less than three major surprises to spring on the family at lunch or dinner, heading today's list of Prudence Penny contest winners, plus a grand galaxy of desserts, salads, preserves and such.

A snoozy appetite that fails to respond to such as these, wethinks, is positively woozy—and no wonder, turning up its nose at the vitamins!

Maybe you have a way of poking languid tastes to new appreciation. Whatever your favorite dish, we'd like to hear about it. Remember, one $5 prize, five $1 prizes, and five honorable mention cook books are awarded daily for the best recipes received. Just address Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. No recipes are returned.

And now for the prize winners:

Five Dollar Prize Winner

One-half cup soft bread crumbs.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-sixteenth teaspoon pepper.
One teaspoon sugar.
One cup sweet cream.
One cup hot water.
Three tablespoons butter, or less.

Slice top from stem end of tomatoes and scoop out center. Shred cabbage and mix with diced tomato pulp, minced onion, bread crumbs, salt, pepper, sugar and cream. Fill the tomato cups with the mixture, set in well buttered pan. Top each tomato with a bit of butter, pour the hot water around the tomatoes and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until filling is tender (about 30 minutes). Serves six.

Five $1 Prize Winners

MRS. RUTH CAMPBELL,
R. D. 7, Bellevue.
CORNED BEEF SNACKS

Chill a can of corned beef. Cut the meat in thin slices. HAM TIMBALES

Four tablespoons butter.
One-half cup corn flakes.
One and one-third cups milk.
One tablespoon chopped parsley.
Four eggs.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Two cups chopped cooked ham.

Melt butter and add corn flakes, which have been rolled to size of bread crumbs. Add milk. Cook five minutes, stirring constantly. Add ham, parsley and eggs, slightly beaten. Season with salt and turn into buttered individual molds, filling at least three-quarters full. Set molds in hot water, cover with buttered paper and bake 30 minutes in a slow oven (300 to 350 degrees F.). Garnish with parsley and serve with mushroom sauce. Serves six to eight.

MUSHROOM SAUCE

Four tablespoons butter.
Four tablespoons flour.
One-half cup mushrooms.
Salt and pepper.
Two cups stock.

If fresh mushrooms are used, make a stock of peeling and stems, cooked from 10 to 15 minutes in three and one-half cups of water. If mushrooms are canned, use their stock or any other brown stock. Make a brown sauce of the fat, flour and stock. Add the mushrooms and cook about five minutes. (If mushrooms are cooked too long they become tough. Three or four minutes are enough for canned mushrooms.)

MRS. ROBERT CARLISLE,
5470 Penn avenue, Pittsburgh.
SPICED PICKLED WHOLE ORANGES

Eight medium-sized seedless oranges.
Water.
Two cups white vinegar.
Five cups sugar.
One tablespoon whole cloves.
One tablespoon allspice.
One-fourth teaspoon mace.
Three one-inch cinnamon sticks.

Score oranges with a coarse grater, barely breaking through to the white inner portions. Remove stems and wash well. Soak in cold water for three days, changing water twice a day. Put into enough boiling water and cook, covered with pieces may be pierced easily with a skewer (about 30 minutes). To three cups of the liquor from the cooked oranges, add vinegar, sugar and spices tied in a bag. Boil for 10 minutes. Drop in oranges and cook, turning occasionally, until syrup is slightly thickened. Remove spices. Pack fruit in jars. Cover with syrup and seal. Serve sliced in a fruit salad, as an hors d'oeuvre, or with baked ham or roast leg of veal.

with cornstarch. Do not cook too long. Much better if celery and sprouts are not quite tender. Serve very hot, with steamed rice, hot biscuits and tea. Submitted by Mrs. Joseph Goodl, Irwin.

* * *

Both of the following were submitted by Rita A. Wittig, Lovitt way:

CHICKEN MOUSSE—1 tablespoon gelatin, ½ cup cold water, yolks of 3 eggs, ¾ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, 1½ cups hot chicken stock, ⅔ cup cold cooked chicken, ½ cup whipped cream.

Beat yolks of eggs slightly, add salt, paprika and chicken stock slowly. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Pour cold water in bowl and sprinkle gelatin on top of water. Add this softened gelatin to above hot mixture and stir until dissolved. Cool and add chicken, finely chopped. Season highly yith salt and paprika. When mixture begins to thicken, fold in whipped cream. Turn into mold that has been rinsed in cold water and chill. When firm, unmold on platter and garnish with slices of tomato and sprigs of parsley.

* * *

VEGETABLE SALAD—2 cups cooked string beans, 2 cups cooked fresh peas, ½ cup cooked lima beans, 1 teaspoon onion, finely chopped, 1-3 cup mayonnaise.

Cut string beans lengthwise and then crosswise in ¾-inch pieces. Add peas, lima beans and onion and marinate in French dressing 30 minutes in ice box. Drain thoroughly. Add mayonnaise and blend. Serve on crisp lettuce. Serves 8.

* * *

CRAB MEAT AND ONION SANDWICHES — ¼ cup mayonnaise, 1 cup crab meat, flaked, ¼ cup pickled onions, very finely chopped.

To mayonnaise add other ingredients and blend thoroughly. Spread between slices of buttered or nucoaed bread and remove crusts. Makes about 1¼ cups spread.

* * *

EGGS STUFFED WITHDEVILED HAM—6 hard-cooked eggs, ¼ cup deviled ham paste, 6 stuffed olives, finely chopped, ¼ cup mayonnaise.

Cut eggs in half lengthwise and remove yolks. Blend yolks thoroughly with remaining ingredients. Refill whites.

* * *

COMBINATION CHICKEN SALAD—1 cup cucumber, diced; 1 cup cold leftover chicken, diced; 1 cup cold cooked peas, 1 cup walnut meats, finely chopped; 1 cup mayonnoise.

Combine ingredients in order given. Chill. Serve on crisp lettuce with additional mayonnaise and whole walnuts. Serves 8.

* * *

CLUB SANDWICH—3 thin slices of buttered toast, 4 slices cucumber, 1 leaf lettuce, 1 tablespoon mayonnaise, 2 slices cold veal, olive spread or relish.

Make a three-decker sandwich using sliced cold veal and olive spread or relish in one layer and mayonnaise, cucumber and lettuce in the second. Top with a third slice of buttered toast.

Serve as individual main dish for luncheon or cold supper, with a fruit dessert and iced coffee.

* * *

SWISS STEAK—1 pound round steak cut 1½ inches thick, ¾ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup flour, 2 to 3 tablespoons bacon drippings, 1 onion (medium), ¼ green pepper, 1 cup boiling water.

Wipe meat with damp cloth. Rub seasoning into both sides of meat. Sprinkle one side with half the flour. Pound it into meat with hammer or the edge of thick plate. Turn and do the same to the other side. Melt drippings in small Dutch oven or iron skillet with cover. Brown meat well on both sides. Add sliced onion and diced pepper. Pour over boiling water. Cover utensil tightly and continue cooking in 375 deg. F. oven for 45 minutes. Add more seasoning and thickening to gravy just before serving if desired.

Evaporated Milk Aids Fight on Rickets

Abundant Amounts of Minerals and Vitamin D in Evaporated Milk Necessary to Cure Rickets; This Wholesome Food May Be Used by Every Member of the Family

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York; Former Health Commissioner of New York City.

For many years evaporated milk has been used as a safe and healthful substitute for fresh milk. Often infants and adults are unable to digest fresh milk. In such cases, evaporated milk is used as its equivalent.

The nutritive value of this food is now increased by a process known as "irradiation." Here the vitamin D content of the milk is measurably promoted. This is brought about by the application to the fluid of ultra-violet rays.

A rich supply of vitamin D is of benefit in protecting against rickets. This disease generally occurs in young children whose diet is deficient in vitmain D. These unfortunates develop various deformities which may persist through life. Their bones are soft and seem to bend under their own weight. The children become bow-legged and knock-kneed. They are irritable, restless and unable to play as normal, healthy children do. They are susceptible to infections and disease.

INSURED HEALTH

To cure rickets it is necessary to include foods in the diet which contain an abundant amount of vitamin D and minerals. Be sure that your child is receiving his quota of these valuable substances. It will help insure him a healthful and happy life.

Irradiated evaporated milk is prepared from pure, fresh cow's milk. It is really unsweetened plain milk from which approximately three-fifths of the water has been evaporated. This milk contains the same necessary food substances in practically the same quantities found in fresh milk. Fresh milk contains 3 to 4 per cent butter fat, whereas irradiated evaporated milk furnishes nearly twice this amount. In addition vitamins A, B, C and D are found in substantial amounts.

Milk and milk products are of great value because of their lime content. Likewise, they contribute to the diet phosphorus and iron. The proteins are of high nutritional value.

EASILY DIGESTED

Evaporated milk is easily digested because its fat content is broken up into particles even finer than those of fresh milk. Also, the heat treatment used in making evaporated milk causes a curd of fine and soft quality to form.

It will be seen that a food containing so many valuable and wholesome substances deserves frequent use in the diet. Evaporated milk may be used by all members of the family, and many doctors, specializing in the care of infants and children, prescribe it for infant feedings. This food is carefully sterilized and hermetically sealed in cans which assure the purchaser a clean and pure product.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Afraid Romance Will Spoil Friendship

The BEST GIRL FRIEND, and for oh, so many years, is sister to the real beau . . . And can this girl go as often as she has been doing to his home . . . That is the problem.

These two families moved quite far apart a number of years ago, and since then the girl who brings her troubles to the Speak Up, Sisters column, says she has been spending one Sunday with this girl friend . . . And the next Sunday the girl friend comes to her place.

Miss Brunot

She has always liked BIG BROTHER. But it is only recently he has shown an interest in her. And now that he has proposed and she has accepted, embarrassment overcomes her, and she ponders over these vists.

He keeps teasing her and tells her he will present her to his family as his future wife, and this gets her all fussed up. Because she doesn't want to marry right away . . . And all the while, in the background lurks the bug-a-boo of the sister . . . No harm must come to THIS OLD FRIENDSHIP.

KEEP FRIENDSHIP

"I'd rather die than hurt her in any way," she declares . . .

And don't hurt her, sister . . . A friendship that has weathered babyhood and adolescence and young womanhood is something very precious, and not to be tampered with . . . You must school yourself to keep on exchanging these Sunday visits.

Love for BIG BROTHER shouldn't alter them. It should increase the devotion between you and his sister . . . You should confide in her, though . . . Otherwise she won't like it . . . The real strength of the cord binding her to you is at its weakest link, and make sure that it won't snap through any act of yours . . . Don't worry over your boy friend teasing you about presenting you as his future wife . . . Chances are everyone of his family have guessed who she will be, anyway . . .

Write to me again, and let me know how everything turns out . . . Your's is a ticklish situation . . . And yet one out of which great contentment may come . . .

WANTS DATE

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 19 and my worry concerns a boy whom I love. He is very handsome, and I want to know why he never asks me for a date? I have waited for two years, and he has never asked me. I used to see him every day. But now I make it my business not to. I did this to see if he would show any anxiety. I asked him to come to the house to play cards, and to bring one of his best boy friends. But he said he had to take his people out that night.

So I told him to come the following Sunday evening, but the following week he said he had to take his mother away for Mother's Day. So I never bothered asking him again.

Please, Miss Brunot, tell me how to get him to call on me? Should I ask him again?

Sincerely, JENNY.

My dear little Jenny, you seem to have selected a family man . . . one who is too much wrapped up with his home duties to have time to date the girls . . . You have asked him twice already to come to your house, and each time he has had his excuses . . . So, sister, no matter how hard it is for you, you will have to wait until he makes some indication of wanting to be with you.

It never pays to do all the running after a man . . . He should participate in the desire for dates . . . There are so many other fellows in the world, many of them eager for nice girls like you, that it does seem a shame to waste so much time and affection on someone who thinks only of jogging his family about. . . . So perk up, Jenny, and find a more reciprocative beau . . .

NOTHING TO BRAG ABOUT. That is the way MITZI describes her boy friend. Yet he has been hanging around for a good while, and anything or anybody that does that takes a PLACE in this sister's life . . . It's getting used to people, just as one might get used to the dining room table or the kitchen sink . . . or the rose bushes on the front fence . . .

NOT PROUD OF BEAU

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 19 and my fellow is 23. He is nothing to brag about, but since we've been going together he has changed a good deal. My mother disapproves of him because he has led a wild life, and also because he works in the coal mines. He tells me he loves me and discusses marriage quite often. But I am baffled whether I care for him or not.

When I am with him I feel content and when I don't see him for a couple of days, I wonder about him. And yet whether to continue going with him or not, is a query. I like to keep peace in my family. And even so, I have my own life to live. So won't you please help me with this problem, Miss Brunot?

MITZI.

I don't believe you really care about this fellow, Mitzi. If you did, you wouldn't describe him as NOTHING TO BRAG ABOUT. One sees their loved one in a better shading than that.

I cannot object to your friend's employment. Any honest method of livelihood is to be respected. These are the days when labor with the hands is commendable. People are going back to farms. They are doing their own home work. They are learning to saw wood and build fires and what not. So the coal digging is all right.

But those wild years. How about them? Has he really reformed, or will he revert again? You had better be patient and keep the good will of your parents, at least for awhile.

GIRLS SHOULD NOT TAKE TOO MUCH FOR GRANTED, SAYS FAY KING

By FAY KING

An attractive pleasing young girl finds herself in a dilemma. For some time she has been going about exclusively with one of her admirers. No actual engagement with a ring has existed, but she feels that both have thought of marriage. Now the young man tells her that his family object to his marrying.

Girls should not take too much for granted. Men may be attentive and devoted and yet not think of marriage.

Family objections are sometimes put forth as his own excuse. But if there be real objection, wait a bit. Real love will endure and stand the test of time.

If it isn't real love, the sooner you discover this the better. Remain good friends, but wait and see what changes a year may bring.

A Sequel to Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Insists Upon Joining Expedition

There was much impotent malice in the eyes of Edith Fairfax, as Lillian finished her teasing little speech, that I had hard work to conceal the shudder which would have betrayed my very real fear of her.

That she had expected me to go to Hugh's side, in answer to the wounded man's cry of "Margaret! Where has she gone?" was evident, and I knew as well as she did that she was bitterly disappointed and chagrined because I had refused to render my old friend this service. I knew something else, also—that she would have taken good care that Dicky knew of my ministrations to Hugh, and that she would surely acquaint him with Hugh's call for me.

But in my mother-in-law's homely phraseology, "much of the starch had been taken out of her" by Lillian's apparently good-humored little tirade. Whatever she might say to Dicky later, one thing was certain—she would keep silence now for a space.

LONGS TO LEAVE

As always, Lillian solved my problem with dispatch and efficiency. She crossed to me and linked her arm through mine.

"Come along with me, pronto," she said, her voice clear and high. "We've got several things to arrange. Look here, young fellers, me lads," she addressed Bob, Ronald, Hank and Bill standing together at the rear of the hall. "Take your feet in your hands and come along with us. We have work for you."

She moved with me toward the door as she spoke, and the boys, galvanized into sudden action, followed me outside, where I found my father deep in talk with Otto, Philip Veritzen's stalwart chauffeur. He broke off as I came up, and spoke to me.

"Otto and the car are ready for any service we need," he said. "But I do not know where to tell him to go."

"Suppose I tell you about it as we go," I said. "You and I and Hank can go ahead in the Veritzen car—Hank knows the place—and Bill can drive the car of the Chinese with Bob and Ronald. Will that do?"

"Perfectly, except for two things." My father's voice suddenly held what Lillian calls a "difficult" note. "Why do we need an extra car beside this to come with us? There may be risk."

"I'll answer your questions in order," I said, smiling with an effort. "We need the smaller car because the big one can't get down where we left the Chinese. By the way, just a minute, please. Bill, how did that Chinese car behave?"

REQUEST GRANTED

"Like a mink," Bill replied promptly.

"Then there's no need to change," I said. "Now for your second question, father. I may not be needed, although I saw the whole thing from the beginning and can tell you all about it. But there's a very vital reason why I want to get away from the farmhouse just now. I feel that I must go with you. Please do not deny me!"

He looked at me thoughtfully, and Lillian moved swiftly across to his side and put her hand upon his sleeve.

"Let me say 'Amen' to that, Chief," she said. "It's really vital not only that Madge gets away from here, but that she goes on this particular party. I'll explain it all to you later, but, kind caliph, let me add my pleas to hers."

My father stood immobile another moment. Then he looked at Lillian with a grave smile.

"Whoever can refuse you, Lillian?" he said. "So, against my better judgment, she may go."

To remove iron mold from linen articles, soak the stained parts in lemon juice and leave exposed in as strong a light as possible for some hours. If the material dries, moisten with more lemon juice until the marks disappear, then wash in the ordinary way.

To make a cake feathery light, add half a teaspoon of glycerine to a mixture containing half a pound of flour.

Frequently a dress left over from the previous season looks very dejected when we take it from its garment bag. Sometimes a change of color will make all the difference in the world.

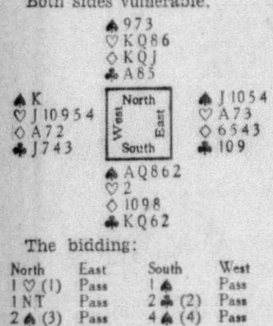
Contract Bridge :: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Successful Safety Play

All the well-known single suit safety plays should be part of the repertoire of any good Bridge player. I believe I have, at some time or other, covered most of these plays. One of the more common of them occurred in the hand below, and by using it the Declarer was able to make an otherwise unmakable contract. The hand occurred in a seven-table Duplicate game, and North and South in this instance secured a cold top.

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡ (1)	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
1 NT	Pass	2 ♣ (2)	Pass
2 ♠ (3)	Pass	4 ♠ (4)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—Naturally, when vulnerable, a notrump bid is out of the question. North has no other choice but to bid his heart suit.

2—Undoubtedly, South's correct bid. After all, North has opened the bidding and rebid, and South wants to make a reasonable strong second bid. Even though the spade suit were rebiddable, South would probably still choose to show his club as there is less chance of North passing when a second suit is shown.

3—Holding three cards of each of South's suits, North shows a preference for the first one, despite the fact that he holds an Ace in the second. This preference, of course, gives South another chance, without North's showing any additional strength himself.

4—A Sound bid. There certainly should be a good play for four spades after North has opened the bidding when vulnerable and then kept the bidding open twice more.

West opened the heart Jack, and Dummy's Queen was topped by East's Ace. The club 10 was returned, and the trick was won in the Dummy with the Ace. Declarer immediately saw that he still had to lose a trick to the diamond Ace, and accordingly, to fulfill his contract he had to restrict his spade losses to one trick. At trick 3 he led a low spade from Dummy, and when East played low, he went up with the Ace from his own hand. This, of course, is the safety play. Since one trick must be lost in the suit anyway, the Ace may as well be played first to possibly an honor in the West hand. On the second round the Queen can still be led up to and a finesse taken, whether or not an honor drops on the first round. However, by the time the second round of the suit is played, the Declarer should have a better chance of guessing the location of the adverse cards.

In this particular instance South's play of the Ace was rewarded by the drop of the lone King from the West hand. However, South's work was not yet completed. He still had to get back to Dummy to finesse against the Jack-Ten, which were both marked in the East player's hand. South led a diamond, and West won with the Ace, returning another club, which South won in his own hand. He entered Dummy by the lead of a diamond, took a club discard on the heart King, and then led the nine of spades. West, of course, was helpless. He could cover or not, as he chose, but whatever he did he could take but one trump trick.

The contract of four-odd was thus fulfilled.

Knowledge of Vitamins Helped Conquer Scurvy

Dr. Copeland

Many thousands of persons residing in and around New York took advantage of the opportunity to see the fleet on its recent visit to New York City. It was a stupendous sight. But the most impressive thing to me was the excellent physique and health of the men serving in our Navy.

The culinary department of one of these battleships is surprising. The variety of foods available to the sailors and officers is in marked contrast to the conditions that existed in the Navy a little more than 50 years ago. In those days modern methods of refrigeration were not available and the canning industry had not perfected the preservation of foods. Few fresh fruits and vegetables could be included in the diet except when the ship was in port.

Because of this, scurvy, the most common vitamin-deficiency disease, was prevalent among sailors. For many years little was known about this strange malady. It afflicted persons in all parts of the world, but was most common among the sailors who were deprived of fresh fruits and vegetables.

The discovery of vitamins and the realization of the importance of fresh fruits and vegetables in the diet, resulted in rapid advancement in the treatment of this disease. It is now definitely known that a lack of fresh fruits and vegetables, especially the citrus fruits such as lemons, oranges, grapefruit and lime, leads to scurvy.

These foods are known as "anti-scorbutic" foods. They contain a large amount of vitamin C, the vitamin that prevents scurvy and other of the deficiency diseases so often found when the diet is lacking in these substances. Even today the British navy furnishes a daily ration of lime as a means of preventing scurvy. This is an additional precaution, because the diet of the sailor in every navy includes plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables.

Unfortunately, many persons overlook the importance of the anti-scorbutic foods and fail to include them in the daily menu. This frequently leads to deficiency diseases. The most common symptoms are pallor of the skin, swollen gums and sensitive and loose teeth. The victim first complains of fatigue, loss of appetite, and is very irritable. If the progress of the disease is not stopped in the early stages, more serious symptoms occur.

Not so long ago this disease was especially common among infants and growing children. Now scurvy is a rare occurrence since citrus fruit juices are given children as early as the first month. For the young infant you may give strained orange juice or tomato juice.

Let me emphasize the importance and value of an abundant amount of fresh fruits and vegetables in your daily diet. Remember that many of the so-called trivial ailments may be the result of an inadequate and poorly balanced diet.

Answers to Health Queries

G. D. D. Q.—I am now 35 years of age and troubled with my heart most of the time. I had severe growing pains when I was a child and wonder if this condition has had any effect on my heart. I have mitral insufficiency and arteria sclerosis. What would you advise? What can be done for the pain and discomfort?

A.—You should remain under the care of the doctor who is familiar with your case. Heart conditions demand specific care and treatment. Your doctor will advise you.

S. M. Q.—What will help a sluggish liver? My skin is sallow and I am always tired and "peppless"?

A.—Proper diet and regular exercise will do much to correct this condition. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Church Etiquette

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is there any proper way for two couples to go down a church aisle and to seat themselves in the pews? We have frequent awkward moments, with one person shepherding the group and announcing the seating arrangement while we other three stand in the aisle. The four are mother, father, son and daughter-in-law. H.

If there is an usher, he leads the way down the aisle, followed by the mother and daughter-in-law, and behind them the father and son. If there is no usher, the father might lead the way, and the son walk with his mother and wife. The important thing is that if there is an usher, he finds the seats, and if there isn't an usher, one of the men finds the seats. How the group behind the "finder" of the seats walks, depends on the width of the aisle.

At the pew the men step aside and let the women precede them into the pew. And, unless the father wishes to sit in the aisle seat, the youngest man steps aside to allow his father to enter the pew first.

On leaving the pew, the men go first and step aside to let the women of the party precede them down the aisle.

One thing more: the man who enters the pew last, quietly thanks the usher.

No 'Local' Showers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please let me know if it is correct for an aunt to give her niece a linen shower, or shall her girl friend give it to her?

G.

There is a feeling against having the shower given by a close relative of the bride or groom. And so it would be far better taste for the friend or group of friends of the bride-to-be to plan this shower.

By HELEN FOLLETT

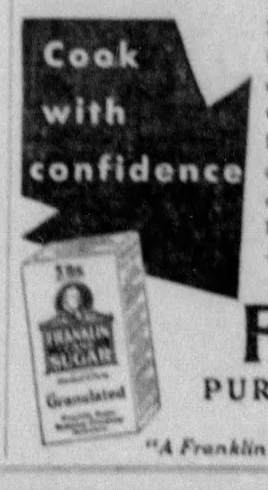
After the complexion has been subjected to strong sunlight or harsh winds, do not use soap and water. Or even cold water. Cleanse the skin surface with cold cream or a liquid oil.

This practice is particularly important for the girl whose cuticle is dry and rough, or whose countenance has a persistent way of collecting freckles.

Sudden atmospheric changes are devastating, not only to complexions, but to hands.

Now is the time to be neck conscious. Cleansing the face protects it from devastating agents, like strong sunlight, atmospheric dust and strong winds, but necks seldom get that kind of help. Why stop the head at the chin line? The neck is there, hungry and waiting.

Pat in the cream with hammer strokes. Place the palms of the hands on the collar bones, go sweeping upward. Include the sides and the back of the neck. They need attention. Scarves and collars disturb the delicate surface of the skin, discolor it, too.



Don't worry about sugar failures in cooking and flavoring. Insure success by using only Franklin Pure Cane Sugars. They never disappoint, because they are pure cane. Kept clean in sturdy cartons and strong cotton bags, Franklin sugars are known to be absolutely dependable—the finest you can buy.

COLONIAL BEDSPREAD PATTERN 782

Not only the handicrafts of Colonial days appeal to us but the very Colonial figures do. Their costumes make them not only decorative but a very dainty motif for the bedroom. These figures—can't you imagine them in a variety of lovely colors—are especially fitting for a bedspread. Besides the simple embroidery which is used, a very decorative note is added by using gathered lace to trim the clothes. This is just sewn on and adds a plastic touch to the figures, that makes them very lovely. The flower sprays are done in the popular French knot flowers. This design is a companion one to pattern 597 shown some weeks ago; using these two patterns a complete bedroom set can be decorated with these Colonial figures.

Pattrn 782 come to you with a transfer pattern of a motif 15 x 16 inches, a spray 6 x 15 inches, a spray 3½ x 19 inches, one and one reverse of a 3¼ x 3½ inch spray, and four 4¼ x 5 inch ones; directions for doing the embroidery; illustrations of all stitches used; and material requirements.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Most of the State Fair Champions throughout the country use this marvelous aid to jam and jelly making to win their prizes!

They would tell you what Certo does! . . . How you can expect half again more glasses from the same amount of fruit . . . How you can finish your jam or jelly in one third the usual time . . . And how you get a marvelous extra flavor—the full flavor of the fresh, ripe fruit itself!

With Certo you boil jams or jellies only a few minutes. The fruit juice does not boil away—you never get that "boiled-down" taste that comes with long, tedious boiling. You save lots of time and trouble, too.

Certo—the pure fruit pectin—is sold by all grocers. It is a product of General Foods.

HOW TO MAKE THE BEST BLACKBERRY JAM

4 cups (2 lbs.) prepared fruit
7 cups (3 lbs.) sugar
½ bottle Certo

To prepare fruit, grind about 2 quarts fully ripe berries, or crush completely one layer at a time so that each berry is reduced to a pulp.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, mix well, and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 2 minutes. Remove from fire and stir in Certo. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 10 glasses.

Note: This product may take a week or more to reach an ideal set. © 1934, G. F. Corp.

FRUIT BARGAINS—AT YOUR GROCER'S NOW

Certo lets you use fruits at their ripest and best—and when most economical. Attached to every Certo bottle is a booklet of 89 prize-winning recipes for making these matchless jams and jellies.

STOCKS JUMP $1 TO $3 IN COMEBACK

NEW YORK, July 27.—(AP.)—Financial markets today apparently were recovering from the war scare which yesterday gave securities their most severe shaking in a year.

Stocks, with few exceptions, staged a vigorous comeback in the first hour that carried many issues up 1 to 3 or more points above their closing levels of the previous session. The subsiding of European disturbances was the cue for the rebuying of many issues which had been thrown overboard at panic prices. The rebound was also aided by some short covering and "bargain hunter" purchasing.

A reversal in bonds gave added encouragement to equities. Many secondary, as well as prime investment, loans returned large portions of their Thursday's heavy losses. Strength was shown by U. S. governments and the recently depressed obligations of Germany, Poland, Italy and Argentina. Wheat stepped up nearly 2 cents a bushel and cotton showed an advance at one time of about $1 a bale. Silver was a bit heavy, but rubber improved. Foreign exchanges steadied.

The weakness of Consolidated Gas was attributed to selling by investment trusts and others following the company's report which disclosed a sharp drop in net earnings for the past 12 months due to higher operating costs and taxes.

The financial district was cheered by reports from brokers with foreign connections that Europe, instead of unloading American securities following the Austrian upheaval, was a modest buyer both yesterday and today. While many domestic shares are now held abroad, it was believed that total holdings at this time are meager compared with 1914. The opinion was expressed in some quarters that any panicy liquidation from outside the United States could be absorbed without exceptional distress.

Although there was considerable selling of thinly margined accounts in the first hour, these necessitous activities were actually conducted at higher price levels. Blocks of 1,000 to 5,000 shares were easily transferred at advances ranging from 1 to around 3 points. It was recalled, that many of the weaker accounts had been eliminated in the previous session.

Various market commentators continued to advise caution in trading commitments, not only because of the cloudiness of the continental picture, but also of uncertainties connected with corporate profits during the balance of this year.

BULLS ROCKET WHEAT PRICES

CHICAGO, July 27.—Sharp upturns in grain prices took place early today, influenced by strength shown in the Liverpol wheat market and by securities at New York. Bulls also stressed reports of continued spring wheat deterioration on both sides of the Canadian border.

Opening ¾-2⅛ cents higher, September new 98⅝-99¾, wheat afterward steadied at about a cent above yesterday's finish. Corn started ⅜-1⅛ up, September 66-66¼, and held near the initial limits.

BUCS START TO REBUILD MOUND STAFF FOR 1935

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

French Does His Part — Little Men of Baseball
Hurls Four Fine Games — Title Tilt Lacks Appeal
Rise of Indian Pitcher — Pitt Adds Track Power

That the Pirates did not make a better record on the disastrous trip just completed certainly was not the fault of Larry French. The masterful exhibition with which French interrupted the nine-game losing streak by shutting out the Phils in the first half of yesterday's doubleheader, a game that saw the southpaw ace retiring the first 21 enemy hitters in a row, was only in keeping with the fine pitching done by him previously on the eastern swing. With average luck, Larry would have won his last four games, in which he allowed only seven runs, all told, some of them due to errors. He beat the Giants, 3 to 1; lost to the Braves, 1 to 3, and was nosed out by the Dodgers, 3 to 2.

Larry French

It is to be hoped that the return to the home grounds, though it is to be for only a brief stay, will have the effect of making the Bucs pull themselves together, put new heart in their work, and shake off the slump in which they lost 17 of their last 22 games. In their own yard, at least, the Pirates have been able to keep a balance on the right side, having won 26 games there against 17 defeats, whereas on the road they have won only 16 contests while losing 29. The July slide killed all hope for a finish high among the leaders, but with the right sort of effort a first-division position still will be possible.

INDIAN HURLER BEATS EARLY HANDICAPS

Euel Moore, Chickasaw Indian pitcher, who has won three out of four games for the Phils since they bought him from Baltimore, and whose latest victims were the Pirates, earned his success in baseball by beating some early handicaps that would have discouraged the average youngster. In his first season as a professional, with Abilene, in the West Texas League in 1929, Moore's pitching arm was broken when he slid into a base on July 20, and that put him out for the remainder of the campaign. Trying to make a fresh start in 1930 with Wichita Falls in the Texas League, he suffered another setback. A seige of illness prevented him from taking his place with the regulars in the spring, and he was released.

Signing with Muskogee in the Western Association, Moore drew another release at the end of the season, and drifted to San Antonio. By 1933, when he was with Galveston, his pitching arm had recovered so completely that he won 17 games, a record that prompted the Baltimore club to purchase him. The redskin turned in eight of the 18 victories won by Baltimore in the first two and a half months of the present season, and now he bids fair to become a star in the majors in the same city that saw the rise of Chief Bender.

FREITAS LATEST MIDGET TO MAKE GRADE

Tony Freitas, midget Portuguese pitcher, who has made good with the Reds this summer after a failure with the A's, is the latest living proof that in baseball size runs second to ability. Tony is the smallest pitcher in the majors, standing only 5 feet 7 inches and weighing less than 160 pounds, but many a six-footer can take lessons from him when it comes to pitching finesse and nerve. His success is just one more jolt to the old theory that to make good in the big leagues a player must be tall and rangy.

Tony Freitas

Many other little fellows have risen to stardom. A pretty fair major league club could be assembled through the years from players who measured less than five feet eight. There was Hughey Duffy, whose batting average of .438 in 1894 still stands as the major league record. John McGraw was a tiny chap in his playing days, and Clark Griffith was no giant. Willie Keeler, Tommy Leach, Bobby Byrne, Johnny Evers, Miller Huggins, Shorty Slagle, Heinie Groh—small fellows, all of them, but you'd have to go far to find better players. First basemen usually are big, but there have been few in the last 20 years to surpass Stuffy McInnis or Joe Judge. Even in the later crop many little men have stood out, such as Paul and Lloyd Waner, Rabbit Maranville, Hughey Critz, Sparky Adams, Andy High, Ernie Orsatti, and Johnny Babich.

MAY CALL OFF ROSENBLOOM-OLIN FIGHT

The Madison Square Garden fistic operators in New York are looking for an out that will enable them to call off the proposed light-heavyweight championship bout between Maxie Rosenbloom and Bob Olin, scheduled for August 16. The match did not promise much in the first place and is practically certain to result in a deficit for the promoters after the adverse comment that has followed Olin's poor showing against Abe Feldman in Los Angeles last week, when Referee Jackie Fields' verdict of a draw was considered so rank that the California Commission suspended Fields.

Besides, it is generally known that Rosenbloom and Olin were practically stablemates on the Coast, as the champion's manager also made matches for Olin. Under the circumstances, a Rosenbloom-Olin meeting would be likely to draw only flies, and it won't be surprising if Jimmy Johnston finds a way to cancel it, probably substituting Enzo Fiermonte for Olin and shifting the bout to Newark. The New York Commission refused to sanction a Rosenbloom-Fiermonte match, but the New Jersey boxing powers are willing to approve it.

PITT TRACKERS TO BE EVEN STRONGER

Carl Olson, track coach at Pitt, is one college mentor who doesn't have to worry about next year. The Panther trackers will be from 20 to 30 points stronger than they were this last season, and it will be recalled that they did not lose a dual meet. With the possible exception of Southern California, Stanford, Louisiana State and Yale, there are no schools in the country better off than Pitt, as far as track material is concerned.

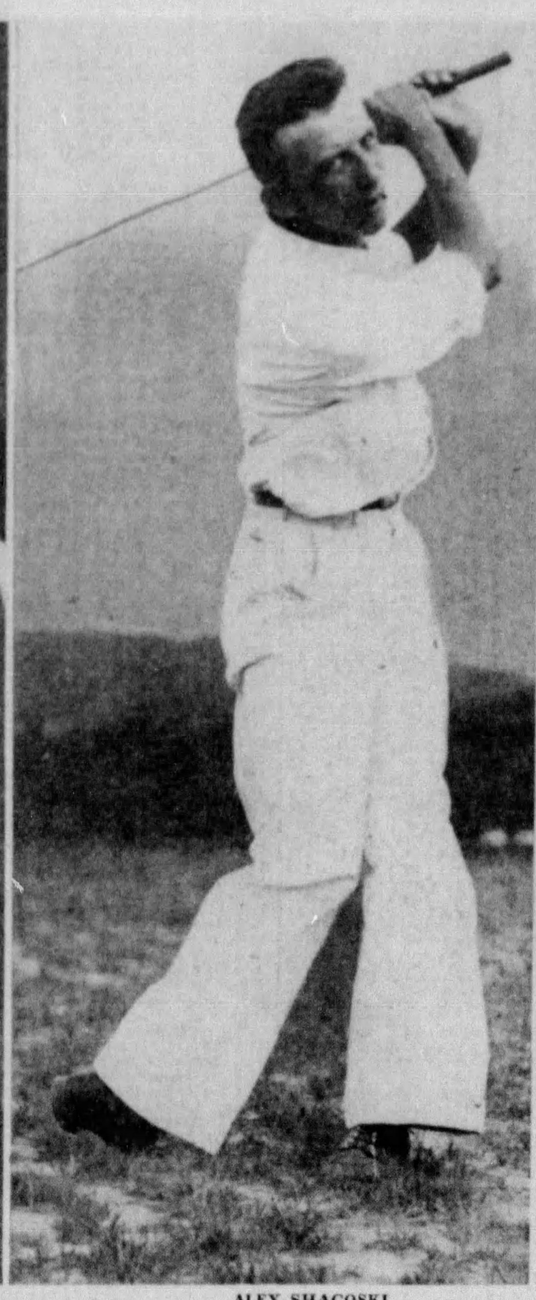
Carl Olson

The chief losses by graduation were Bill Keller, Howdy Odell and Mike Sebastian. To make up for the points usually won by that trio, Olson will have Eugene Taano, of Ashtabula, javelin thrower, who tossed the spear 197 feet in high school; Pete Avezelnis, state record holder in the shot-put; Bob Johnson, of Gary, and Bob Garrety, of Ashtabula, pole vaulters who beat 12 feet 6 inches consistently; Andy Lasky, crack high hurdler from New Castle, and possibly Bob Scott, the broad jumper who missed the last campaign because of illness. Add to this new contingent such veteran stars as Lovel Fleming, Emil Bonavita, Charley Gongloff, Kenny Leonhouser, Cy Pelucha, Walter Good, Freddie Kiger and Harold Connelly, and you'll get some idea of the strength in store for Pitt's track opponents in 1935.

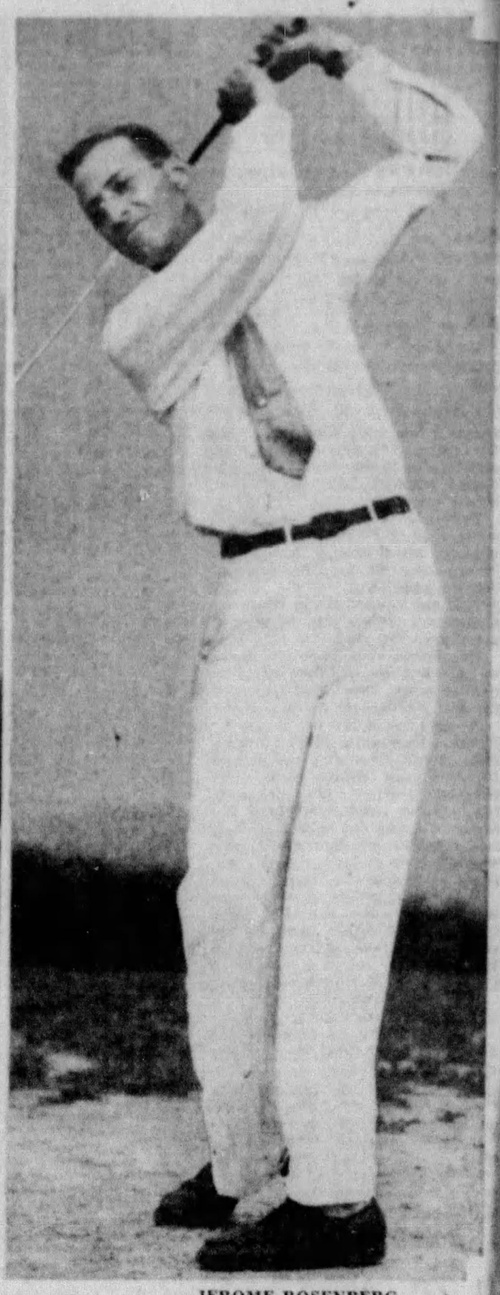
Ready to Repulse Invaders in National Free Links Tourney

CARL F. KAUFFMANN

ANDY SZWEDKO



ALEX SHACOSKI



JEROME ROSENBERG

Four local stars who will be gunning for the National Public Links golf title in the tournament at South Park beginning Monday against a field of stars from all over the land. Kauffmann, thrice winner of the national title, is the South Park champion; Szwedko is the Schenley Park titleholder; Shacoski, the North Park king, and Rosenberg led the local qualifiers for the national tourney in the elimination played over the championship course. A field of 173 will play for the title over the excellent course. These are Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures.

PUBLIC LINKS PLAY SET AT SOUTH PARK

By TOM BIRKS

The local committee appointed by J. D. O'Neil, national public links commissioner, of which William S. Haddock is general chairman, decided last night at a special meeting held in the Fort Pitt Hotel, to follow the suggestion of Gaston Depew, of Buffalo, chairman of the public links section of the United States Golf Association, to hold the 36-hole two-day qualifying round for the national public links championship over the links of South Park, instead of splitting up the event between North and South parks next Monday and Tuesday.

Depew's telegram to the local committee stated that in the opinion of the U. S. G. A., it would be unfair to hold the qualifying round over two courses, when many of the players would not get here until Saturday and not have an opportunity to play over both courses.

Charley Ferrera

The 36-hole consolation tournament for players failing to qualify for the championship will be held at North Park Wednesday.

The committee met last night and completed all of the business relative to the staging of the tourney scheduled to start Monday morning.

STAR BOOSTS COURSE

If liking the course means anything, Charley Ferrara, of San Francisco, the defending champion, stands an excellent chance of repeating, and tieing Carl Kauffmann's record of winning the title three times.

Ferrara tried out the course yesterday and found it to his liking. He shot a 71, one under par, good enough for even a defending champion. The entire California contingent worked out yesterday.

The main contingent of the 173 players eligible to compete in the tourney will arrive today. They will play the course tomorrow and Sunday, the links being closed to everyone but competitors in the tourney.

The Coast star gave the layout quite a boost when he admitted that the course compared favorably with any the championship had been played on since he had been a competitor, and he won the title at St. Paul in 1931, over the Kellar course and repeated at the Eastmoreland course at Portland last year.

Ferrara is a husky boy with powerful arms. He looks like a golfer, and hits a terrific tee shot.

WOLFF TOPS FIELD

Stroking the difficult and testing Oakmont course in 74, two over par, Regis Wolff, of Highland, coach and captain of the University of Pittsburgh golf team, topped a field of 200 golfers in the P. G. A.'s one-day tourney yesterday. Wolff was out in 36 and back home in 38.

George H. Flinn, Jr., of Oakmont, president of the state association, finished in second place with 39-37-76. Andy Stover, of the Field Club, was next in line with a 77, and Joe Totten, of Wildwood, and W. C. Farquhar, of the Field Club, tied with 79's.

In the match play against part competition, Fred Weppner, of the Field Club; Farquhar, Stover and H. A. Robinson all tied, finishing 7 up.

Believe It Or Not (Reg. by U. S. Patent Office) By Ripley

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: PETRIFIED AT WILL—Stanley Pospisil, of Detroit, can erect a "petrified" house in which there are no nails, bolts, screws or pegs, no wood or shingles, no plaster and none of the ordinary building materials, yet the house is of double wall construction and is entirely fire-proof, storm-proof, insect-proof and sanitary. Pospisil uses a special building material that "petrifies" when solid, thus making the finished house just as intact and perfect as if it had been naturally petrified in its construction. HIGHEST HOLDOVER—Morgan G. Bulkeley (1837-1922) ran for Governor of Connecticut in 1888 against a Democratic opponent. None of the candidates received a majority of the popular vote and the election therefore devolved upon the State Legislature, which made Bulkeley Governor. At the next election, the people again failed to elect a Governor by popular vote, but this time the two legislative bodies, being of a different political faith, could not agree between them. A deadlock resulted, and, in acordance with the provision of the Constitution, Governor Bulkeley, although neither elected nor appointed, continued to hold office for another full term.

TOMORROW: THE GOLD STAR BEARDED MOTHER.

OWNER, PILOT CONFER ON PLAYERS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The rebuilding of the Pirate pitching staff and one or two other questional spots on the local club apparently received much attention today as Manager Pie Traynor and President William Benswanger, of the Forbes Field entry, held a conference shortly after the arrival home of the Buccos on top of their disastrous eastern trip.

The new pilot of the Pirates was ailing physically as he landed at the home port. The skipper has a case of sinus trouble that would keep many a player out of action. But Pie said he intended to remain in the lineup unless he gets worse.

VICTIM OF BREAKS

Traynor reiterated that his club was the victim of a dozen or more bad breaks on the long tour. His Buccos won only four of their 17 games on the eastern jaunt, but with a break here or there in the close ball games, the Pirates, Traynor averred, could easily have won eight or nine games on the jaunt.

Benswanger and Traynor were in touch with Scout Bill Hinchman, who is just finishing up a long quest for talent in the Pacific Coast League. Before today is over the Buccos may close a deal with the San Francisco Missions, where Pitcher Wayne Osborne, right-hand star of Gabby Street's team, will become a Pirate.

The Pirates really are interested in several members of the Mission club. At the last hour, the Pittsburgh officials may decide to switch to one of the others. Hinchman likes Osborne's style, the youngster having won 13 and lost 10 this year.

Italian-American citizens of Allegheny County will honor Secondbaseman Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto, of the Pirates, at tomorrow's clash of the Pirates and Cardinals. Men conspicious in the political and civic life of the county will take part in the festivities which will wind up with a banquet at Cocoanut Grove tomorrow evening.

Firstbaseman Jimmy Collins, of the St. Louis club, will be feted by his Nanty-Glo friends in the Sunday game between the Buccos and Redbirds.

Larry French's great pitching snapped the nine-game losing streak of the Buccos as they won the first game of a doubleheader with the Phillies in Philadelphia yesterday. French appeared to be on his way to a perfect game as he retired 21 batters in a row. Johnny Moore spoiled the no-hit affair in the eighth with a double. The Pirates scored a 3-0 victory in the early fight.

DAVIS CHECKS BUCS

Curt Davis turned the Pirates back in the second battle, 5 to 3. Phil Collins fought it out with French in the opener. Larry drove in the first run of the game with a single after two were out. Earl Grace connected for a homer.

Hal Smith opposed Davis in the nightcap, but the tall right-hander had to be relieved by Waite Hoyt. Paul Waner made a homer in this contest.

Credit Men Golf At Ambridge Sunday

Members of the Retail Credit Men's Association of Pittsburgh will stage their first annual golf tournament Sunday at the Ambridge Country Club. C. G. Kaessner, credit manager of Kaufmann's, is chairman of the tournament, which will get under way at 9 a. m.

David H. Goldman, president of the association, and many department store members have contributed attractive prizes.

WOOD TRAILS WATROUS AT HALFWAY MARK IN PRO DUEL

SHUTE ASSUMES BIG LEAD ON HOUGHTON

By ANTHONY PUGLIESE,
International News Service.

PARK COUNTRY CLUB, BUFFALO, N. Y., July 27.—Reeling off a blazing 67, five under par, Al Watrous, of Detroit, finished the first 18 holes of his 36-hole match 2 up on Craig Wood, Deal N. J., in the quarter-finals of the Professional Golfers' Association championship today.

Going out in 33, three under regulation figures, Watrous turned for home with a one-hole lead and his sub-par of 34 coming home increased his lead another hole.

Par took a another walloping when Denny Shute, of Philadelphia, finished with a 68 to go to lunch 4 up on Al Houghton, of Washington, D. C. Shute carded a brilliant inward 33 to wipe out a one-hole deficit and surge into a commanding lead.

Houghton, who went out in 34 to gain a 1 up lead, lost his deftness coming home, taking a 38 for an 18-hole card of 72.

Registering a sub-par 34 on the inward nine, Dick Metz, of Chicago, made up a one-hole deficit to finish all square with Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., at the halfway mark. Runyan carded a par 36 going out to take a one-hole lead, but his 35 coming home was not good enough to keep Metz from assuming the lead.

Playing superbly over the inward nine, the medalist, Bob Crowley, of Dedham, Mass., wiped out a three-hole deficit to finish his morning round 1 down to Gene Kunes, of Norristown, Pa.

Shooting a steady 37, one over par, Kunes turned for home 4 up.

The cards for 18 holes of the 36-hole quarter-final matches today follow:

O'CONNOR WINS IN PARKS NET TOURNEY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Jimmy O'Connor, who back in 1923 was classy enough to battle to the final of the West Penn men's singles classic, this morning carried the Highland colors into the windup of the Inter-Park Elimination Series of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph net championships by downing Joe Kristufek, crack McKeesporter and South Park representative, 5-7, 6-0, 6-4, 6-2, on the Frick Park court. This evening at 6:30 o'clock Harry Wald, Frick entry and top seeded favorite, engages Al McCabe, Olympia ace from Coraopolis, in the other penultimate contest.

Mrs. Jean Artzberger, West Park winner and City victor each year since her initial success in 1930, advanced to the feminine final yesterday disposing of Betty Recker, North Park hope, right decisively, 6-1, 6-3, in a semi-final fracas.

Elizabeth McColligan, South star, seeded second to Mrs. Artzberger, encountered unexpectedly formidable opposition from little Joy Hartman, youthful Olym is delegate, and was compelled to rally to pull out a 3-6, 6-1, 6-1 verdict.

Mrs. Artzberger and Miss McColligan will clash tomorrow, probably at 2:30 p. m., in inaugural contest of the wind-up card. Dr. Dave and Dr. John O'Loughlin, crack P. A. A. brethren, have accepted an invitation to appear in an exhibition tilt as added attraction to the tourney bill, and will very likely follow the ladies' finale and precede the masculine terminal debate, which last-named session will get under way at about 4:15 or 4:30 o'clock. The 36 Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph prizes will be on display at Frick throughout the Saturday seance and will be distributed to the various city and individual parks champions and runners-up on conclusion of the program of combat.

Miss Grimes Gains W. Va. Tennis Final

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 27.—(AP.)—Miss Frances Grimes, Morgantown tennis ace, advanced to the final round in the women's championship round of the West Virginia State open tournament today by defeating Miss Sara Moore, of Washington, 6-4, 6-4.

After winning the first set in stride, Miss Grimes trailed her opponent at 0-3 in the second and then put on a rally to win six of the next seven games.

Combs Remains In Critical Condition

ST. LOUIS, July 27.—(AP.)—The conditin of Earle Combs, New York Yankee outfielder who suffered a fractured skull and other injuries in a game with the St. Louis Browns Tuesday, remained critical today.

Combs went up in the air after a fly ball in Tuesday's game and crashed into a bleacher fence at Sportsman's Park. He suffered the skull injury, a broken collar bone and a resultant hemorrhage closed one of his eyes. Physicians said the accident might end his baseball days.

Reardon is one of the stars of the Mt. Lebanon Reds, of the South Hills League, which got off to a good start in its second half schedule by beating the Lewis Club 6-5, at the Washington School field. He's a good hitter. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

ALLISON BOWS TO BELL AT SEABRIGHT

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 27.—(AP.)—Life has become one disappointment after another for Wilmer Allison, the quiet, mild-mannered young Texan who ranks as the nation's No. 3 tennis singles player.

A couple of weeks ago Dick Williams, Davis Cup captain, cabled him an SOS that sent him racing across the Atlantic to join the Davis Cup squad as George Lott's doubles partner. But when he got there Lester Stoefen's play had improved to such an extent that Allison wasn't needed, and sadly he returned to play at Seabright.

Now, seeded No. 1, he watched from the sidelines today as Berkeley Bell, New York dynamo, was pitted against Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, another pint-sized explosive, in the first round for the highly prized singles silver bowl.

Allison was eliminated by Bell yesterday as the New Yorker rose to his greatest heights to win, 6-4, 6-0, 3-6, 7-5, while Grant subdued Henry Prusoff, of Seattle, the clouting star of the tournament up to that point, 3-6, 6-2, 8-6, 6-3.

Nothing in the women's division indicates that there will be serious opposition to Helen Hull Jacobs winning the women's singles bowl. The American women's champion will meet Carolin Babcock, of Los Angeles, in the final round tomorrow.

Dressen to Take Over Reds, Report

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 27.—(AP.)—The Nashville Banner says indications are that Charley Dressen, manager of the Nashville Vols, of the Southern Association, will leave tonight to assume managership of the Cincinnati Reds.

Larry McPhail, vice president of the Reds, contacted Fay Murray, president of the Vols, at his summer home in Minnesota yesterday, the paper reports, and officially made his offer for the services of Dressen, who led the local club to the Southern League's first-half championship.

U. S. NETTER ADVANCES

TORONTO, Ont., July 27.—(AP.)—Hal Surface, University of Texas star from Kansas City, reached the semi-final round yesterday in the Canadian tennis championships as another American, Phil Castlen, University of California captain, was eliminated in the quarter finals.

Surface defeated Laird Watt, of Montreal, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-0, and will meet the winner of a match postponed by rain, in which Bobby Murray, of Montreal, and Walter Martin, of Toronto, stood all even at two sets and two games all.

Marcel Rainville and Gilbert Nunns, Davis Cup players, qualified for the second semi-final.

CENTER TENNIS FINALS TODAY

Final contests of the annual Pittsburgh Center junior and boys' championship make up this afternoon's program for the youths' classic, in progress since Wednesday on the Pittsburgh Athletic Association courts.

The junior windup brings together the same duo that battled for the Western Pennsylvania 18-year-old bauble on the Pitt rectangles a week ago, Bob Madden, of the University Club, and Ralph Bald, of Rockwood. On the strength of straight-set triumph in the West Penn finale, Madden reigns a decided favorite.

In the boys' division an all-out-of-town tussle looms, diminutive George Soisson, of Connellsville being slated to encounter dark-horse Richard Haase, Uniontown threat, for the throne. The summary:

BOYS' DIVISION

Quarter-finals, upper half—Richard Haase defeated William Benz, 6-3, 6-3; Julius Broida defeated Jack O'Neil, 6-2, 6-2.
Quarter-finals, lower half—Baker Bradenbaugh defeated Robert Washabaugh, 11-9, 6-4.
Semi-finals, upper half—Richard Haase defeated Julius Broida, 6-1, 6-2.

NBF Entries Close Sunday

Any club interested in entering should get in touch with Steve Cox at Atlantic 1450 or write him at 204 Sixth avenue.

The Sport Shop, 14-inch mushball tournament entries close tomorrow. The winners will be sent to Chicago for three days. Hunzeker Radiators, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Shall Club, Valley Tigers and Glenshaw Glass are some of the teams entered.

Pirates Offered Hurler by Missions

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27.—(AP.)—Joe Bearwald, president of the San Francisco Missions, has given the Pittsburgh Pirates until today to decide on whether to take Wayne Osborne, young right-hander, as a concession for the failure of Lloyd Johnson, southpaw, to make good last spring. Johnson, turned back by the Pirates, was purchased last fall.

Osborne has won 13 and lost 10 games this season and his work impressed Scout Bill Hinchman, of Pittsburgh.

HORSE SETS RECORD

WINFIELD, Kan., July 27.—(AP.)—Buddy Maxey, 3-year-old pacer owned by Mrs. G. S. Davis, of Tulsa, Okla., paced the mile in the second heat in 2:04¼ at a harness race meeting here yesterday, lowering the state record of 2:07¼. Track officials said they believed the time also beat the world record, which they said was 2:05, for 3-year-old pacers running on a half mile track.

WILLOWS GETS SWIM

The Willows pool has been awarded the National A. A. U. junior women's organ. stroke swim, to be staged August 15. The A. M. A. senior mile championship also will be included on the card.

Personalities In Softball

Leo Yellen, star third baseman of the Campbell Lunch Shamrocks team, which took first place in Brackett III of the senior division by defeating the S. A. O'Tooles in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's amateur softball tournament, has been playing a great game. He is the fastest runner on the team and a dangerous batsman. The diminutive third sacker is a graduate of Peabody High School, where he starred in football, baseball and track.

Leo Yellen

Vince O'Toole, who is subbing at shortstop for Ira Rush, regular short fielder of the O'Tooles, of Hazelwood, has been performing splendidly in the short field. He is a fine batsman and a sure fielder. The O'Toole team is in second place in Bracket III of the senior competition.

CRIPPLED YANKEES REGAIN LEAD IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

GIANTS BOOST EDGE OVER CHICAGO

Associated Press.

Defying the lightning of injuries which struck again and again as they tourned the western sector of the American League, the Yankees returned eastward today with no appreciable loss as the result of their trip.

They were a half game ahead of Detroit when they left, and after dropping to second place, they were again in front as they returned. Despite injuries to Babe Ruth, Ben Chapman and Earle Combs, the Yanks fought their way back to the top yesterday when a brilliant hurling exhibition by Lefty Gomez and Lou Gehrig's twenty-ninth homer brought them a 3-to-1 victory over St. Louis while the Red Sox belted Detroit down for the second straight day, 11 to 2.

GOMEZ BRILLIANT

This gave the Yanks the lead by two percentage points. Gomez' contribution was a four-hit hurling job in which three blows came after one was out in the ninth.

The Red Sox never gave Detroit's elbowers a chance as they opened up on Vic Sorrell in the first and slammed out 17 hits, scoring in six innings.

The real drama in the American League's performance came in a meeting between two second division clubs when "Sad" Sam Jones, of Chicago, the oldest pitcher in the circuit and a big leaguer for more than 20 years, celebrated his forty-second birthday by shutting out Washington with six hits for a 9-to-0 victory. It was the second straight whitewashing administered to the 1933 champions and the Sox smacked out 11 hits to do it. The Athletics and Cleveland were rained out.

Although they couldn't shatter the jinx of the Dean brothers, the Giants again got the best of the National League struggle by adding a half game to their lead when they broke even in a doubleheader with the Cardinals. The two Deans, who haven't lost to New York this season, ganged up to win the opener, 7 to 2.

Fred Fitzsimmons squared the count, 6 to 3, with the aid of homers by Hughey Critz and Hank Leiber.

CUBS LOSE GROUND

The second-place Cubs, meanwhile, took one on the chin from the Dodgers, 6 to 3, when Danny Taylor's circuit blow with two aboard overcame an early Cub lead and gave Jim Weaver his first defeat of the season.

Pittsburgh's nine-game losing streak came to an end through the capable hurling of Larry French, who set the Phillies down with three hits to win the first half of a bargain bill, 3 to 0. The Phils came back behind Curt Davis to win the afterpiece, 5 to 3.

The defeat cost the Pirates a chance to regain fourth place as the Reds rose up and clouted the Braves into submission, 12 to 5.

BATTLE MARKS TUBERS' WIN

Leo Mackey, catcher and manager of the McKeesport team of the Penn State Association, landed a right hand on the chin of Cindric, Washington right fielder, after an altercation at the plate as McKeesport defeated the Generals last evening, 12 to 10. Cindric objected to the way in which Mackey blocked him at the plate and addressed a few choice remarks in Leo's direction which brought the punch.

Lee limited Monessen to two hits as Charleroi nosed out a 3-to-2 win at Charleroi and Greensburg downed Jeannette, 9 to 4, at Jeannette.

A booster day program is scheduled at McKeesport this evening with the McKeesport and Greensburg teams clashing and members of the Pirates and Cardinals on hand as spectators and guests at a banquet later. A field meet at 5:30 will precede the game.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Washington—Natie Brown defeated Arthur Huttick, 10 rounds; Steve Dudas knocked out Will Matthews, 2 rounds; Earl Dunlap and Bobby Jones drew, 4 rounds.

At Sacramento, Cal. — Manuel Pancho Villa and Kid Morrow drew, 10 rounds.

At Dallas Tex.—Pat Murphy knocked out Bobby Burns, 1 round; Frankie Graham defeated Chato Gonzales, 8 rounds.

At Grand Junction, Col.—Hershey Wilson knocked out Buster Conner, 2 rounds.

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Mike Payan vs. Ceferino Garcia, 10 rounds, Hollywood, Cal.
George von der Hayden vs. Carl Daspaugh and Franklin Young vs. K. O. Morgan, Dearborn, Mich.

To the Sports Editor:

Fellows on many teams tell me from time to time that fans ask them why they don't win the pennant. It just isn't possible for every team to win the pennant any more than it is possible to stop the rain from falling or the stars from shining. Only one team can win the pennant in any league and seven have to loose for that year. There is something even bigger than winning any one pennant, and that is give the home fans a great game of ball every day. Sure, people like a winner and every team that ses out is determined to try t that much harder next r.

Homew'd	5	5	.375

The chances of the Homewood club becoming a serious contender for second half honors in the City League received a boost today when Manager Bill Dalzell announced that Joe Beggs, crack hurler, had returned from the Scranton club of the New York-Pennsylvania League, and signed again with the Homewooders.

Beggs, former Geneva track star, was the pitching sensation of the first half race. His work attracted scouts from the Mid-Atlantic League club. After a few weeks with Springfield he was sent to Scranton, but returned home last night. Beggs, Bruce and Joe Miller give Dalzell a real pitching staff for the remaining games.

Homewood is scheduled to play at Altoona tomorrow, and Beggs will start on the slab.

Dalzell also announced that he had signed Stan Kaldron, an infielder, formerly of the J. L. Thomas nine. Kaldron received a broken nose while playing for the Bloomfielders that cut short his appearance in City League circles.

Two games are carded in the City League this evening. Parmelee goes to Dormont and the Book nine, defending champion, travels to the Salt Works to meet the Vaughans.

The Homestead Grays make their first appearance since July 4 at Greenlee Field tomorrow evening when they meet the Baltimore Blacksox at 6:15.

SPORT VIGNETTES

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

Comes word from K. E. Davis, popular former graduate athletic manager of the University of Pittsburgh, now athletic director at Western Reserve University, in Cleveland, that they're looking forward to better things in a football way there with Sam Willaman, former Ohio University coach, on the job as head mentor.

Karl will be at Reserve five years on August 1.

Reserve will go back to League Park for its home games this fall, the Municipal Stadium being too large, as it is for baseball. Within a year or two Reserve will have its own compact stadium, seating about 20,000.

The Cleveland university was forced to turn down a bid from St. Vincent College for a game this fall, due to the fact that its schedule is full.

News that Earl Combs, Yankees' outfielder, may be definitely through as a baseball player as a result of head injuries received in a collision, recalls the story they tell about the Kentuckian. He was asked one time if he didn't think he got a good break when he was successful in making his way to the major leagues as a star with the powerful Yankees, and replied:

"I don't know. If I had stayed on the farm I might have struck oil."

Harry Beale, secretary of the Pittsburgh Crawfords Negro baseball team, says Smoky Joe Williams, now almost 60 years old, could command his own price to come back to the game, but he prefers, after 40 years of baseball, to take things easy serving up suds in a thirst-quenching emporium in New York. And he reveals the fact that Satchel Paige, the leading pitcher in Negro baseball today, got that "Satchel" label because of the size of his feet, which are young Carneras.

The comeback of the United States Davis Cup team against Australia after losing the first two singles matches and being almost hopelessly out of the running should inspire a great battle against England in the challenge round beginning tomorrow. If there was any trace of an inferiority complex within the team's ranks, it should have been definitely killed by that fine achievement.

Want to know the inside story of how Bus Vogel and his Hickey Park Boxing Club landed the Vince Dundee-Ted Yarosz middleweight title bout? It grew out of a small incident, and the return home of the Zivic brothers from their California jaunt. Eddie Zivic fought Joey Costa, of New York, at Hickey Park, and won by a technical knockout with 25 seconds to go in the tenth round. It was a swell rematch, and Lew Raymond, rival promoter, lured the fighters away to Greenlee Field for Thursday night of last week, when Zivic won again, this time with a clean-cut knockout in nine rounds, drawing the best gate of the outdoor season thus far.

When Andy Ross, partner of Vogel at Hickey Park, learned that Raymond had clinched the return bout, he got his dander up and told Bus to hop on a train and go to New York to sign Dundee. He knew Raymond wanted a Yarosz-Dundee bout above everything else and that the best way to get even with Lew was to take away this plum. He arranged for the backing and Vogel was able to guarantee Dundee $25,000—$10,000 more than Raymond could offer him. Large oaks from little acorns grow.

There are all sorts of sports and games, and it remained for the Foremen's Association of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company to invent a new one for its annual picnic at Woodside Park tomorrow afternoon. It's a balloon contest in which teams with balloons attached to their belts compete. At a signal from the referee the teams sally forth equipped with wands and the idea is to keep from having your balloon busted. The team with the most intact balloons when the referee blows his "cease firing" whistle is the winner. The balloons are the least strenuous part of the battle. They don't hurt, but wands do, and the players go about their fun with vim and vigor. If tomorrow's contest is too tame, it is planned to substitute baseball bats for the wands in the future. The Westinghousers are quite expert at holding picnics. They've been doing it for 21 years and practice makes perfect.

Joe Tobin and Charley Wolfe, local sports promoters, who staged the six-day bike race in Duquesne Garden during the past winter, have been going over big at their dog racing track at Canfield, O., where they recently netted $2,580 for two Youngstown hospitals in a benefit night show, and are branching out. They've taken a lease on 52 acres of ground outside Arkon and are getting ready to start work on a new track which should be ready about the middle of next month. The Canfield track has been in action since July 1, following an inaugural meeting last year. The coming of fall will see Wolfe and Tobin staging another bike grind here.

LENORE KIGHT WINS, BOWS IN TITLE MEET

DETROIT, July 27.—(AP.)—One national championship changed hands and two other titles were retained successfully here yesterday as women aquatic stars of the nation opened a four-day program of National A. A. U. swimming and diving championships.

Blonde, 18-year-old Olive McKean, of Seattle, Wash., gained her first national outdoor title by winning the 100-meter free-style to defeat the defending champion, Lenore Kight, of Homestead, Pa.

Miss McKean, who took the 100-meters indoor title away from Miss Kight last spring in Chicago, swam a well-planned race, allowing the Pennsylvania girl to set the pace until the race was three-quarters over. She then sprinted to win from Miss Kight, by less than two yards in 1:11:07.

Miss Kight fared better in the second event, winning the National mile swim to retain her title. Her time was 25:10:05.

Katherine Rawls, of Miami, successfully defended her three meters National diving championship, but was pushed hard all the way by Mrs. Dorothy Poynton Hill. Miss Rawls scored 133.44 points, with Mrs. Hill scoring 127.23. The summary:

CHAPTER VII.

"I'll have to smash into these chests with a rock."

"Don't do that, Jerry. I've got a hunch he's apt to come back any moment."

"You've got to have some clothes, especially shoes."

"It's too hot for many clothes, and I couldn't wear his shoes." She thrust out a small foot that was both shapely and strong. "Can't you make me some sort of sandal puttee thing?"

"I might do that. But you're nearly naked. There's not so much as a shawl or table cloth inside. It may be chilly after dark."

"Not under cover. There's a grass sleeping mat on the bed."

"And the bed is woven cane like a chair. If you'll go in and lie on it awhile I'll locate that bell and see what I can find."

"Nothing doing," she said decidedly.

"Then I've got to get you shod somehow."

"Both of us," she agreed.

"It seems a simple proposition but I haven't so much as a knife. I've just got to smash open these chests."

"No, don't. This doctor man is apt to be a nut himself and we don't want to start by making him sore. We've got shelter and food enough. Let's wait awhile."

Utensils Put Away

Jerome unwillingly agreed. He went back to the kitchen storehouse to rummage around. There was not so much as a dish rag. All of the utensils except a can opener with a corkscrew had been put away. The fact that everything had been put away made it look as if the premises might be vacated for some time and that this precaution for hiding all removable objects had been taken against the risk of the mischievous prowlers who had already made the castaways so much trouble.

"But these must certainly have some sort of keepers," Jerome argued.

He cupped his mouth with his hands and for several minutes shouted into the jungle. There was no response at all until presently the macaw became excited and began to screech and jabber. Jerome gave it up in disgust.

The sun climbed up on meridian. They went to the cook house and prepared a more elaborate meal. Afterwards Linda lay down on the bed and Jerome on a rattan couch. The heavy shade protected the premises from the sun. A profound silence rested all about. There was not even the sound of surf here on the lee side of the island.

Hunts Name

Linda woke from a troubled nap and went into the big room to find Jerome again examining the books. "Making the best of our marooning to improve your mind?"

"No. I'm looking for this fellow's name. It's not in any of these volumes."

The afternoon wore on. Linda began to fret at the inertia imposed on them. But she still objected to Jerome's smashing into any of the chests. He could not understand such opposition on the part of a girl who had hitherto defied all obstacles to her convenience.

They made a light supper and presently the darkness fell. Even the macaw had departed. Both had expected a visit from somebody. But their privacy remained as absolute as if under a taboo.

"The worst of this," Jerome said, "is not being able to get about. Tomorrow if nothing happens I'll get us rigged out somehow."

They were on the veranda where it was less gloomy and oppressive than in the darkening house. Linda streched herself out on the rattan couch.

She said drowsily, "I like it out here. It's lovely."

Fall Asleep

The air was soft and warm and sweet from the jasmine and orange blossoms. Jerome stepped inside and dragged out a caned chaise longue. Like Linda he felt the oppression of the dark interior. It gave him a claustrophobia and it was actually warmer outside. Also there was a companionship to be had from the trees and flowering bushes.

Presently Linda's soft even breathing told she had fallen asleep. Time enough to go inside when it got chilly, Jerome told himself. He relaxed and drowsiness came over him. There was also a comforting and soothing sense of living presence in the murmur of the little stream.

The reassurance of Mother Nature when warm and tender is always better than the gloomy austerity of a bare interior with confining walls. Jerome fell asleep.

He awakened with a start. He had the eerie impression that something had brushed over his face, then tugged sharply at his light sleeveless shirt. Confused with sleep he could not be sure that anything had really touched him. He had been sleeping with his face turned toward the wall of the house and for a moment he lay quite still trying to determine what had roused him, whether real or imaginary.

Close by Linda's soft breathing told him she was restfully sleeping. The night air was balmy, sweet and warm, and the thatched roof of the veranda that sloped down low to its rail sheltered them from the dew. It seemed warmer even than when they had lain down, and Jerome was perspiring lightly.

Clothes Stolen

He composed himself for sleep again and his consciousness was vague when brought back by a piercing scream from Linda. She had scrambled up on her couch and screamed again, in a strangled terrified way. Thoroughly roused, Jerome swung round.

"What is it"

"Jerry! Jerry!"

"Here! Here I am." The darkness was so profound that could see nothing at all except the faint gleam of the pool.

"Jerry—somebody has torn off my slip. Listen. Oh, what is it?"

There came from the dark at the end of the verandad a slithering sound followed by a rustling of foliage as if a bough were bing slightly shaken. Linda wailed, "It's the beast that stole our clothes. It's ripped off my slip. I'm nearly naked."

Then some thing had plucked at him, and the impression of cold fingers passing delicately over his face was real. Worst of all was the horrid awareness of futility in the heavy murk.

To add to their bewilderment the stillness was suddenly rent by the wild mocking cry that even in the hot blazing sunlight on the open beach had struck a chill through them. Linda shrieked again and plunged against Jerome, gripping him in the frenzy of a terrified child. He flung his arms around her and they both fell back on the chaise longue.

Lindy Trembling

For the moment it seemed to Jerome that this fresh shock had driven Linda into a convulsion. She was gasping and trembling and he could hear the chatter of her teeth.

He said soothingly, "Steady, Linda. It's just another prank."

"Prank," she cried, "and who's playing it? I tell you I'm stripped."

He did not need to be told that. But in itself it seemed unimportant. As soon as it was light enough he meant to remedy it. They were already beyond conventionalities, as quickly happens to anybody when plunged into some terrifying crisis, shipwreck or fire, or violent accident or illness, and clothing becomes a mere superficialty of life and safety. He continued to hold and to soothe the terrifed girl.

"Listen Linda," he gave her a little shake. "All this stuff is mischievous but not dangerous. Whoever it is has a mania for clothes."

"But those horrid yells. Like devils. It pawed me softly."

"I felt something too," he said "plucking at my shirt. If it had been malicious it would have tried to hurt us. Let's go inside and lock up."

They went into the house and closed the door. Jerome had left some matches on the table. Fumbling about he found them and struck one. He glanced at Linda and blew it out again.

"Oh, never mind," she said, "I'm way past bothering about modesty."

"Nothing can get in to get at you here," he said.

Plan Campaign

"Well, roll up in the sleeping mat."

"Alone in that black hole? Not me."

"Nothing can get in."

"There's only the window screen and flimsy wooden shutters."

"They're heavy wooden shutters, but I'll haul in the settee and have the butt of the oar nice and handy. The next time this joker goes clothes-snatching he's going to lose the scrap of brains he's got left.'

"Look out you don't get me in the dark. I want to live long enough to find out what this is all about— and then do plenty about it."

"That's the line. The antidote for panic is to get your mad up. If this Professor makes a fuss about my smashing his chests I'll smash him."

"We're getting the idea. Tomorrow we'll go after shoes and things. We'll find where he keeps his locos and put the fear of Satan in the keeper."

Synopsis

Jerome Crain, young shipbuilder, and a lovely society girl, named Linda, escape in a skiff from a yacht held in quarantine off San Cristobal. Jerome and Linda dislike each other; but, nevertheless, are willing to risk being mutually bored rather than endure an indefinite stay aboard ship. From the moment they land on a strange island, queer happenings occur. Their boat is set adrift, their clothing stolen; yet there is no other sign of a living human, except periodic cries from the jungle. Exploring, they come upon a small plantation and house, having every appearance of being well tended but vacant. Among the few house furnishings are some priceless Spanish chests. The discovery of a heavy whip leads Linda and Jerry to assume that the owner must be cruel. Suddenly a bell starts clanging and again the strange screams are heard. Jerome fears they may be in an isolated leper colony and that the house is the keeper's. Plenty of food, but no clothing is available.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

The new Junior Patrol contest began yesterday, fellows!

Have you mailed at least one letter? Better get busy, fellows—one little letter that should be less than 100 words may win you one of the big prizes — $2.50, $1.50 and $1.

Only Junior Patrol members can compete, so if you aren't a member now, send in your pledge right away. And if you are a member, be sure to put your badge number or card number somewhere on your letter.

We will probably print the winning letters—or at least the names—in last weeks big contest tomorrow. We are looking forward to seeing some mighty interesting letters about the best vacations you ever had.

And that reminds us, fellows, we would like to hear from any Junior Patrol members who go away for a vacation.

Maybe you went to the Worlds Fair this summer. We certainly would like to get a letter telling us what you saw there, and what you thought was the best.

We have a friend who went to Baltimore and got on a ship there that is taking him to Boston and back again. For seven days, he will be on board ship steaming up along the American coast. Just shows you how big our country is. It is a long journey just to go from one city on our coast to another sometimes.

But not everybody has enough money to take a swell ocean voyage. Well, there are many other ways of having a wonderful vacation. We noticed that Mrs. Roosevelt says she heard of one mother who took her vacation right at home. Instead of cooking lunch everyday, she packed a picnic lunch, and her whole family went out in the park or nearest cool shady spot to eat it.

And sometimes they just all got on the street car and went to see the most interesting things they could find right in their own city. Lots of people who live right here in Pittsburgh, and who go away for a vacation "to see something new" haven't seen the wonderful things right here in Pittsburgh.

Beauty Bars

Daily Short Short Story

By R. H. DAVIS

Mme. Frances, of Mme. Frances' beauty salon, was furious. She eyed them sternly, and when sterner eyeing is done—well——

"I won't have it!" she told them fiercely. "I simply won't have it! You knew, both of you, when I gave you your jobs here, that I don't allow it."

"But, me and Mame——" began Charles, master bobber and wave setter and descendant of a long line of plumbers, brickmasons and such—"Me and Mame just wanted to——"

"That's it exactly," raged Mme. Frances. "You just wanted to——"

"It's a rule here," Mme. Frances went on, ignoring the interruption, "that none of the operators can get married. When two operators get married they ain't worth a darn from then on."

"Me and Mame," said Charles quickly, "just wanted to know if we could get off at the same time so we could eat together?"

"Oh!" said Mme. Frances weakly. "Oh!"

"Please!" said Mame, manicurist extraordinary, facial expert imported directly from Paris, and—well, ask Mme. Frances.

Mme. Frances eyed them warily, suspiciously. "I guess it'd be all right," she muttered, and walked away.

"That husband of hers musta been a sweet guy to make her so bitter against marriage," said Mame.

"Yep," agreed Charles—"sweet like arsenic."

Mame and Charles leaned on a showcase, with elbows touching, whispering. They were oblivious to the suspicious stares directed at them occasionally by Mme. Frances.

"Who is Betty working on?" Charles asked.

"Mrs. Byington," Mame told him, and raised her eyebrows haughtily—"the Mrs. Byington, you know. She's just another snooty blonde to me. I'm glad she ain't my customer—"

"Help!! Murder!!"

The sleepy shop jerked to life. Mme. Frances jumped from her seat and with white face and frightened eyes raced for the booth from which the screams were coming.

She ripped the curtain aside and came face to face with a woman whose eyes, face and voice informed her and the world at large that she had been despoiled of everything that made life worth living. Just back of her stood the sobbing operator, Betty.

"So this is the kind of work you do in this shop!" shrieked Mrs. Byington, clutching frantically at her hair. "Just look at my hair! Look at it, you fools! It's ruined! I'll sue you!" Her voice trailed off into agonized moans.

Mme Frances turned to Betty. "What happened?" she asked, her voice a strange mixture of rage and fear.

"I-I d-don't know," sobbed Betty. "I-I put the dye on right, b-but the end of her hair t-turned black. I-I know I p-put it on right. I-I know—"

Mme. Frances turned again to the raging Mrs. Byington. What she saw did not amuse her—a bobbed, ash blond head of hair, with a full two inches of the tips coal black. It meant a damage suit, she knew, and even if she won the suit her professional reputation was ruined. It meant the end, and she knew it. She might just as well close up shop.

"Why not leave it to ol' Doc Charles?" A suave, cheerful voice broke in on the duet of sobs coming from Mrs. Byington and the operator. "He can fix it," the voice assured them.

Mme. Frances looked up hopelessly, almost resentfully, at the smiling face of her master bobber, but he was not looking at her. He was taking the irate, weeping Mrs. Byington by the arm and was leading her firmly toward his barber chair.

Snip, snip! Huddled in a group, they watcher, wide-eyed, as the deft Charles worked his magic.

Snip, snip! Before their very eyes coal-black ends were disappearing and presently nothing remained but ash-blond hair.

"My latest creation!" Charles cried dramatically with uplifted finger and scissors. He winked slyly at Mame, then beamed on the astounded Mme. Frances.

It really didn't look so bad and they all crowded around and sighted ecstatically. "Superb! Simply marvelous! So unique! Beautiful——"

That night Mme. Frances stopped them as they were leaving the shop. She eyed them sternly, and when sterner eyeing is done—well—

"I just wanted to say," she told Charles, "well—thanks! And if you crazy kids ain't got any better sense than to wanta get married why it's your own funeral."

"Thanks, Mme. Frances!" said Mame.

"Yeah," said Charles, "thanks!"

"What do you want for a wedding present?" asked Mme. Frances.

"Well, I dunno," began Mame.

"It's kinda late for that," Charles explained. "You see, me and Mame has been married for six months."

"Oh!" said Mme. Frances. "Oh!"

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

The Poplar Tree

As the poplar tree waits for April,
So I am awaiting you,
That my life may put out in a thousand leaves
As love's tide comes flooding through!

For a sunless season of living
I have slept with the wintry world:
But I stir in strange winds forecasting
The flags of the forest unfurled!

I thrill with the promise of springtime
As I wait, after blear days' strife,
For you, who in coming will bring me
A richer and fuller life.

Though I know not your face or your footfall,
You will come, for my dream is true;
As the poplar tree waits for April,
So I am waiting for you!

THAT'S TELLING 'EM

(From the 32-years-ago column in the Oakin Mine Enterprise.)

One of our farmers was driving slowly along the street one day with a top-box on his wagon, over the edge of which could be seen the heads of several sheep and some young stock which he was taking to market. As he drove along he was accosted by a slick city dude who thought he would play a joke on the "hayseed." He sang out, "Say Noah, your ark seems pretty well crowded today." The farmer, who lives south of Cokato, looked at the fellow unconcerned like and replied, "Don't worry, I reserved a place for a jack-ass, and you can step right in." The city upstart felt like thirty cents, and never squeaked but went right on.

SUCCESS NO. 98567

Today we pause at Page 3425 of Who's Who in America to honor Gillus B. McGillus, head of far-famed McGillus Office Equipment Corporation. By sheer grit, Mr. McGillus inherited his colossal business from his aunt. Recognizing his opportunity, "G. B." as we like to call him, invented one gadget after another to involve the mechanics of business administration. He perfected the illuminated Pin Map, each pin of which is a tiny electric bulb, which flashes on and off. He put on the market an office drinking device — when the inverted bottle is empty a camera eye automatically records the fact and blows a siren on the top of the building. But his latest and greatest triumph is now ready for announcement. It is the A-1 Efficiency Time-Saving Filing Cabinet which comes delivered to the purchaser already full of useless data, properly filed under improper indexes, and with all drawers arranged so that the handle pulls out before the drawer will open.

Old Affa Claffa, the ancient Turk, kicked forth for paradise last month.

He had clinched life's trellis until he achieved the exorbitant age of 158 well-lanced years. You might think we would let it go at that and wish Affa a pleasant journey.

After all, the history of the world shows if you live to be old enough, people will respect you. A long white beard is a badge of reverence provided you know it and keep out of the kiddy's swimming pool and off carousels.

When they are looking for dancing partners or heroes to fight battles, they usually look at us ancients and say, "Well, grandpop is too old. He can stay home and wave his bridgework."

Then, again, growing up to be 158 is a remarkable feat with traffic the way it is. We should have conceded that the old-timer has accomplished something and given him credit for being at least good and old.

Did we do that? We did not. The doctors garnished the old fellow's shrunken body and went to work on it. And what do you think they said?

They claimed he should never have lived to be 158 and that he was living a lie. The autopsy showed he had 60 different major ailments. His feet didn't track. His heart had been skipping beats since 1836. That's a long time ago on any suburban time table. His liver had shrunken smaller than moth balls in an attic trunk.

He had been in such fierce shape since 1812 that even his hat would have poisoned a well. That's what the doctors said. And maybe it was a good thing that not one of the docs caught up to him until he was ready to go.

The doctors said he had no business living past the Civil War. And when the doctors say you have no biz living, they can usually fix it up so you scan go out of business. But this old Turk didn't speak English. He was tougher than a gorilla's battle roar and just went on piling up his batting average.

The only diagnosis any doctor could give him over here was to shake his head sadly at the perennial everblooming Turk and say, "This can't go on forever."

That made the old Turk chuckle heartily. He thought the doctor was talking about the hot weather.

Now that he is departed, we think he should get the credit for doing something unusual. Carve 158 years on his monument and keep the expert accountants away from the marble ledger. Don't let 'em chisel it down to 123.

Workmen's Compensation

The Consumers' League Report Gives Point to One Of Candidate Earle's Planks

Serious charges are made by the Consumers' League of Pennsylvania in a detailed report on the manner in which the Workmen's Compensation Act is administered.

Innumerable workers who are entitled to compensation for injuries are cheated out of it, the league says, through the slippery practices of insurance companies. The insurance companies force the injured workers to take their cases into court; and the workers, "poor, ignorant of litigation and often without counsel," are easily beaten by the companies, which are past masters in the art of contesting such cases.

The league declares that the administration of the compensation law has been placed in the hands of politicians who are incompetent and lax. Names are given and specific instances cited.

All of this reminds us that George H. Earle, the Democratic nominee for Governor, has in his platform a plank calling for a stronger workmen's compensation law.

If half of what the Consumers' League says is true, this is a very good plank.

People in Glass Houses

Chief Murren Has No Right to Protest Against Raids By the State Police

George W. Murren, chief of Allegheny County's detective bureau, is about the last person who should protest against raids by the state police in municipalities which have their own police. Yet he has done that very thing in his new capacity as president of the Pennsylvania Police Chiefs' Association, according to a dispatch from Williamsport, where the association has been holding a convention.

Mr. Murren is estopped, as the lawyers say, from making such a protest because he does not "come into court with clean hands."

His own force has made raids in Pittsburgh when it thought the Pittsburgh police were not doing their duty.

And in the best-known case of a state police raid in Allegheny County—the raid on the Monaca Club, a gambling resort and speakeasy—the state police did not come in until Murren's detectives plainly showed they intended to do nothing. The state police came, moreover, at the request of the then Presiding Judge of Criminal Court.

People in glass houses should not throw stones.

Relief for Landlords

Those Who Shelter the Indigent Are Entitled to State Aid

The welcome announcement is made that landlords in Allegheny County who provide shelter for the indigent unemployed are to be partly reimbursed out of public funds.

This is no more than just.

The state has been paying for the food of the unemployed ever since it undertook their relief.

During the last year it has been paying physicians for medical attention given the destitute.

Property owners who let their houses be used by persons unable to pay rent are equally deserving of compensation.

Besides remedying an injustice the new plan is to be commended because it will enable many landlords to pay their taxes.

It is praiseworthy, too, because it relieves social workers of the necessity—if it ever was a necessity—of helping their "clients" to obtain houses for which there was little chance of their being able to pay rent. The social workers have felt that it was incumbent on them to maintain silence as to their "clients'" indigence, since, if it was known, landlords might not accept them; but many of the social workers felt that in this practice they were more or less abetting in a fraud.

The new arrangement is an experiment. If not too much is expected, and landlords and all others concerned are scrupulously honest, it should succeed.

Spoils System Triumphs

The Executive Order Concerning the Soldiers' Home Employes Is Indefensible

From the Federal Bar Association in Washington, D. C., comes the heartening assurance that a committee of its members has been appointed to study the feasibility of blocking by court action the inexplicable and indefensible executive order depriving 400 employes of the soldiers' home at Johnson City, Tenn., of their civil service status.

This astounding order was issued by President Roosevelt after Congress had adjourned and no explanation has ever come from the White House of the reasons or the influences that prompted the President's action in this case.

From Tennessee the word has come, however, that it was done to aid the political candidacies of certain party leaders having the support of Postmaster General Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Regardless of who appealed for such an order, and regardless of who will be its political beneficiaries, this attack upon the merit system violates the underlying principles of all civil service legislation.

It is in conflict with everything Mr. Roosevelt has said as a member of the New York Legislature, as the Democratic nominee for Vice President in 1920, as Governor of the State of New York for two terms, and as President of the United States, in seeming support of the merit system and of civil service reform.

The federal employes at Johnson City were placed in the classified service by executive order during the last administration and this order was issued in accord with specific legislation.

It is the contention of the Federal Bar Association and of other advocates of the extension of the civil service that the Roosevelt order is illegal and that the courts will so decide if a way can be found to bring the issue before them.

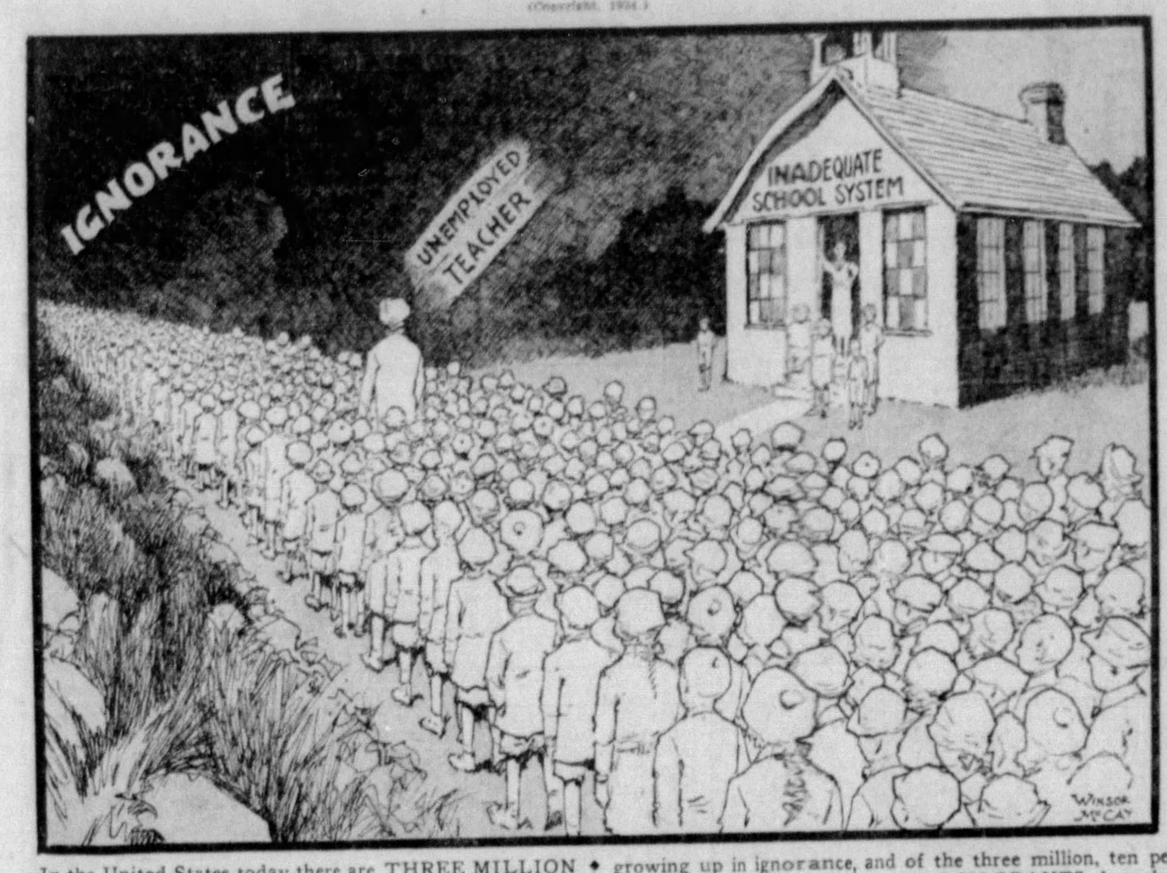
Whether declared illegal by the courts or not, it is contrary to the public interest. It is demoralizing to the federal service. And it will be rebuked by the American people in due time as an attempt to undermine the merit system and subject all federal employes to the exploitation of pork-barrel politicians.

When he entered the White House, President Roosevelt gave the country to believe that he was against the spoils system and in favor of the merit system.

But the Johnson City order is the hardest blow the merit system has received from any President of the United States in many a year, because it abolished the merit system for appointments of 400 employes protected by it and turns over the offices they held to the distribution of political spoilsmen.

Whither!

(Copyright, 1934.)



In the United States today there are THREE MILLION CHILDREN unable to attend school because the nation and the States HAVE NOT PROVIDED ENOUGH SCHOOLS FOR THEM TO ATTEND.

The schools that are provided have been found disgracefully inadequate in many regions—nothing better than the "little red schoolhouse" of frontier days still exists in as many as 148,712 communities!

Why? Because a nation that spends MORE THAN FOUR THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS a year on a few of its luxuries spends only about HALF THAT SUM on education, the greatest essential known. And the sum available for education is not enough to make a school seat for each of our 26,000,000 children of school age.

As a consequence, we have our three million children growing up in ignorance, and of the three million, ten percent—300,000 of them—are actual VAGRANTS, homeless wanderers, like the "wild children" of Russia, roving the countryside as tramps!

All these astonishing figures have been compiled by Joseph Miller, Jr., secretary of the New York City Board of Education and president of the National Association of Public School Business Officials.

There is no real excuse for such conditions.

American taxpayers are putting up something like nine thousand million dollars a year for county and local government, to keep hordes of politicians in soft jobs.

An obvious solution of the school problem is LESS government and MORE schools.

Fewer politicians in public jobs will permit EVERY CHILD to get some kind of education.

U. S. AVIATION LAGS

By James T. Williams, Jr.

EDMUND BURKE, the British statesman, had a profound appreciation of the indespensible value of facts.

"Facts are to the mind," said Burke, "the same thing as food to the body. On the digestion of facts depends the strength and wisdom of the one, just as vigor and health depend on the other."

One of the most interesting and useful features of the comprehensive report on aviation in general and American military aviation in particular which has just been made by a distinguished committee of experts, of which Newton D. Baker, of Ohio, was chairman, is the mass of well-digested facts about aviation at home and abroad.

The Baker committee finds that there has been a remarkable development in all phases of aviation since the study of the Morrow board was completed in 1929.

In the commercial field, this progress is exemplified by the following changes between the calendar years 1927 and 1933.

"Scheduled flying other than airmail increased from 638,000 to 10,860,000 miles; miscellaneous flying from 30,000,000 to 71,200,000 miles; airmail mileage from 328 routes and [illegible] scheduled miles with 24 round trips a month to 27,000 routes and 3,274,000 scheduled miles with 1,328 round trips per month, approximately 40,000,000 miles per year.

"Miles flown per fatal accident have increased for scheduled flying from 638,000 to in excess of 5,550,000, and there has been a similar increase for miscellaneous flying from 315,000 miles flown per fatal accident to about 400,000."

* * *

Great Increase In Cruising Speed

THERE has also been a tremendous increase since 1926 in the cruising speed and load capacity of airplanes, in the development of flying facilities, and in the progress that has been made in the design and construction of aircraft and in the improvement of aircraft accessories.

Facts assembled by the Baker committee also prove conclusively that the airline transportation and commercial aviation of the United States "is far ahead of that of foreign nations."

In its comparison of commercial aviation in this country with that of foreign countries, the Baker committees gives these highly significant facts:

"There is more transport flying in the United States, with more passengers carried annually, than in all the rest of the world combined.

"Our airline transport development has resulted in airplanes superior in design, characteristics and performance to those of any other nation. Our airplane pilots are more highly trained than those of any other country. Our facilities and equipment, except as to certain types of engines, surpass all others. We lead in the development and use of navigation instruments and in our communication system."

This leadership is not confined to air-line transportation and commercial aviation. Findings of fact arrived at by the Baker committee reveal that the United States also leads the world in tested combat types of military airplanes and in naval combat aviation the United States leads both in numbers and types of planes.

The reason for this leadership in both commercial and naval aviation is to be found in the fact that the established aviation policy of the United States, which dates from the Morrow board, has been carried out in the development of commercial and naval aviation.

* * *

Military Aviation Has Been Neglected

THIS policy has not been carried out in the development of military aviation. And the failure to carry out this established policy in this regard explains the loss to other countries by the United States of leadership in military aviation.

In its report the Baker committee has shown the courage to face the facts about aviation. In its conclusions and recommendations for improving military aviation, it has shown the wisdom to follow where the facts lead.

Whenever the President and the Congress will unite in following established aviation policy, the United States will soon again lead the world in military aviation, just as it now leads the world in commercial and naval aviation. This means more money for the training and equipment and expansion of the Army Air Corps.

PINCH HITTERS

By Winifred Black

Blanche is going to write a speech.

No, not make a speech—write it!

Blanche couldn't make a speech if her life depended on it—that is she couldn't make it for herself.

There is a standing bet among her friends that she would make a speech if some friend of hers asked her to help her out of a difficulty.

Even as a little girl, poor little Blanche could never take part in any Sunday school entertainments—she would just choke up and get so scared that it was pitiful to have to look at her.

A premeditated program of any sort always seemed to scare the life out of Blanche—but let some little friend get into trouble and before anyone knew what had happened, right into the midst of it Blanche waded.

"Pinch hitter" is what her friends call her.

And so no one was surprised to hear that Blanche was writing a speech.

No—no one who knows Blanche has the faintest idea but that it will be a good speech, because she's doing it for someone else.

Of course, all Blanche's friends would like to shake her and make her look out for herself more.

But if they did wake her up—who'd be business adviser and attorney-in-fact for all her friends when they go to Europe—Blanche has more business of other people's to attend to than old Uncle Frank Matcher, who used to be appointed guardian and administrator for every widow and orphan in the county—and never had any business of his own.

I don't know—I think it would be rather a pity to make Blanche over—I just can't imagine anyone turning to an aggressive Blanche when they're in trouble, can you?

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

You Will Go On!

The most hideous thing about trouble is the way it seems to end everything. Not just your hopes and health and happiness, but you, yourself, seem finished. One moment life spreads out endlessly. The next—you're up against a blank wall.

Your friends tell you to cheer up—snap out of it. Patiently, tenderly—or with growing exasperation—they tell you how much worse things might be . . . how lucky you still are . . . and remind you of how you've pulled yourself out of far worse tail spins in the past.

But their arguments fall on deaf ears. You can't explain, but you know that this time everything is really over. There can be no come-back. The world will go on—yes. Others will dream and laugh and battle. But for you—it's finished. Something deep within you has come to the end.

Yes, I know that mood. Who doesn't? But it doesn't come to me any more. It passed in one night.

Aptly enough, it was on the desert. I was no longer young, and I was in heavy trouble. The mining work, which had made life possible for my sick boy, had ceased. There was no [illegible] waiting—nor had I any training for any job. I had no place to go—nothing to go with. I had surely come to my blank wall.

Late that night, after the boy slept, I went out—began walking. It was one of those empty starless nights—utterly still. I did not know where I was going—was not even conscious that I was going anywhere. I was as lifeless as the night—empty of purpose or desire—not even any longer desperate.

All that had passed—the frantic struggle, the shuddering fear, the pleading tears. Everything in me, now, was finished.

For a little while, I had seemed to be free, powerful, controlling my destiny. But now that foolish dream was over. Now I saw things as they really were—dead, senseless earth—empty, meaningless night. My life was like that too—empty and ended. And there was not in me, any more, even the will to protest.

Exhausted, at last, I threw myself on the ground.

I do not know how long I had been there before I became vaguely conscious of a change. Despair is a deep blindness. But presently I was aware that the walls of darkness were dissolving, receding—moving slowly back, and back. Where there had been blank blackness, tight and close as a prison cell, now there was a widening, a lifting, a quickening.

To the east a bright line appeared—trembled for a moment—curved, spread, spilled — then floated free in the great white bubble of the moon.

And now—east, west, north and south — the glimmering earth spread out to its endless horizons.

Suddenly something within me, too, broke and was freed! How? I could not have told. No plan had come. No actual hope. Not even a stirring of desire. But simply, and finally, I knew that I would go on. No matter what happened, I would go on.

I would go on as the earth went on. Things happened to the earth. Storms scarred it. Suns seared it. Nights closed down upon it—starless nights, wailing it in. But the earth always went on.

It did not go on unchanged. It never remained unchanged from one hour to another. Everything left a mark on the earth—some of them very deep. But the earth was always greater than the things that happened to it. They could alter its surface, but they could not change its deep identity. The earth always went on.

And I, too, would go on. Things would happen to me—storms, droughts, starless nights—and these things would leave their mark on me. I would never be the same again. I would be scarred—outwardly. But nothing would change or destroy the life and the purpose that lay deep inside me. That would go on!

I have never forgotten that night. Call it whatever you will—moon magic, emotional reaction, or the voice of God speaking to the troubled waters—this I know. NO MATTER WHAT HAPPENS, I WILL GO ON.

So will you!

ISN'T IT SO?

The best portions of a good man's life are his little, nameless, unremembered acts of kindness and of love.

Honesty, like other policies, often runs out the day before the fire.

To play safe, a man should select an affinity with the same color hair as his wife's.

A laugh makes more noise than a sigh and goes farther other ways.

Even happy children grow up to be grouches.

The real forgotten man is the fellow who pays no taxes.

A fish story is generally weighed and found wanting.

It takes nine tailors to make a man, but a gentleman is born.

Will Rogers Says:

ABOARD SS. MALOLO, July 27.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Poor old Austria, if ever a nation needed to move out and settle among different neighbors it's her. They divided her up so much after the last war till there was nothing left but this little game fighting cock Dollfuss. Now they got him. There was a fellow that looked like he was doing a heroic job of trying to hold the few strands together of what had been a great nation. Now its a fresh piece of meat to be thrown to the neighboring wolves. Yours, WILL.

Human Side of the News

The Germans Have Turned Back to the Old Songs in Their Cafes—A Change of Sentiment Seen

By Edwin C. Hill

IN the flow of news from Germany, there is a casual little trailer which seems to me possibly more significant and illuminating than more of the stories which get the big headlines. Baffled correspondents explore the zones of politics and economics. Here's something human — and that's the neglected, but at times critically important zone, staked out in this corner of the paper.

The crowds in the German cafes take up again the old mellow sentimental songs; they demand the musical classics; they renounce the impassioned heroics of their new synthetic culture — all the tinsel and bravura of the Nazi forced draught music—and turn back to "Du, Du Liegst Mir Im Herzen," and "Roslein, Roslein Auf Der Heide."

They linger far into the morning hours, singing again and again those old favorites, with the delight of recovering something infinitely treasured. In other words, they're human. The boys are getting a little track-sore, as my old friend Pittsburgh Phil would have put it, with all this Nazi run-around. And I sometimes wonder if Pittsburgh Phil, if he were alive, wouldn't be a better scout of great popular drifts than some of the learned railbirds who clock the chancelery and the bourse.

The bourse is interesting and important, as a reflex of money, but a cafe may be and often is responsive to something wider and deeper—the folklife of a people which makes and unmakes dictators and kings.

As I remember it, there must be nearly a mile of great cafes along the Kurfurstendamm in Berlin. Then there is the great rococo Haus Vaterland, in the Potsdamer Platz, which seats more than 3,000 persons; and the Neue Welt, a great sprawling, bleak structure, roaring with the songs of the workers—the same old sentimental songs which they are now picking up again in the grand places.

All over Germany, in big cities and mountain hamlets, one finds in the cafes the retreat of the "Volk Geist," carrying on down through tumultuous days some heritage of the people which war and oppression cannot destroy.

Appointments Kept At Cafes

IN Continental Europe, the cafe has on institutional quality which we do not find in America. In Paris, asking for an appointment with some person of note, I was frequently told to appear at the Cafe des Lilacs, or the Cafe de la Paix at a certain hour. Usually, it was late in the afternoon, for this is the hour of the rendezvous in the Paris cafes. Verlain used to write his poetry at that old table in the corner. The second and third empire came and went, the Commune came and went, the Republic. Life flows on.

It is mainly the Latin countries which have maintained the sidewalk cafe, our own preoccupation in New York, just now. Cafe creme has become a favorite drink, not only in France and Italy, but to a degree in Germany. There is surprisingly little hard liquor drunk. Beer comes along later in the evening.

In France, a popular drink is tilleul, a tea made from the linden tree.

Florian's at Venice, on the Piazza San Marco, is perhaps Italy's greatest outdoor cafe. It is in a magnificent setting, something which we will lack in America, if we take to dining out of doors.

We have had no doges or Medicis or Napoleons to decree unified architecture.

Simpson's, of London, the one of the Strand, is just about as unlike those cafes of Paris or Nice as anything one could think of, and yet it represents essentially the same thing. Here is national taste, behavior, culture, mellowed by ancient tradition, freely expressing itself. This cafe has been running, just as it is, for 800 years.

* * *

Snuff Served At Simpson's

AT the door is a bowl of snuff with a little spoon in it. At the big luncheon table sits an old white-haired merchant, who, by tradition, has become chairman of the luncheon. One feels that the roast beef and Yorkshire pudding will be there long after the machines and the tariffs have done their worst, or their best, for old England.

One thinks of the old Hof Brau house—of Shanley's—what a tribe they were—those eight or ten white-haired Shanley boys—of Browne's Chop House and Eagle's Chop House, the old Gilsey House, the Cafe Martin and the Brevoort.

Even with repeal, we can't get the genii back in the vase, but with these memories one knows something which all reformers, dictators, all heaving and sweating uplifters ought to know. It is a mistake to prod too boldly into the wheels of life. Let a managed economy come if it must, but keep it in its place, and don't let it interfere with such important concerns as close harmony, bouillebaise, tap dancing and "Roslein, Roslein auf der Heide."

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Light as Summer Love

Marriage is not a gamble, but a formula. The gamble is the human conundrum whom you pick to help you bear it.

The arrival of a brand new and attractive man at a summer resort has often saved a whole piazza-full of women from slow death—by boredom.

* * *

An appendix or a tonsil may be dispensed with in comparative privacy; but losing a tooth or a husband always seems to be a matter of public interest. Everybody wants to know how soon you are going to replace them.

* * *

Sometimes a woman's idea of taking a vital interest in her husband's business is to drop in at his office unexpectedly, every now and then, and give the feminine part of the force the O. O.

* * *

Marriage appears to be the air-cooling system which turns a fiery and passionate lover into the indifferent sort of husband who yawns through his evenings and answers "Sure, I love you—but when do we EAT?"

* * *

Now and then, you meet a man of intuition who knows just what to do, when a woman has a headache, a fit of nerves or a touch of the blues. Merely because a man holds down a he-sized job and loves golf, horses or prize-fights is no reason why he should stifle all his more delicate sensibilities.

* * *

A woman will forgive a man for burglary, arson, mayhem or even for giving her a black eye—for anything on earth except for failing to fall in love with her.

Not every man who leaves word that he's "in conference" is out lunching with a blonde. That's what fools his wife—SOMETIMES he's in conference.

* * *

Love used to die of coldness or starvation—but, in these days, most love dies of suffocation.
